They Always Blame Capone. Chicago's Busy Stores. Where Did the Soul Start? Egypt or Mesopotamia?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.

CLOUDY IN Chicago, but not cold. What is called "dreary weather," nature imitating the expression on the face of the average man.

THE LATEST development under our prohibition civilization that was to be so pure, is a "white slave ring," organized on modern industrial lines, with file index, codes, efficient organization.

It is not, literally, a WHITE trade, for the 1,000 names of girls from 16 upward on lists taken by the police, include many young Negresses. Vice knows no race prejudice.

IT IS A SIMPLE industry, the raw material costs nothing, except for advertisements offering respectable work to young girls.

Hunger, intimidation and despair do the rest.

Chicago newspapers bring the name of Al Capone into the hideous picture, but perhaps unjustly. If Lake Michigan should overflow its banks and flood the grain pit, many would accuse Capone.

CHICAGO, HOWEVER, contains no more vice and crime than other big cities, less than many, in proportion to population. The energy, vivid writing and efficiency of Chicago reporters and city editors make things seem worse than they are.

OUTSIDERS SHOULD remember that in addition to Al Capone, names in the history of Illinois include such able men as Pullman, Armour, Swift, Marshall Field, to say nothing of Abraham Lincoln.

The last, perhaps, would wonder at our submission to vice, crime, bootlegging and the prohibition that breeds them all. He might rewrite for 1931 his statement that a people cannot exist half slave and half free.

DEPRESSION, OR no depression, Santa Claus here is enjoying his usual celebration. Chicago's big stores are crowded into a few blocks of State street, convenient for shoppers. Some have branches in outlying districts for women too busy for central shopping.

H. W. Rieger, secretary of the State Street Council, says that not fewer than 250,000 shoppers crowded the big stores Saturday.

It is a good sign that Americans do not let a passing depression kill the Christmas spirit, which is eternal.

Children are not depressed by failure to acquire everything they see. One present or two will make a child happy, representing for that child all the wonders he has seen, as one drop of salt water gives to the chemist all he needs of the Pacific Ocean.

A child finds happiness in imagination, not in accumulation of possessions. Encourage your child to think and dream, as it plays, and you need not mourn because you cannot afford expensive toys.

DR. JAMES Henry Breasted tells a learned gathering dedicating the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago that "the soul of man" was practically born about 2,000 years before Christ in Egypt. Dr. Breasted attaches little importance to religious authority, as to man's soul. Says he:

"No conception of a spotlight of divine providence, shining exclusively in Palestine, shall despoil man of this crowning glory of his life on earth, the discovery of character."

A LITTLE CHILD that pushes away its mother's hand, saying, "Walk self, mamma," believes that it invented its own feeble legs, but it is mistaken.

Winwood Reade's "Martyrdom of Man" gives an admirable picture of that Egypt in which Dr. Breasted's soul got its start. And it was not a civilization to admire.

OTHER SOUL-STARTS occurred on the fertile soil deposited by the two great rivers in Mesopotamia, at about the same time or earlier. Wherever men had sure crops, owned slaves with power of life or death over them, and had leisure for themselves and their priests, knowledge increased and the soul gained momentum. But it was not BORN there.

ONE MILLION years before the pyramids were built, some cave mother, her half-naked body, with its covering of red hair, enveloped in a rawhide, held close to her breast a newborn baby, like herself.

She would defy hungry bears, and cannibal men, to defend that baby, and gladly die fighting for it.

THERE WAS SOUL in that woman, and, while it lacked the polish of Egypt's civilization, it was as real a soul as that of any Pharaoh, driving 100,000 slaves to pile pyramid stones above his grave and paying priests to procure forgiveness for his sins and experts to embalm his body, that the corpse might last forever.

He little dreamed that his gods were all unreal, or that his mummy would lie in the museum on this Michigan lake front, built with Marshall Field's dry goods money.

ANY SPECULATIONS about the exact birth date of the human soul are dubious. It came to this earth, in embryo, in some primitive form of life, able to survive the cold of interstellar space, has been developing ever since, and has a long way to go.

That is another speculation, and you need not believe that, either.

'BLUEBEARD' GUARDED AT TRIAL

BULLETIN.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 7.—The 12 men who are to hear the first of five murder charges against Harry F. Powers were selected from 20 "qualified" talesman shortly after 2:30 p. m. today. As the selection of the jury was completed, Judge Southern denied a request from defense counsel for a change of venue, a plea that had been refused once before. Powers' attorney based his second petition on a claim that examination of the prospective jrors had shown nearly all of them have discussed the case.

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 7.—While 1,200 persons jammed Moore's Opera House, where Harrison County Court is in session, Harry F. Powers, alleged "Mail Order Bluebeard," today opened his fight against the gallows.

Twelve state troopers, grim-faced and with heavy service revolvers on their hips, stood in the aisles; another detail blocked the doorway and mingled in the crowd of hundreds which surged in the street out front, as Powers was escorted to the opera house courtroom by a circuitous route from the county jail.

FLAIR OF THEATER

Powers is on trial in one of five murder indictments against him. The specific charge in the trial which opened today is the killing of Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, of Northboro, Mass., one of the many women the defendant, as a small-town Casanova, is alleged to have wooed and won through his mail order matrimonial romances. The other four indictments are for the killing of Mrs. Asta Eicher, of Park Ridge, Ill., and her three small children.

The prosecution contends that Powers, having lured the two women to Clarksburg, took them and Mrs. Eicher's children to a lonely garage, six miles from the city, and murdered them.

Today's trial opened with the flair of a theatrical first night. From all over the West Virginia mining country, men and women poured into Clarksburg to view the defendant and listen first-hand

A cold snap borne on a 28-mile gale was enveloping the Pittsburgh district today, with a prospect of a drop to 20 degrees tonight, the lowest of the season.

Skies cleared with the falling mercury, but the wind will continue throughout today. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said. The cold will tarry over tomorrow, he predicted. Rising temperatures will follow, as a vast low pressure area with rain is hard on the heels of the cold wave.

Mrs. Culbertson Upholding Sex Among Bridge Wizards

(Editor's Note: Following is the first of a series of stories on the Culbertson-Lenz match by Josephine Culbertson, wife of Ely Culbertson, originators of the Culbertson-Lenz match by contract bridge. The match will begin this evening. Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson will oppose Sidney S. Lenz and Oswald Jacoby.)

By MRS. JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON
World's Greatest Woman Bridge Player
Written Especially for International News Service

(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—The heroine in "Thousand and One Nights" when condemned to death by the cruel Caliph started a story which never ended and so intrigued the cruel ruler that her life was spared. As a start this daily story of the thousand and one bridge hands in the Culbertson-Lenz match, for the readers of International News Service, I feel that I must point out that the Arabian Nights tale did not end as most men probably think a story of this sort should end. The Caliph was really not talked to death.

My message to the women bridge players of the country is parallel in some particulars to the task of the Arabian Nights heroine. Most of the masculine bridge players of the country have condemned me, mentally at least, to an early death in the arena of bridge. For the first time a woman is presuming to invade another exclusively masculine field. She is fighting in a "battle of the century."

HUSBAND CONFIDENT

Masculine superiority has assured most men that I will crack under the strain of the grueling competition. Mr. Culbertson assures me that I have been chosen as his partner because, in spite of my apparent nervousness before every big match, I do not crack! The lords of creation, therefore,

KLINE TRIAL 'DEAL' ASKED IN VAIN

Overtures Made to Park, Discussed by Prosecutor With Group of Citizens

By MARK SHIELDS

Diplomatic denials by District Attorney Park and the Citizens' Committee of proposals that prosecution of Mayor Kline be dropped provided the Mayor would resign, cannot becloud the fact that such proposals were made to the district attorney, and that they were discussed by the district attorney and representatives of the committee.

The Citizens' Committee, commenting on a report in the Sun-Telegraph yesterday that such proposals had been made, denied it had ever approached the district attorney on the subject, insisting it wished the prosecution of the Mayor carried through. Mr. Park is quoted as denying he had ever discussed the matter with the Citizens' Committee.

It is known, however, that overtures were made to the District Attorney by more than one person to determine what his course would be should the Mayor resign. Senator James J. Coyne was one who took the question up with Park. Others did so, and at least one was a business man and not a politician. Mr. Park says he did not take the proposals seriously, but they were a subject of conference between the District Attorney and representatives of the Citizens' Committee, and it is understood the District Attorney agreed with at least one of his visitors that he would recommend parole for the Mayor should he be convicted after resignation.

HERRON IN LINE

Should the Mayor resign John Herron, president of Council and close friend of Coyne, automatically would become Mayor. This would be unsatisfactory to the Citizens' Committee, which in attacking Kline is broadening its purpose to include practically all

TROLLEY HITS TRUCK, 1 DEAD

Steve Kalvin, 2117 Tustin street, was fatally injured today when the American Reduction Company truck, on which he was a helper, overturned in Forbes street, opposite Homewood Cemetery, after being struck by a street car, police reported. Kalvin, pinned under the truck, died soon after reaching Columbia Hospital. The truck driver, William Heese, 613 Eureka street, was uninjured.

Three windows in the street car were smashed, but the operator, John Mahon, 2026 Wayne street, Swissvale, and passengers escaped injury.

Hesse and Mahon will be held for the coroner, the police said.

BASSETT WILL REJECTED

Mrs. Lolah Duncan Bassett gained a victory in her suit to upset the will of her wealthy husband, Ira S. Bassett, late business man-evangelist, when the testament was refused for probate today by Deputy Register of Wills William Berger.

Berger's decision upheld the contention of Mrs. Bassett that her husband, in a note, had repudiated the will, which named Claude B. Sharpe, Jr., oil and gas broker, the excutor.

Sharp's attorney, William A. Griffith, announced he would appeal the decision to Orphans' Court.

Mrs. Bassett told of finding the note among her husband's effects after his death. Signed in Bassett's name, it represented him as revealing he had been "compelled" to sign the will which established large trust funds for his wife and family, of which Sharpe was to be trustee. Sharpe also was given the residue of the estate.

The contest over the will today overshadowed the hunt for the so-called hidden millions Bassett is reputed to have acquired in his spectacular business career.

Ohio Bank Holdup Balked by Cashier

RED DEMONSTRATORS REPELLED AT CAPITAL AS CONGRESS MEETS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—A new Congress, born of political unrest, assembled today under a burden of legislative tribulation unparalleled in recent years—a session, too, which saw the election of John N. Garner as Speaker of the House, the first Democrat to hold that office in a decade.

The turbulent atmosphere was heightened by an attempt of "hunger marchers" to force their way onto the floors of Congress to present demands for unemployment insurance. Police posted to guard the Capitol repelled the demonstrators after they refused to have their demands presented by proxy. The marchers then proceeded to the White House, but met a similar rebuff there.

Mr. Garner

Just at noon, the sharp rap of the gavel, like the crack of a whiplash, called a Republican Senate and a Democratic House to grapple with tax revision, farm relief, prohibition and a sweeping program of economic relief.

Cheering Democrats, returned to legislative power after more than a decade of defeats, took control of the new House and elected Garner their speaker.

Showing an impressive solidarity, the party organization gave the Texan 218 votes, to 207 by the Republicans for Snell, of New York.

SUCCEEDS LONGWORTH

The Texan was elected to succeed his legislative chum, but political enemy, the late Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio.

This is the first time a Democrat has held the speaker's gavel since Champ Clark, of Missouri, speaker in the sixty-fifth Congress, relinquished it in 1919 to Frederick H. Gillett, of Massachusetts.

The Republican House leadership controversy was ended today when Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, conceded the place to Representative Snell.

GOLLMAR GETS SHERIFF POST

HARRISBURG, Dec. 7.—Gov. Pinchot announced today the appointment of Frank I. Gollmar, of Pittsburgh, to be Sheriff of Allegheny County. He succeeds Robert S. Cain, who resigned to become County Treasurer. Gollmar's name will be sent to the Senate tonight for confirmation. The appointment if effective today.

Mr. Gollmar

Members of Senate Committee on Executive Nominations, while declining to be quoted, today said that Gollmar probably would be confirmed tonight unless some Allegheny senators should ask for delay in action.

Former Judge Gollmar, at one time a Pinchot lieutenant, supported the Coyne cause in the last campaign. He had received his appointment as judge from Pinchot, whose campaign in Western Pennsylvania he had managed a year ago.

The position of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern in the appointment was obscure today. McGovern, now on a two-weeks' vacation cruise, had not indorsed Gollmar before his departure, it was said in political circles. As the "official" Pinchot lieutenant here, McGovern had apparently established his authority to give or withhold the final O. K. in Allegheny County appointments when he forced the reappointment of Havey J. Boyle as boxing commissioner, a matter over which James F. Malone, sponsor of another, resigned his Pinchot appointment.

4 TECH CO-EDS HIT BY BULLET

A rifle bullet accidentally discharged in the Carnegie Tech rifle range struck the floor and, after shattering, spraying for a radius of 10 feet, pecked the ankles and legs of four Tech co-eds just preparing to practice, it was learned today.

The girls, all Pittsburghers, were treated by Dr. Edmond Esquerre, student health director. They were found to be scratched.

The co-eds reported Friday afternoon for target practice and several were given rifles to examine to see if any bullets or wads of cloth had been left in them since the previous day.

Gold Brick Thief Wins Court Mercy

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—A plea by his pastor won a suspended sentence today for Charles A. Muche, clerk, who took a $4,000 gold brick from the United States Assay office.

Judge Knox indicated his belief than any one who thought he could take a gold brick from the United States Assay office and get away with it was naive rather than criminal.

Kerr Urges Central Purchasing Bureau

That all licenses, traffic tags and permits be issued by the Controller's office and that a central purchasing bureau be set up by the city was advocated by Controller James P. Kerr as economy moves in a letter to City Council today.

Kerr would inaugurate the changes on January 1.

All-American Star Hurt; 40 Deaths Rouse Students

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Jerry Dalrmyple, all-American end and captain of Tulane University's football team, was brought to a hospital here today with a kidney ailment which teammates fear may keep him out of the Rose Bowl game with Southern California at Pasadena New Year's Day.

He was stricken while driving an automobile in McComb, Miss., yesterday.

Dr. Robert H. Brumfield, who examined Dalrymple at McComb soon after he was stricken, said he was suffering with a contusion of the kidney, caused by a blow in Saturday's game.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—A football death toll which has grown to 40 for the 1931 season, today prompted Spectator, Columbia student daily, to urge abolition of the game as an intercollegiate sport.

In an editorial titled "Death Stalks Over the Gridiron," Spectator charges the game now is played largely for the entertainment of the spectators and the profit of the coaches and "other parasites."

JAPANESE AIR BOMBERS KILL 250 BANDITS

By JAMES E. YOUNG
International News Service

TOKIO, Dec. 7.—The Japanese general staff, meeting in secret, today outlined detailed plans for the capture of Chinchow, Manchuria.

The staff met at the war office immediately after the return to Tokio of Gen. Harushige Ninomiya, assistant chief of staff. The plans were kept secret but the dispatch of another division to Manchuria was decided upon as a necessary measure to carry out the campaign.

Japanese military headquarters at Mukden last night began new large scale operations against bandits who have been active for the last week along the South Manchuria Railway. Aided by bombing planes, the Japanese forces have already killed 250 brigands and wounded many others in this region.

Severe fighting took place at Hsinghengtze, 30 miles north of Mukden, this morning. Skirmishing occurred at scattered points in the railway area.

Gen. Harushige Ninomiya assistant chief of staff of the imperial Japanese army, declared tonight that Japan may not participate in the general disarmament conference, scheduled to convene at Geneva on February 2, 1932.

League Disheartened, Ready to Adjourn

By WYTHE WILLIAMS
International Newsreel

PARIS, Dec. 7.—Disheartened by its failure to make any progress toward settlement of the Chino-Japanese dispute, the League of Nations council today appeared ready to adjourn as soon as a face-saving device can be found.

The twenty-first day of its fruitless sessions closed with merely another zero added to the council's long list of lack of accomplishments.

Adjournment is sought, no matter how thin the face-saving device might prove. Therefore, the meeting is expected to close within the next few days by either the league's giving in completely to Japan or by Japan's rejecting without reservation the resolution its delegate proposed to send a commission of neutral inquirers into Manchuria.

NANKING, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—China today challenged the right of Japan to maintain troops in the South Manchuria railway zone.

The Nationalist government demanded evacuation of Japanese troops from that area in a note to its delegate to the League of Nations council instructing him to reject the League's proposal for creation of a neutral zone in the Chinchow area.

Floyd Gibbons Leaves For Manchuria by Plane

TOKIO, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—Floyd Gibbons, noted war correspondent and radio broadcaster, left Tokio today by airplane for Manchuria to report the Sino-Japanese hostilities for International News Service.

After flying to Dairen, Manchuria, Gibbons will go by train to Mukden, expecting to reach there at 8 a. m. tomorrow.

SCHOOLEY JURY STARTS WORK

The December grand jury which will investigate Roy D. Schooley's conduct before he was fired as City Treasurer went to work today.

The jury will work double-quick time to dispose of almost 1,000 cases before it reaches the Schooley case, between Christmas and New Year's. It has been charged that Schooley kept city funds in the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company without bonded protection.

Judge James H. Gray swore the jury and appointed Bion B. Williams, retired businessman, of East McKeesport, foreman. Two assistant district attorneys, Ralph Hunter and George F. P. Langfitt, will present the cases, $10 each day rather than the customary $5.

of the individuals who have been associated with the Mayor in the building up of what has come to be known as "Klineism" in the city government.

Under the charter Herron within 20 days would have to call a meeting of Council to elect a Mayor as successor to Kline should his office be vacated for any reason. If Coyne and Kline could retain their present control of Council, Herron probably would be the choice, a result which would not be satisfactory to the Citizens' Committee, it is reported. For that reason, any leniency toward the Mayor would be granted only in return for his efforts toward the selection of a successor heretofore not identified with his policies.

In its statement today the Citizens' Committee says:

"In an article appearing in a Sunday Pittsburgh newspaper it was stated that the Citizens Committee had approached the District Attorney with a suggestion that he drop the prosecution of Mayor Charles H. Kline if the Mayor would resign.

"The Citizens Committee desires the public to know that this statement is absolutely false. Neither the Citizens Committee nor any individual member thereof has, at any time, made any such suggestion to the District Attorney or to any one else nor even approached the District Attorney or anyone else for that purpose.

"On the contrary the Citizens Committee is unalterably opposed to any postponement or dismissal of the indictment against and the prosecution of the Mayor. Nor can we see any reason why such a proposal by or to anyone should receive any consideration.

"The Citizens Committee has never suggested any individual as a possible successor to the Mayor in the event of his removal from office. We are not interested in individuals, but solely in the broad principle of clean government in this city.

TIBBETT HERE, TALKS ON FILMS

If the opportunity presented itself today, Lawrence Tibbett, here for a concert tonight in Syria Mosque, will view his picture "Cuban Love Song," to see how it is projected and received. He said:

"I am interested in finding out just what sound effects and reproductions my work will get in various theaters. Sometimes the pictures are run so fast and the music speeded to the point where I sound like a tenor, or a soprano. In others I sound like a crooner."

Tibbett told of his work on the stage, in the movies and on the concert platform. He described the effect which viewing one of his pictures has upon him. He continued:

"I always feel embarrassed when I hear an audience applaud a song in the movies. I feel as if I were getting something which did not belong to me. I would much rather sing to a real audience from the concert platform. It's much easier on me."

The ticket sale indicates a capacity audience will greet Tibbett tonight, it was announced at noon today.

Fairbanks Planning Trip Across Russia

ROME, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—Douglas Fairbanks is planning a trip from China across Soviet Russia, accompanied by his wife, Mary Pickford. He said:

"I am planning to meet Mary in Peiping early next year, and am trying to secure permission to travel through Russia by way of the Trans-Siberian Railway. In case that is impossible, I shall return to the United States, making the homeward trip from the Orient by way of Honolulu."

Man Falls Dead In Highland Park

Police rushed to the Highland Park reservoir today when the police radio flashed word that a man had fallen into it. They found a man had fallen dead from heart trouble while walking around the big basin. He was W. A. Jeffries, 60, of 1332 Grotto street, a conductor reporting at the Highland Park car barns of the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

Court Gives Duchess Absolute Divorce

LONDON, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—A decree nisi divorcing the Duchess of Manchester, who was Helen Zimmermann, of Cincinnati, O., was made absolute in the Divorce Court today.

The duke sailed several days ago for Cuba by way of New York, announcing that he would seek a divorce in Havana. This will not be necessary now.

MITCHELL ASKS QUICK VERDICTS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—Quick imprisonment was urged today by Attorney General Mitchell in his annual report to Congress.

He declared:

"Convictions lose their effect as a deterrent on crime if months and years elapse after verdicts of guilty, during which the convict remains at large pending appeal.

"In my judgment no single step would accomplish more in removing the just criticism of criminal procedure than to expedite the prompt disposition of appeals, and prevent the inexcusable delays which now occur."

He called attention to the case of Ralph Capone, of Chicago, who was at large more than a year following his conviction in the District Federal Court for violation of income tax laws.

PINCHOT WARNS HOUSE FOES OF VETO

Governor Declares He Will Not Approve Proposals He Holds to Be Illegal

HARRISBURG, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Legislative enactment of the House bloc's alternate program for unemployment relief would result in executive veto, Gov. Pinchot said today. Explaining his attitude, the Governor said:

"I won't sign anything the Attorney General declares to be unconstitutional or any bill which would incur a deficiency."

The bloc's alternate program provides for appropriations of between two and three million dollars to state-owned and state-aided hospitals and the State Aeronautics Commission, a direct appropriation of ten million dollars from the state to municipalities charged with poor relief, and an increase in the gas tax of 1 cent for 15 months to provide $15,000,000 for work relief to be returned to the counties of origin in direct proportion to the amount collected.

LEGALITY ASSAILED

Attorney General William A. Schnader has ruled the Talbot $10,000,000 direct appropriation bill is unconstitutional. The Governor said today he had been informed by Schnader that the gas tax increase measure in its present form also is unconstitutional. The other measures providing appropriations in the bloc's program were designed to create a deficiency to be cared for at the 1933 regular session of the Legislature. This would place them under the executive veto ban.

Senate leaders in conference with the Governor last week agreed to a 1-cent increase in the gas tax for 15 months with the proceeds being returned to the counties on the basis of one-half according to population and one-half according to unemployment relief needs. The Governor said he would approve such a measure.

The long-awaited test of the strength of the House anti-administration bloc will come tonight when the Legislature reconvenes for the fifth week of the special session called to consider unemployment relief.

TEST VOTE NEAR

This test will come when the House considers on second reading the Talbot bill, providing for a direct appropriation of ten million dollars to municipalities charged with poor relief.

Members of the House bloc last night claimed they have sufficient votes to pass the measure and predicted its approval in the Senate. Administration members claimed the bill would not pass the House.

While the House is wrestling with its problems the Senate will be marking time as it cannot act on the major relief measures until it knows what disposition the House makes of the administration proposals for an increase in the gas tax, a levy of 2 cents per package on cigarets and a proposal for an impost on billboards.

JOHN HARRIS' FIANCEE

Actress to Marry Pittsburgh Theater Man

MISS LUCILLE WILLIAMS . . . SHE'LL QUIT HER SCREEN WORK

Miss Williams (Jacqueline Lucille Miller), Hollywood movie actress whose engagement to John H. Harris, son of the late Senator John P. Harris, has been revealed to their Pittsburgh friends.

HARRIS TO WED FILM ACTRESS

The engagement of John H. Harris, of Harris Terrace, Crafton, son of the late Senator John P. Harris, to Jacqueline Lucille Miller, of Hollywood, Cal., known on the screen as Lucille Williams, was learned here today by friends. The date of the wedding has not been set, but it will take place the latter part of January, the couple have announced.

George O'Brien, movie star, will be best man, and Harris' sister, Mary, will be maid of honor. Harris was president of the Harris Amusement Company prior to assuming the general managership of Warner Brothers theaters in the Pittsburgh zone.

Miss Williams is under contract in Hollywood, but will retire from the screen. She will return to Pittsburgh after the honeymoon. The couple met during one of Harris' trips to the studios, two or three years ago, friends said.

Democratic Victory Seen by Ritchie

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—High hopes of Democratic success in the 1932 presidential election were voiced today by one of the party's outstanding leaders, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland.

The Governor received an ardent welcome by distinguished Democrats of Chicago and Illinois. His three-day visit will be climaxed tomorrow night when he will address the annual dinner of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association.

Brookhart for End Of Gold Standard

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Progressive Republican, of Iowa, said today he will introduce a bill in Congress to abolish the gold standard in the United States.

He will propose a monetary standard based on the national wealth of the country. The standard unit of value would be the dollar, representing 1-360,000,000,000 of what the national wealth was on July 1, 1931.

Queen Mary, Better, Arrives in London

LONDON, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Queen Mary, looking a bit pale but otherwise well, arrived from Sandringham this morning with the King. She has been under treatment for a cold.

The court will remain here about two weeks before going back to Sandringham for Christmas.

Mother Stowaway; Needed Ocean Trip

ADELAIDE, South Australia, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ellen Trott, 31, mother of six children, was a stowaway on the steamer Anchises when it arrived today from Melbourne. She told police her doctor had advised her to take a sea trip.

GARNER PICKED AS SPEAKER OF HOUSE

charges of fraud and corruption were hurled at Senator John H. Bankhead, (Dem.) of Alabama. The charge of fraud was raised against Bankhead by Senator Shortridge (Rep.), of California. He indicated that further action would be taken against Bankhead and also against Senator Josiah W. Bailey (Dem.), of North Carolina.

The insurgent rebellion against renaming Senator George H. Moses (Rep.), of New Hampshire, to the president pro tem.—the highest honor in the Senate—was postponed until tomorrow. The session was occupied with swearing in new senators, the reference to Bankhead's election and the usual resolution of notification.

The real work of both houses will start tomorrow when President Hoover's message is read.

The demonstrators, who attempted to force their way to the Senate floor, were repelled by bluecoats, who guarded every path to the Capitol.

Headed by Herbert Benjamin, of Pittsburgh, the committee repelled from the Capitol had been selected from among 1,500 demonstrators to carry to the Senate floor an appeal for unemployment insurance.

'RUSH' BLOCKED

While their fellows waited on the Capitol plaza, they were admitted inside the police lines to make their request of Senate officials, who agreed to relay it to the proper persons but refused to admit them to the floor.

They pushed ahead, but their attempt was bolted by police.

Three of their men were then admitted to the Capitol building to carry their petitions to the Senate.

They rejected an offer by Senator King, of Utah, to present the appeal for them.

Lustily singing the "Internationale," the 1,500 demonstrators had marched to the Capitol bearing banners reading:

"Down with charity slop, we want full cash payment."

Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, wife of the Secretary of Interior, and Mrs. Walter Brown, wife of the Postmaster General, paused for a moment to look.

WARNED BY OFFICER

Benjamin called aside the delegation which planned to seek entrance to the Senate.

Leading his committee to the Senate entrance, Benjamin told officers on guard there he intended to see that the demands were heard on the Senate floor.

The officer in charge warned him that was "impossible," but told Benjamin he would take his demand to Senate officials.

As the police told them to move back, the group shoved forward with mutterings of "We're going in."

Before the move could concentrate itself, however, police pushed them bodily away. The demonstrators then headed for the White House.

At the White House the marchers refused to give a petition to Richard Jervis, chief of the White House secret service, who had agreed to deliver it to President Hoover.

While the marchers chanted the Communist anthem and sent up a continuous cry for unemployment insurance, Benjamin, hemmed in on all sides by policemen, told Jervis:

"If the President cannot see even so humble a delegation, we will make our views known in the park across the street."

He referred to Lafayette Park, across the street from the White House grounds.

Session Brings Renewed Battle on Dry Law

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The prohibition fight was renewed with a flourish in the Seventy-second Congress as bills poured into both Senate and House for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment or modification of the Volstead act.

Members leading the anti-prohibition movement presented bills even before Congress formally convened, while others disclosed their intention to introduce measures during the week.

Fully 100 bills affecting prohibition will be before both houses, it was disclosed in a canvass of congressional offices.

Two Pittsburgh Hunger Hikers Married

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—When Joseph J. Lean, of Pittsburgh, joined the national "hunger march" last week he was single.

When he arrived here today, he announced he had taken a bride.

Lean said their marriage was performed en route.

Describing the report of the wedding of the two hunger marchers as "baloney," the local Communist headquarters today asserted they knew nothing of the parties wed nor the wedding. A young woman secretary said:

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Representing the Woman's Republican Club of Western Pennsylvania, a delegation of 13 Pittsburgh women today attended the formal opening of Congress as the guests of Mrs. Everett Gann, sister and official hostess of Vice President Charles Curtis.

Prior to the opening the Pittsburgh group, headed by Mrs. W. Archibald Powell, president of the club, assembled in the office of Mr. Curtis. During the colorful ceremonies at the Capitol incident to the reconvening of Congress the group occupied a section of the Senate gallery reserved for the vice president.

Later they were the luncheon guests of Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, and tonight they will give a dinner at the William Penn Hotel in honor of Mrs. Gann. Before their departure for Pittsburgh tomorrow afternoon a busy program is ahead for the visiting delegation.

President and Mrs. Hoover will receive them at the White House at noon tomorrow, following which arrangements have been made for a trip to Mount Vernon, ancestral home of George Washington.

According to Mrs. Powell, the group is not here to urge any legislation before Congress, "but merely for the purpose of presenting 13 beautiful women."

Mrs. Powell said she and her associates were enjoying themselves "immensely."

Mystery Cryptogram Clue In Death of Woman

BOOTHBAY HARBOR, Me., Dec. 7.—(INS.)—Solution of the motive behind the death in the surf at bleak Hendrick's Head of an attractive 38-year-old woman who registered at a hotel as "Louise G. Meade of Pittsburgh," was believed by authorities today to hinge on the deciphering of a strange column of figures found in her handbag and believed to be a cryptogram. It was arranged as follows:

G—00011897
11—20
N—1194667
R—3136238
9
40
135
439

After a six-day search the body of the woman who said she was an artist and who went out to see the surf with a peculiar rubber plug in one ear although she was not deaf, was found near the Hendrick's Head lighthouse. Around her waist was a man's belt, on which was strapped an electric iron and a purse. Inside the purse was a packet, wrapped securely against water. It contained $12 and the column of figures and letters believed to be a death note in code.

Medical Examiner Dr. H. C. Barrows said that unless evidence was produced to the contrary the woman would be declared a suicide.

NICHOLAS RENOUNCES ROYAL FAMILY FOR 'ILLEGAL' BRIDE

PRINCE TO FLEE 2-MONTH TERM IN PRISON

Bitter Strife With Carol Over Wedding, Annulment, Climaxed by Alienation

International News Service.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 7.—Putting love above royal titles and honors, Prince Nicholas of Rumania today renounced membership in the Rumanian royal family and announced he would stand by his bride, the former Mme. Jana Lucia Deletj, regardless of consequences.

He sacrificed all his constitutional rights, abandoned titles and prerogatives and commissions in the army, navy and air forces, and prepared to flee the wrath of his brother, King Carol II, by going into lifelong exile with his bride.

Government circles, which have persistently shrouded all developments in the strange romance in an aura of mystery, issued an official denial of Nicholas' renunciation. Friends of the couple, however, stated positively that the Prince's unalterable decision was communicated to the government in a letter to the Rumanian minister of justice.

SENTENCE DENIED

A report in Vienna that Nicholas' announcement had been followed immediately by stern disciplinary measures, involving two months' imprisonment by order of the Supreme Army Council, was likewise denied.

Prince Nicholas' letter to the minister of justice followed a decree by the Rumanian Supreme Court annulling the marriage on the grounds legal formalities had not been observed. Nicholas and Mme. Deletj were married by the mayor of Tohan, a small town on the outskirts of Bucharest.

The marriage was opposed by the Prince's brother, King Carol, on the ground that it was illegal for a member of the royal family to marry a commoner. The marriage records were ordered destroyed, and Nicholas was served with an ultimatum demanding that he abandon his bride or surrender all his royal titles and privileges.

LEAVING COUNTRY

Prince Nicholas will leave within a day or two for France or Switzerland with his bride, planning to go through another marriage ceremony to take the place of the one annulled in Rumania.

Rumania was excited today by reports Count Stephen Bethlen, premier of Hungary, had proposed that King Carol II be made emperor of a new state consisting of Rumania, Hungary and Trans-Sylvania, the latter being granted a measure of independence.

HERNDON HELD IN AUTO DEATH

RED HOOK, N. Y., Dec. 7.—(INS.)—Hugh Herndon, Jr., first flier to make a non-stop trans-Pacific crossing, was held today in $2,500 bail on a charge of second degree manslaughter after the automobile he was driving collided with another car, causing the death of Robert O'Brial, 26, Red Hook.

The accident occurred on the Albany Post road, when O'Brial's machine was turning out of a small side road. O'Brial was the father of four children.

Herndon, who, with his wife, was driving to New York, received minor bruises and cuts. Mrs. Herndon was slightly bruised.

Postmaster Alton Teator, of Upper Red Hook, who was in the car with O'Brial, suffered internal injuries and cuts on the head. He was taken to Rheinbeck Hospital, near here.

Mystery Shot Victim Dies Keeping Secret

SPANGLER, Pa., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Archibald Kirkpatrick, 28, whose home was in Elder Township, near Hastings, died in Spangler Hospital from a bullet wound in the abdomen without telling who shot him. Kirkpatrick was shot early last Monday morning. He returned home at 2 a. m., telling his mother he had been shot but would not say anything else about the incident.

County detectives, friends and Kirkpatrick's spiritual adviser sought to draw the name of his assailant from him last night but, although he knew he was dying, refused to talk.

NOT WED YET, CLARA SAYS

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Dec. 7.—(INS.)—Clara Bow, the screen's "It" girl, stole the limelight from a football championship celebration today. While Las Vegas residents rejoiced over the local high school's annexation of the state title, their talk was dominated by the appearance at the championship game of Miss Bow, wearing a thin gold wedding ring.

The actress was the mistress of ceremonies at the contest from which the Las Vegas eleven emerged victorious over the Lovelock team by a score of 34 to 0.

Clara and Rex Bell, the wealthy screen actor and cattle ranch owner, posed for pictures between the half with members of the two football teams. Clara said laughingly:

"I'm not married yet, but Rex and I intend to get married soon."

America Good Bet Still, Colby Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(Universal.)—America is still a good bet for Americans, Bainbridge Colby told the congregation of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, last night.

Speaking on world affairs from the pulpit once occupied by Henry Ward Beecher, the former Secretary of State warned his listeners not to become too downcast by the disturbed economic horizon.

Former Pitt Player Hurt in Grid Game

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 7.—Dr. John Kelly, 30, Latrobe dentist, was in serious condition today with injuries sustained playing football with Latrobe Independents against Machesneytown in a charity game at Latrobe Saturday. He was formerly an athletic star with Latrobe High School and later attended University of Pittsburgh.

Drop Border Duty On Christmas Gifts

SAULT STE MARIE, Ont., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Customs officials on both sides of the border have entered into the Christmas spirit.

Goods imported as Christmas presents and upon which the duty would not be more than $1, will be admitted free to each country, it was announced.

GOVERNOR HERE TELLS HOW HE GETS RESULTS

Cross of Connecticut Finds It Possible as Democrat To Work With G. O. P.

Gov. Wilbur L. Cross, Connecticut's first Democratic Chief Executive, doesn't think it's unusual that he is able to "put across" Democratic ideas on a Legislature that has been Republican since Connecticut began.

The former dean of the graduate school of Yale University who donned gubernatorial toga in 1930, declared:

"It's merely applied psychology. We confer on the issues at stake. I ask the Republican leaders for their viewpoint, then I tell them mine. We get together and the legislation or appointments come out on a nonpartisan basis; it's a 50-50 proposition. It works now because of economic conditions and the frame of mind of the people. Under normal conditions things might be different."

Gov. Cross, a former instructor of Shady Side Academy, is coupling a number of speaking engagements with greeting old-time friends during his short stay here at the home of Southard Hay, 5227 Westminster place, a former pupil at Shady Side Acadmey and later at New Haven.

The Governor favors repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act and expressed the opinion that it would be one of the major issues of the presidential campaign. He refused to predict a political upheaval, saying:

"People are tired of politics. Government is fundamentally a business and the candidate who can promise the most business-like administration, whether he is Republican or Democrat, will win."

Gov. Cross spoke this morning before members of the Twentieth Century Club and was to speak tomorrow afternoon to the Pennsylvania College for Women. A final lecture will be given tomorrow at the Duquesne Club at a meeting of Yale University Alumni Association.

FIGHT TO SAVE DOOMED BOY SLAYER

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Enlisting the sympathies of juvenile authorities and sociological leaders throughout the country, a determined campaign was launched today to prevent the execution of Russell McWilliams, 17-year-old slayer of a Rockford street car conductor.

The youth is scheduled to meet death on the electric chair at Joliet Penitentiary one minute after midnight Thursday. He is the youngest person ever to receive the death penalty in Illinois.

Leaders in the battle to save the boy's life tensely awaited the decision of Gov. Louis L. Emmerson to their appeal that young McWilliams' sentence be commuted to life imprisonment. The Governor promised to render his decision at the state capitol in Springfield. He and the State Board of Pardons and Paroles have once before refused to commute the youth's sentence.

COL. MORRIS FRANK AND "BUDDY" . . . BOTH IN BANDAGES

Blind Teacher and Famous Dog Guide Hurt in Crash

"Buddy," the original "seeing eye" dog in the United States, with his master, Col. Morris Frank, blind managing director of the Seeing Eye, Inc., of Nashville, Tenn., were in Pittsburgh today showing the effects of an automobile accident yesterday en route here from Morristown, N. J.

With "Buddy's" nose swathed in bandage, and Col. Frank displaying cuts and bruises, "Buddy's" calmness during the ordeal of the overturning of their car, driven by Mrs. John MacKee, an official of the organization, was praised.

While crossing the Allegheny Mountains, a tire blew out, Col. Frank said, and the machine overturned. Flying glass cut him above the eye, and inflicted a deep gash on the dog's nose and over its left eye. Mrs. MacKee was unhurt.

URGES WRITERS BACK DREISER

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—"What we need in this country today is fewer speakeasy citizens and more criminal syndicalists," Sherwood Anderson, novelist and Virginia publisher, told 3,000 men and women meeting to hear the report of the authors' committee which investigated conditions in the Kentucky coal mine strike regions.

Anderson said of Theodore Dreiser, chairman of the committee, the members of which were indicted for criminal syndicalism after their inquiry:

"He spoke out loud in a speakeasy country. That's what criminal syndicalism is.

"If they take Dreiser to Kentucky and try him, it will be to the shame of all American writers if they don't go out at once and commit criminal syndicalism."

Charges the Red Cross functioned as a "strikebreaking organization" were made by Mrs. Adelaide Walker, member of the authors' committee. She said women "with children starving and dying would go to the Red Cross and be refused aid because their husbands were on strike."

Chihuahua Limits Number of Priests

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—A Chihuahua dispatch to the newspaper Excelsior said the Legislature of that state approved a law limiting the Catholic Church to one priest for each 45,000 inhabitants.

The state of Vera Cruz during the summer limited the number of priests there to one for each 100,000 inhabitants. It was erroneously reported some days ago that the Chihuahua Legislature had passed a more modified bill.

Hudson's Bay Post Infant Flies Home

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—An infant born here a month ago has flown 200 miles in 10-below-zero weather.

Weather Conditions.

The pressure units are moving rapidly. The low pressure that appeared in the Northwest Saturday morning is now in the Far Northeast and high pressure centered over the Upper Mississippi Valley covers most of the interior of the country. The skies are mostly clear throughout the high pressure, but a low over British Columbia is producing cloudiness and light precipitation in the Northwest. Temperature changes since yesterday were slight except over the Upper Mississippi Valley and over the Dakotas where there was a marked drop to zero and below. Colder weather may be expected over this section tonight and Tuesday, but it is not likely to drop below 20 degrees.

River Conditions.

TEACHER NAMED IN DIVORCE

George I. Eagleson, a teacher in Gladstone Junior High School, today was named co-respondent in a counter divorce suit against Mrs. Mary R. Parker.

In the suit, filed by Irvin M. Parker, of 317 Wilcox street, Carnegie, Mrs. Parker's and Eagleson's address is given as 915 Delaven street.

Her husband's counter action follows a suit she filed against him in October. She charged cruelty.

They have two children, aged 5 and 9.

According to Attorney Clarence B. Nixon, counsel for Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Eagleson and the Parkers formerly were neighbors in Crafton.

Fichtenberg, Movie Chain Owner, Dies

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Herman Fichtenberg, 63, former owner of a chain of 35 theaters in the South and Middle West, is dead. He succumbed to double pneumonia.

He opened the first regular motion picture theater in New Orleans and later established show houses in cities of the Mississippi region as far North as St. Louis.

Fire, caused by an overheated coal stove, in the one-story brick garage owned by William A. Hannis, McKean and South First streets, damaged the roof $50, according to Battalion Fire Chief Saul Klein. Several trucks and smaller machines, parked on the far side of the building, were driven out by employes and firemen.

Father Dies to Let Modern Daughter Return Home

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Helen Kuprowski, 16 and modern, who ran away because she didn't like living with an old-fashioned father, can go home now. Her father is dead.

Helen vanished in June, 1930, shortly before her mother gave birth to her sixth child. She was unheard from until this week, when her mother received a letter which said:

"I am happy and working and I love you. Father doesn't understand me. He is old-fashioned and has the ideas of the old country. I will never return unless father leaves or dies."

The father, jobless for months, three of his children in an institution, read it and said:

"Don't worry, mamma. Helen will be home for Christmas sure. I have a feeling she will be."

He went out seeking work. He did not return and Mrs. Kuprowski asked police to seek him. They found him in a furnished room, dead from asphyxiation. He was buried in Potter's Field.

FOUR BOYS HELD IN 'REVENGE' KILLING

Found in Movie Following Shooting of Youth, They Protest Missing Film

DETROIT, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—A group of newsboys plotted revenge in their haymow clubhouse yesterday on 15-year-old Joe Przystas, who had been accused of "pickin' on little kids," and a few hours later "little Joe" was killed by a rifle bullet.

Stanley Orlenowski, 14, president of the organization known as the "Floyd Club," admitted to police he fired the shot, but insisted he meant only to frighten Joe.

BORROWED RIFLE

He said he had borrowed the rifle as he, Josepn Sawiski, 14, and Anthony Mazur, 14, members in good standing, were on their way to carry out the club's verdict that "Little Joe" should be taught a lesson.

The three boys and Longin Jendzyenski, 11, who had accused Joe of "pickin' on him," were held in the juvenile detention home last night.

They escaped trial today in Recorders Court when Prosecutor Harry S. Toy announced that because of their age, he had no jurisdiction and the case must be handled by Judge George Read of the juvenile court.

The maximum punishment, under juvenile laws, is commitment until paroled.

GO TO SHOW

Stanley and the Sawiski and Mazur boys fled after the shooting. They went to a show. It was there police found them, Stanley complained later.

"They made us miss the best part of the show."

Longin held his ground, helped lift "Little Joe's" body into an ambulance and told police who had shot him.

Joe was an honor student in intermediate school. He sold papers outside school hours and, except for a small pension, provided the only income for his mother and two sisters.

BANDIT-MOTHER REVEALS LOOT

TIFFIN, O., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Mrs. Hazel Bullard, 31, of Carey, pretty blonde mother of two children, confessed today that she led three men in the $2,061 holdup of the Bettsville Banking Company at Bettsville Saturday, Prosecutor Paul Flynn announced.

The woman also revealed the hiding place of the money and of the guns which the bandits used. Under a rain barrel at the home of John Wilcox, of Carey, who admitted having plotted the robbery, according to Flynn, were found $900 in new bills.

Alva Wilcox, 23, John's son, and John Terry, 43, of Upper Sandusky, who are also held with Mrs. Bullard, denied having taken part in the holdup.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mary Hicks, 22, of Pasco, Wash., died last night of a wound received when she attempted to holdup a service station near here Thursday.

The young woman was shot by W. J. Hasley. Bonnie Legaspie is held as her accomplice. Police said he admitted his part in the attempted holdup.

Grandi Welcomed At Sicilian Resort

PALERMO, Sicily, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Foreign Minister Dino Grandi had one last day of leisure when he and Signora Grandi came ashore from the steamer Augustus at this Sicilian resort today.

They were guests of the mayor who had promised that there would be no formal reception, but when they stepped off the ship there were the same cheering crowds which had greeted them during the course of their visit to the United States.

Irish Republican Leader Arrested

LONGFORD, Irish Free State, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Hugh Quigley, secretary of the Fianna Fail (Republican party) organization in this county of the Irish Free State, was arrested yesterday by a posse of civic guards. The guards declined to state the nature of the charge.

GUARDS SPIRIT POWERS PAST THRONGS

to a story which they already know by heart.

The drab coated figures of the state troopers brought back memories to many of the crowd—memories of the night of September 19 when hundreds of men and boys stormed the county jail demanding that Powers be lynched and were dispersed only after the state officers smuggled him away to Moundsville Penitentiary where the famous "Green Room" for West Virginia's hangings stands.

The judge on a raised dais in mid-stage, the attorneys and prospective jurymen near him, and the tense packed audience in the seats gave the trial the appearance of a play rather than the grim tragedy of real life it is.

Overhead the flood lights played on the fiery red hair of Judge John G. Southern as the task of selecting the jury started.

INCONGRUOUS PICTURE

Behind the judge an ancient backdrop depicting a central square in some mythical city made an incongruous picture as it loomed behind wing sets depicting a forest scene.

Newspapermen from all parts of the country sat in the orchestra pit waiting as Powers who had been taken to one of the dressing rooms was led to the stage at 9 o'clock.

The defendant was calm and placid as the trial started. Even on his way from jail he turned to the state troopers and Sheriff William Grimm who accompanied him and as photographers sought to take his picture, said:

LOSES CALM

As the choosing of jurymen started, he sat easily at the side of his attorney, J. Edward Law, one arm over the back of his chair, the other on the table edge.

Several times, however, as his counsel questioned prospective jurors, Powers gave way to slight traces of nervousness. He shifted uneasily in his chair, mopped his thick black hair from his forehead and peered anxiously through his heavy shell-rimmed glasses, which give him an inscrutable owl-like appearance as his attorney hurled questions at the talesmen.

Only once, during the early proceedings, did he seem actually perturbed. That was when Mrs. Charles Fleming, sister of Mrs. Lemke, came into the courtroom. He averted his gaze as she did so and it was more than 15 minutes before he finally turned his face—and then only briefly—toward the woman and her husband.

The first six men called for jury service were excused when they admitted they had formed opinions which would require "considerable evidence" to remove.

JUROR QUEST DIFFICULT

The defendant showed no trace of emotion as his attorney asked several prospective jurors:

"Haven't you heard people say about Powers that 'hanging is too good for him?'"

Attorney Law also made frequent reference to the attempted lynching of Powers.

He obviously had difficulty finding talesmen who had not discussed the case to such an extent that their opinions might not be at least partially formed.

One of them, a Sunday school teacher, admitted the case had been discussed at length in his classroom.

Another, Nathan Richards, a farmer, said:

"I have heard right smart about the case and have reached a conclusion as to the guilt of some person."

In West Virginia, courts 20 prospective jurors are first chosen as "qualified." Then the prosecution challenges two of the 20, the defense six, reducing the jury to the 12 who will hear the evidence.

At 2 p. m., 15 of the 20 had been selected.

HOPES WIFE ABSENT

Powers' wife, Mrs. Luella Powers, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Eva Belle Strother, were not in the theater-courtroom when the trial started. Later it was reported they had slipped into rear seats in the balcony.

Questioned, Powers said:

"I don't know where they are, but I hope they are not here."

Powers' attorney declined to comment on the inability of deputy sheriffs to locate the two mysterious witnesses, Cecil Johnson and Charles Rogers, for whom Law had subpenas issued. Neither would he talk about a previously rumored plan to introduce an alibi defense for the Mail Order Romeo which appeared blasted with the revelation of a letter purported to have been written by Powers to his wife, Luella Strothers Powers, instructing her how to testify in his behalf.

50 WITNESSES CALLED

County Prosecutor Will E. Morris, in a preview of the state's case against Powers, indicated that he will wind up his case in less than three days. The defense is not expected to take more than half a day or a day at the most. The state has called 39 witnesses, the defense 11.

Judge Southern issued a statement to newspapermen today explaining why the trial is being held in the opera house. He said:

"Harrison County is rebuilding its Courthouse and we are without a courtroom. Up until Saturday, we held court in the Federal Building, but because of the anticipated crowds at the trial and the Christmas season with its crowds of people using the mails to dispatch gifts, we were unable to use the federal courtroom in the Postoffice Building for the Powers trial. The opera house was the only other available room large enough in which to hold court."

3 Boys Marooned On Rocks Rescued

HARRISBURG, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—Three boys were recovering today from an almost disastrous experience following their rescue from the Susquehanna River here where they were marooned on rocks for more than an hour after their boat capsized.

The boys, Ralph Gamble, 12; Russel Davis, 13, and Robert Kurle, 14, all of Harrisburg, were taken from their precarious position by R. P. Rathfon, who rowed through a swift current and deep channel in a boat procured by police and firemen summoned to the river bank.

FLIER'S DEATH ENDS ROMANCE

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 7.—(INS.)—A secret romance that began 18 months ago between Speed Pilot Lowell R. Bayles and Miss Gertrude St. Marie, of this city, also ended in the plane crash and fire that killed Bayles in Detroit on Saturday.

This was revealed here today when the Rev. W. J. Choquette, of St. Thomas Church, announced the pair had made arrangements for their wedding at his church during the Christmas holidays.

Miss St. Marie confirmed the announcement before boarding a train for Newton, Ill., where she will attend the funeral of her fiance on Wednesday.

She said the romance had been kept secret because Bayles, who died trying to break the world land plane speed record, believed his private life should not be intruded in his aviation activities.

In Miss St. Marie's apartment were a Thompson trophy plaque, which Bayles won at the Cleveland air races this year. A half dozen cups and a scrapbook bulging with day-by-day accounts of his exploits.

'DREAM SLAYER' TRIAL SLATED

KINGWOOD, W. Va., Dec. 7.—(INS.)—Mrs. Evelyn Harader, 45-year-old "dream slayer" of Cecil F. Michael, today was scheduled to go on trial in Circuit Court here on a charge of first-degree murder unless defense attorneys are granted a change of venue.

It was believed that counsel for the woman would demand a change of venue when deputy sheriffs, who investigated the case, admitted that had their arrival been delayed only a few minutes following the shooting the woman might have been hanged to satisfy mob vengeance.

Shortly after the shooting, Mrs. Harader was said to have told Coroner H. Foster Hartman that she shot the postmaster and general merchant because "he said things about me." She was also reported to have told officers she received a "message in a dream" to slay Michael.

5 Children Share In $36,600 Estate

The will of Mrs. Augusta E. Yagle, of 7145 Monticello street, was probated today, leaving an estate of $36,600 to be divided equally among her five children after an additional $1,000 has been given to three daughters, Flora L., Mary L. and Elizabeth A. A son, William, was named as executor.

Bandits Slug Woman In Store Holdup

Mrs. Jenny Kellenbaugh, 51, proprietress of a confectionery at 524 Atlantic avenue, McKeesport, today was nursing bruises of the head inflicted by two bandits who struck her with a pop bottle in her store Saturday night. Unconscious, Mrs. Kellenbaugh was locked in the rear room by the thugs who escaped with $35.

BRIDGE EXPERT TO UPHOLD WOMEN

may take it from a man who should know, that the feminine half of the Culbertson team will last through her part of the contest. Like the Thousand and One Nights lady, however, I suppose I must tell my story in order to establish my right to live!

A great deal of importance is being attached to the Culbertson-Lenz match by the bridge players of the country because it is a test of two contract systems—the Approach-Forcing (Culberston) system and Mr. Lenz's one-two-three version of the official system. Except for this and the awe inspiring trappings, the match will be, in almost every respect, just a bridge game. It will be like the game that Mr. and Mrs. Jones play every Thursday night with Mr. and Mrs. Smith from across the street. The differences will be in a few non-essential details. Radio announcers and microphones, leased telegraph wires, press rooms for the numerous reporters and three official referees together with three honorary referees, will convert my drawing room temporarily into an arena for a contest of apparently national significance. So far as the one woman who is playing in the match is concerned, however, the various sessions will be a series of bridge games held in my own home.

CHARITY WINS

I feel that Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson have invited in, for several evenings of bridge, Mr. Lenz and Mr. Jacoby. There will be no discussion of the size of the stakes. Whether we will play for 10 cents a corner, or just for the fun of the game, will not have to be settled. There is really no wager of money, although curiously enough, it is played at odds of $5,000 to $1,000. Mr. Culbertson's check of $5,000 has been deposited with the referee, as has Mr. Lenz's check for $1,000. If Mr. Culbertson and I win, we have, according to the conditions of the challenge and the terms of the contract agreed to donate Mr. Lenz's $1,000 to the New York Infirmary for Women and Children. If Mr. Lenz wins, he, according to the contract, will turn over his winnings to the unemployment fund.

These very wise provisions have put the match on a high plane of a scientific test of two systems of bidding—the Approach-Forcing system which Mr. Culbertson and his associates devised, and for which he has given me an undue amount of credit as his collaborator, and the official system, of which Mr. Lenz is the leading and the most expert exponent.

The match will be played as a series of 150 rubbers exactly the same as the Smith-Jones Thursday evening games, except for one unimportant particular.

TRICKS RECORDED

Instead of playing the cards in the middle of the table, with the tricks stacked, the cards will be played in front of each player. If Mr. Culbertson and I win a trick, we turn our cards face down in front of us with the long way of the card pointing in our direction. If we lose the trick, the long way of the card is toward our opponents.

The cards will be kept carefully in the order of their play and when the 13 tricks have been played, the hand will then be turned over to clerks to be copied and preserved, cruel reminders of our terrible blunders and conceits. Each of the thousand and one hands, however, will become a record for scientific analysis. Along with the record of the cards held in each hand, there will also be preserved, a record of the bidding and play.

I have had thousands of messages from bridge players in all parts of the country, chiefly women, wishing me success. I deeply appreciate their kindly thought. I think I can detect in some of these messages evidences of family arguments over the relative skill of men and women bridge players. Except for my most profound hope that Mr. Culbertson and I will win and thereby establish the superiority of the approach-forcing system, my strongest desire is that nothing that I may do may weaken the position of women as leaders in this great intellectual pastime.

DEFENDS WOMEN

There are very bad bridge players among women, just as there are very bad men bridge players. I believe, however—and in this as in many other points in bridge Mr. Culbertson agrees with me—that there are more women who are above average in the game than there are men.

I suppose everyone imagines that I am thrilled by this wonderful mate. I am not.

Bridge and the public have almost taken my husband away from me and today more than ever, he is far away.

On the eve of this, the most important match in which I have ever played, the thing which pleases me most is a promise which Mr. Culbertson has just made to me.

My fondest hope has been that instead of devoting his time exclusively to teaching the world the mechanics of bridge, he would give his splendid mind where it is needed the most, to teaching our children the true mechanics of life.

At last he has promised me that this will be his last big match!

And so I am going to play the best I know how.

Are You Nervous As a Cat?
THERE'S A REASON!
NERVOUSNESS is an AILMENT usually brought about by an UNDERFED or STARVED condition of NERVES and BRAIN through inability to assimilate the PHOSPHATES from the food supply.

Alberty's Nerve and Brain Food Pellets Eliminate Nervousness
In many instances they have proven a blessing to the nervous, high-strung, mentally and physically exhausted men and women. They supply a VITAL MINERAL ELEMENT to nerve and brain. Their effect is noticed within a few days. One of the most scientific and sensible methods of curing nervousness is by replacing these cell salts, which are composed chiefly of Phosphates. These salts are prepared in a form readily assimilated into the body. They do not act as a stimulant, do not contain drugs . . . but are a nerve and brain food, imparting new tone and vigor to the entire nervous system.

For nervous exhaustion, loss of energy, sleeplessness, high blood pressure, irritability, nervous headaches, despondency and trembling.
IMPORTANT: Few people realize the vast importance of the nervous system and its relation to sound health.
When you are nervous, weak or sleepless, that is nature's warning that your body is lacking in Phosphates and not functioning naturally. The nervous condition gradually grows worse, until there is the possibility of a nervous breakdown unless the deficiency is remedied. Restoring the needed phosphates helps to restore sound and more restful sleep, renewed strength and vitality, and stronger powers of digestion.
Remember, ALBERTY'S NERVE AND BRAIN FOOD PELLETS are neither a medicine nor a sedative. Note the improvement in a short time. Amazing results are being secured in all walks of life through the use of these pellets.

—With—

Patricia Pitt

You remember, of course, the famous old "Visit of St. Nicholas," in which the children slept "while visions of sugar plums danced in their heads." Now that another Christmas is so near at hand, I know that more than one thought already has been given to teh traditional plum puddings and the fruit cakes. So you know what I have on my mind—the annual Christmas sale of the Women's Exchange in Penn avenue.

The exchange's Christmas puddings, cakes, pies and candies are already on sale. All articles and baked foods are sold directly from the Exchange Building in Penn avenue, as there are no branch stores.

Another gala day in the holiday season will be New Year's when the Pittsburgh Triangle Club will come to town to present "Spanish Blade" at the Pitt Theater. Of course, there'll be entertainments galore for the cast.

And speaking of the cast, reminds me that there are eight boys from Pittsburgh and nearby in it. They are Howard Dawson, son of Mrs. H. F. Dawson, of Patterson Heights; Beaver Falls; R. C. Bachman, son of Mrs. Morris Bachman, of Shadyside; James M. Stewart, son of Mrs. A. M. Stewart, of Indiana, Pa.; R. M. Perry, son of Dr. Samuel Perry, of New Castle.

Still others are I. W. Knapp, Jr., son of I. W. Knapp, of the Schenley Apartments; John H. Hillman III, son of the junior John H. Hillman; H. B. Keller, son of H. W. Keller, and R. L. Hess, Jr., son of R. L. Hess, of Indiana.

Mrs. Nelson Entertains For College Graduates

A delightful affair of Saturday afternoon was the tea given by Mrs. John E. Nelson, of the College Club, for 1931 college graduates. Mrs. Nelson entertained more than 80 of the girls at her home in North Murtland avenue. There was a program consisting of a particularly enjoyable talk by Mrs. Richard Nuttall, who has visited in Russia, and music by Miss Jean Weisner, 'cellist; Mrs. Jean McCrory Newman, contralto, and Mrs. John Byerly, pianist. Mrs. J. Brooks Huff, president of the club; Mrs. H. B. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Joseph DeNoon Watson, Miss Margaret Sander, Miss Katherine MacCloskey and Miss June Kennedy assisted the hostess.

Voters of 26th Ward To Give Christmas Tea

A reception for new members and a Christmas tea will be held tomorrow by the Twenty-sixth Ward League of Women Voters in Legion Hall, Perrysville avenue. Donations will be brought for the Christmas baskets which are to be distributed to the needy of the community. Mrs. Edward Lang is in charge of the tea and Mrs. Charles Fortenbacher of the program, which will consist of carols by the league quartet and readings by Miss Elva Stuertz. Honor guests for the day will include Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, president of the county league; Mrs. A. H. Bowman and Mrs. Frank A. Bond.

Miss Truesdale, Williamsport Man Marry

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Porter Truesdale, of Hampton street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Marion Truesdale, to Herbert Randolph Carroll, of Williamsport, Pa., which was solemnized Saturday in the pastor's study of the Highland Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. George C. Fisher officiating. After an eastern wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll will make their home in Williamsport.

Scottdale Girl Becomes Bride of Irwin Lawyer

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Florence Lillian Fink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Fink, of Scottdale, and Attorney Max M. Bergad, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bergad, of Irwin, which was solemnized November 26 at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in the chapel of the Temple B'nai Israel. Rabbi Benjamin Lichter officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory lace in princess mode, having long, close-fitting sleeves. She wore a corsage of orchids. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Gertrude Fink, who wore nile green taffeta, having a bouffant skirt and puff sleeves. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses. Miss Sue Seigar and her brother, Albert Seigar, sang preceding the ceremony. William Bergad, of Irwin, served as his brother's best man.

The wedding dinner for 30 members of the families was given in the Hotel Schenley.

After a southern wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Bergad will be at home temporarily in the Bricher apartments, Irwin.

The bride is a graduate of Syracuse University, class of 1930, and is a member of Alpha Epsilon Phi. The bridegroom is a graduate of Harvard University, class of 1924, and of the University of Pittsburgh Law School, 1927.

Board of Directors to Meet Tomorrow; Dinner-Dance And Lecture Listed

Various committee announcements promise one of the most interesting weeks on the season's program for the College Club of Pittsburgh. The December meeting of the board of directors will be held tomorrow morning with Mrs. J. Brooks Huff presiding. The literary study group will meet at 2 o'clock on Tuesday, while the general readers at 3 o'clock will hear Miss Gertrude Heard review "Shadows on the Rock," by Willa Cather. After the program tea will be served, with Mrs. John A. Blair as hostess.

Nathan B. Jacobs will address the Friday afternoon meeting this week, his topic being "Housing the Worker, a Social and Economic Problem." Mr. Jacobs was a delegate to the International Housing and Town Planning Conference in Berlin last summer. Mrs. Samuel K. Cunningham will be hostess for the afternoon, Mrs. F. F. Rohrer and Mrs. Alexander P. Lindsay will pour, and Mrs. Cunningham's aides will be Mrs. Curtis C. Mechling, Mrs. J. Willard Anderson and Mrs. J. French Robinson. This will be the last regular club program until after the holidays. They will be resumed on January 8.

A dinner-dance will be held at the club on Saturday evening. Mrs. Ray H. Finger heads the committee and is being assisted by Mrs. Walter A. Wellinger, Mrs. Lloyd E. Kimmerling, Mrs. J. Clyde Whetzel, Miss Emma and Miss Margaret Ochiltree, Miss Ella English and Miss Sara Genevieve Jones.

Plans will be completed this week for the alumnae group luncheon in Hotel Schenley, at which Dr. Mary Emma Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke College and president of the American Association of University Women, will speak. The date has been changed to Saturday, January 30.

* * *

Tomorrow evening the Sisterhood and the Men's Society of the Rodef Shalom congregation will hold a joint meeting at the Temple. The speaker will be Dr. Abram Leon Sachar, director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation at the University of Illinois, who has chosen as his subject, "The Romance of the Rothschilds." Dr. Sachar was educated at Washington and Harvard universities and received his degree of doctor of philosophy from the University of Cambridge, England. He was formerly connected with the department of history at the University of Illinois. He is a national director of the Hillel Foundation. Dr. Sachar has written many articles for New Republic, Menorah Journal, Books and numerous other papers of opinion. Not long ago he published a one-volume "History of the Jews," which met with favorable comment.

The December meeting of the Beechview Women's Civic Club will be held at the clubhouse tomorrow evening. Mrs. Elmer H. Smith and Mrs. Russell Poe are the welcome committee and Mrs. Samuel Palmer is chairman of the program, which will consist of Christmas carols by the club chorus and a reading and pictures of "Morley's Ghost" under the direction of Mrs. Daisy Hinkley. The annual Christmas party will take place December 19.

* * *

Miss Frances Perkins, who was formerly executive secretary of the Consumers' League and has served on many industrial commissions in the last 20 years, is the speaker for this week's meeting of the Friday Morning Club and will have as her subject "The New Challenge to Industry." Miss Perkins is now industrial director of the state of New York, and in that capacity has compiled the most complete statistics on unemployment in the United States. She is the author of numerous books on a variety of subjects, such as "Fire Hazards in Factories," "Maternity Care" and "Compensation for Workingmen." The club meets in Carnegie Music Hall.

Friday Lecture

* * *

Mrs. Joseph Grandey, chairman of community service for the southwestern district of the State Federation, will present Mrs. D. Edwin Miller as speaker at the Parent-Teacher Association of Rochester on Wednesday, December 16. Mrs. Miller is speaking today at a safety meeting conducted by Mrs. John R. Dershuck, vice president of the Safety Council in Hazleton, Pa.

* * *

A play entitled "A Christmas Chime" will be presented by Carnegie Tech drama students following the luncheon meeting of the Sarah Sloan Scholarship Club on Friday, December 18, in the Congress clubhouse. In the cast are Olivia Kelly, Mary Boles, Robert Beale and Robert Roose. The Outlook Alliance Choral, directed by Mrs. Martin Leiseder, will sing Christmas carols.

Mrs. W. C. McClure is having a bridge luncheon at her home in Brownsville road, December 28, as a benefit for the club's stay-in-school scholarships.

* * *

Channing Pollock, author of "The House Beautiful," which is playing the Alvin next week, will be guest of honor at a tea to be given Friday afternoon at the Twentieth Century Club by the Pittsburgh Drama League. Mr. Pollock will address the members and their guests. The affair, reservations for which are being taken by Mrs. Albert Pettit, is the League's Christmas party.

* * *

The Queen's Daughters of the Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women will hold their second annual dance in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association Annex Friday, January 22. The dance will be held as a benefit for the charity program being carried on by the daughters. Mrs. Helen Amrhein Jacquette is general chairman.

Mrs. Otto G. Richter, of Kipling road, entertained at an informal tea yesterday, her guests being the aides who will assist her at the Southern Club's charity ball December 28.

115 Attend Wilkinsburg B. P. W. Emblem Breakfast

Guests from the Pittsburgh, Butler, Canonsburg, Connellsville, Derry, Greensburg, Monongahela Valley, McKeesport, New Castle, Waynesburg and Uniontown Business and Professional Women's clubs were among the 115 present yesterday for the emblem breakfast which the Wilkinsburg B. P. W. Club gave at the Penn-Lincoln Hotel. The program, which was of a religious nature, portrayed in pageant the symbols of the national federation emblem, the pageant being directed by Miss Bessie Smith. Those taking part were Virginia Hitchon, Carolyn Kinch, Anne Ort, Beulah Russell, Dorothy Stern and Bertha Walp. Miss Isabel Baumgardener sang "The Golden Key," the song dedicated by Carrie Jacobs Bond to the National Federation. Others on the program were Mrs. Janet Snyder, president of the hostess club; Miss Lillian Rogers, Miss Bobbie Cook, who sang a Christmas carol, and W. T. Avey, violinist.

Crippled Children Rehearsing Play

Daily rehearsals are being held at the Industrial Home for Crippled Children for the Christmas play to be presented by the pupils in Carnegie Music Hall the night of December 18. This year's presentation is "The Triumphs of St. Nicholas." Miss Frances E. Shirely, superintendent of the school, is directing the play.

Teachers Ask More Pay, Fewer Pupils

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—More pay, fewer pupils to instruct and a five-hour day are among demands in a program formulated by union teachers of Chicago. Chicago teachers have received but one month's pay in cash since last spring because of a shortage of money due to a tax muddle.

Gypsy Princess, $825 Gone on Wedding Day

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—"King Peter" Thompson, leader of a band of gypsies, has reported to police that his daughter, Princess Rosie, 16, and her $825 dowry are missing. He suspects that a barber in a shop across the street from the Gypsy winter quarters has gone with them.

He had drawn the $825 from a bank Saturday, he said, and placed it in his trunk, in readiness for a ceremony today which was to have united the Princess and a Gypsy boy of royal lineage, John Marks.

Industrial Expert To Address Women

Frances Perkins, industrial director of the state of New York, will speak Friday morning in Carnegie Lecture Hall at the meeting of the Friday Morning Club of the League of Women Voters. Her subject will be "Economic Phases of the Woman in Industry."

The hostesses for the meeting will include Mrs. J. Andrew Gettig, Mrs. Guy Batchelor, Mrs. Carl Coler, Mrs. Carl VanderVoort, Mrs. Carl Behrhorst and Mrs. Howard Montgomery.

East North Siders To Hear Father Cox

"Our Country's Ideals" will be the topic of an address by the Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Seventeenth street, Wednesday at a luncheon meeting of the Business Men's Association of the East Side in St. Paul's Evangelical Church, 712 East street. New officers and directors of the association will be elected.

Former N. Y. School Superintendent Dies

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Dr. Albert Leonard, 73, superintendent of public schools of New Rochelle for the last 25 years, died Saturday after an illness of two months. He retired from office November 21.

ADVERTISERS SEE GAIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—The board of directors of the Advertising Federation of America announced today that a national survey it has conducted indicates the 1932 advertising dollar will bring better results than at any time during the past two years.

Gilbert T. Hodges, president of the organization, said the survey shows a growing confidence in 1932 merchandising possibilities.

His report adds that greatly improved credit conditions and the beginning of commodity price recovery are reflected in an "improved general morale."

GREEN TAKES A PRIMARY ROLE IN WINTER COLORING

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—Green is held to be the color emblematical of both envy and hope. And so that is perhaps why we see it so much just now, the envy being that of the woman who admires our frock, coat or hat, and what the hope is, you can fill in for yourselves. But, whatever obvious or obscure reason may prevail, there is no doubt about it that green is one of the colors of this autumn and winter season. And since we have all become such adepts at using color, there is but scant fear of any one of us using the wrong shade of green, something that can easily happen unless one is very wary, and fully conscious of any defects of the complexion or coloring. A good bet is always dark green trimmed with black or brown. It is the bright greens that hold so much peril. And so by all means go in for a diet of greens, but exercises caution. Brown too is a favorite color and both green and brown are so much used together this season on both sides of the Atlantic.

* * *

SHOWN TODAY are hats, one in brown, one in green and a green coat with black. The hat with the perk little feather is by Maria Guy and is in very supple, dark brown felt. It is turned up sharply to one side and a raised tuck crosses the side top of the crown from front to back, from which point rises the wing of brown and orange feathers. The other hat is by Marcelle Lely and is of thick, dark green felt. Three bands of felt placed in tiers, the lower edge of each band being attached to the body of the hat and ending in bows at the side back. The hat is rather reminiscent of the Highland bonnet.

* * *

THE CHANEL COAT is in bright green woolen of the cheviot type, but in lighter weight and less fuzzy in surface. It is trimmed in black astrakan and has the belt only across the front of the coat, which is semi-fitted with diagonal and pointed piecings also only used in front.

Numerous Mothers Like to Act Like Children

Whenever Caroline brings a girl friend home, Mamma crashes in on the party and proceeds to grab the spotlight. She gossips, giggles, boasts of her prowess on the piano.

LIES TO GIRLS

"Dear Sally Martin:

"Can't you help me? I am at my wits' ends about my mother. I just don't know what ails her, or what to do about it.

"I am in my next year of school, and naturally I have quite a number of really nice girl friends whom I invite to our home occasionally. It is a terrible thing to say, but my mother causes me such embarrassment that I don't know what to do when I have them up.

"She is nice looking and dresses well but the thing that upsets me so is this: She insists on showing off. She talks at the top of her voice about the neighbors, the way they live, what they do and so forth. She drags out her clothes and tells the girls they cost about three times as much as they did. She asks them what their jewelry costs and makes up stories about her famous ancestors.

She tells everyone, too, that she taught music in public schools for years—that she studied it under some of the best teachers in Europe, and that she has a B. A. degree in music. Then she sits at the piano and bangs out two or three jazz pieces by ear and makes so many mistakes that the girls give each other looks and grin right in her face.

GETS HYSTERICAL

"I do feel sorry for her, for she never had a chance for an education, but why will she persist in being like this? I have tried to talk to her about it but she only cries and gets hysterical, and is ill for days. If she only knew what embarrassment she causes me! I lost some of my best friends because of her.

"I look something like her, and she will get a picture of each of us, and ask a boy friend of mine to guess which one is of her. She is 45 yet she imagines she looks no older than I do at 19.

"I suppose you'll tell me to pretend I don't notice these things and go on smiling. Well, that is exactly what I have tried to do for so long that I am almost at the end of my endurance. Sometimes I think I'd rather quit school, leave home and support myself than to stand it another day. What can I do? And what ails her?

CAROLINE.

What ails her? The same thing that ails a lot of elderly babies and play-girls and a lot of other people who get themselves into silly jams. She has refused to grow up.

She insists although she is 45 on living back in the foolish boasting giggling days of little girlhood.

SHIRKS RESPONSIBILITIES

She may not do this consciously but she is doing it just the same. And she is doing it because she is afraid to face grown-up responsibilities and too lazy and conceited to accept grown-up discipline.

She doesn't want to practice the difficult self-control which real grown-up people use—she is unwilling to sit back and take life quietly with dignity and poise. It's so much easier to "play a little girl"—to do the flirty uncontrolled things she did when she was 16.

Of course she is ridiculous—as ridiculous as an elephant trying to kid itself it's a mouse. And of course she fools no one but herself. But her egotism—her itch to grab the spot-light—won't let her realize that.

What can you do about it? Not much, I'm afraid, my dear. You might show her this article but she'll simply burst into tears again, and say that you "have no respect for your mother." For of course mothers like that want to have their cake and eat it too—want to act as silly as they please, and yet receive all the respect due dignified maturity.

So, I suspect you'll have to give up the thought of changing Mamma, and just decide to learn about life from her.

If we can't love and respect our parents for their sterling qualities we can at least profit by the fact that they are Awful Examples.

It's hard, I know, Caroline. But that's life. And you might as well prepare to take it as it comes. And if it comes too hard, let off steam on me, youngster. I'm a good safety valve.

To Be a Successful Vamp One Must Be Selfish, Declares Fay King

THE WOMAN WHO LOVES HIM MOST FACINATES HIM LEAST BECAUSE SHE IS TOO SINCERE
ONE HAS TO BE VERY SELFISH AND SELF CENTERED TO BE A SUCCESSFUL VAMP
SHE CAN'T FIGHT THE OTHER WOMAN FOR FEAR IT WOULD HURT HIM
FAY KING

By FAY KING

To be a successful vamp one must be selfish.

If you are going to worry and sympathize over a man's family, or be hurt and heartsick over anything he says or does you are not going to be much of a vamp.

For when the heart rules the head one cannot be clever and shrewd. And to be fascinating one must use their head every minute.

That's why some of the most successful vamps have failed with the one man they really loved, because the minute they were sincere and really in love they were handicapped by all the little jealousies and disappointments and heartaches and reticence that real love brings.

You can't demand and command those you love. Love is unselfish.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Answers the Veritzen Telegram

At Lillian's proposal that I should spend the night in dictating "conversation" for the unfinished part of the play that Philip Veritzen was considering I looked at her in so bewildered a fashion that she laughed aloud.

"You look exactly like a rabbit caught in a bramble with a dog getting nearer every jump."

"I feel as if he had reached me," I retorted.

"Aha!" Lillian gloated. "Getting back a little of the well-known spirit! That's better. Now this isn't half as terrifying as it appears. You know a lot of words." She grinned engagingly. "Just wind your mouth up and let it go."

"But work done like that won't be worth anything," I protested. "Mr Veritzen will be so disgusted—and justifiably—when he sees it that he will say he doesn't want the play."

"What do you mean, work done like that?" she countered, distinct irritation in her tone. "Do you think I mean revised work? I mean that first draft, which always ought to be served hot off the griddle and if you're anything like me you'll do your very best work only when Simon Legree's lash is curled over your shrinking back, and you have about nine and one-half minutes to go. Now don't waste any more of my time or yours. I'm going to make you a great playwright in spite of yourself. You haul out the first two acts of your play and 'go into the silence' with 'em until dinner. You'll just about have time to read 'em before then. Go out on this little side veranda up here and Katherine and I will see that no one disturbs you. Then after dinner, you'll be all primed to go on from there. Don't eat too many of the bottle fish the youngsters caught. I know fish are brain food, but too big a dinner will make you sleepy, and you want to be wide awake tonight. Beat it now, while I fix up an answer to this telegram and get it off. It will be short, so I'll phone it and have it rushed."

"What are you going to say?" I asked worriedly.

"Can finish play in three weeks. Rough draft of third act nearly completed. Fourth act planned, but not yet touched. Margaret Graham. Isn't that nifty?"

"I'm in your hands," I said, trying to smile. "If you think you can transfuse something of your own skill and spirit into a helpless worm of the dust, I'll do the best I can."

"Spoken like a true good little worm," she gibed. "Just so you don't squirm away from me when I impale you on the hook, that's all I ask. For oh! boy, there'll be some reeling and writhing and wriggling in coils, this night. Where's a pencil and paper? I haven't your memory. I'll forget this little piece I composed for the telegraph operator before I get to the telephone."

I went to my desk and gave her the things she wished, and then unlocked the drawer into which I had put the first two acts of my play before going to the hospital for the birth of my little daughter. When I turned toward the door she was standing, paper in hand, with her hand flung up in warning.

"Just a sec," she said in a low voice. "Don't let Dicky know about the session tonight. A Texas steer will have nothing on him in kicking capacity, and he would be perfectly justified. You haven't any business staging such a stunt after what you've been through, but this means your whole future, and excitement and hard work never hurt anybody yet."

"I won't say anything," I said. "I probably shan't see him alone."

"Oh! yes you will," she said with a wide grin. "He's just waiting the opportunity to prostrate himself all over the carpet in contrition. But here's a thought. Does he know that you haven't done what this telegram says?"

"He doesn't know much about the play," I said, and Lillian gave a low whistle, then turned to the door, abruptly.

"Then it will be safe to telephone this," she said, and I knew that she had caught back a comment which might have hurt me.

With the manuscript of my first two acts in my hand, which I found was actually trembling with frightened excitement, I opened my door and walked toward the little veranda. I was just stepping through it when Dicky caught me round the waist and drew me into the window recess near it.

"Sweetheart! are you going to forgive your boy?" he asked.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Habits Should Be Modified According to Age

It is said a man is as old as his arteries. Age is not determined by the number of years an individual has lived. It depends on the health and strength of his vital organs, as well as of the blood vessels that supply them.

Dr. Copeland

Just why some get old early and others maintain their youth and strength for a longer period of time is hard to determine. It is not always explained by the manner of living. Some persons lead lives that deserve to be severely criticized, yet their health does not seem to be impaired. Others lead carefully planned and upright lives, doing things in moderation, yet they appear to grow old in spite of their precautions.

Most authorities on this subject believe that while age can be controlled by care in living, it is largely influenced by heredity. The infant born with an extremely healthy body, which he has inherited from mother or father, is likely to retain youthful qualities when he gets old.

Please do not assume that the health given an individual at birth can be abused. That gift must be respected. There are too many individuals gifted with the blessing of health, yet do not know how to guard it. They are apt to resent any suggestions as to the proper method of living. They insist they are healthy and that there is no need for precautions. This is an unwise and may be a costly attitude.

As a man approaches middle age, he begins to realize what it means to grow old. He notices that his body is no longer capable of doing easily the things he did at an earlier age. He finds he must exert greater effort and that he tires more quickly as a result of this effort. Walking upstairs, running after a street car and carrying heavy burdens are not as easy. He does not sleep as he did.

The person who realizes the importance of these signs is indeed a wise man. While it may be true that a man is as old as he feels, nevertheless he should not struggle to do things that in his youth were everyday experiences. I do not mean that as we approach middle age we should retire and calmly await the Day of Judgment. What I do mean is that the limitations of the body, as well as of the mind, should be sensibly accepted. Habits of eating, drinking, sleeping, exercise and play must be modified according to age.

It is unnecessary to eat the same amount of food that we ate when we were younger. The importance of a complete night's rest must be appreciated. Strenuous exercise must be regarded as dangerous.

Consultation and regular conferences with the physician are of vital importance. This is particularly true and important for the woman who is approaching her change of life. For the man it is almost as important, because he undergoes physical changes that are very similar.

One thing I must stress. This is the importance and value of one rule, moderation. No matter what you do, what you are fond of, what your occupation and manner of living may be, if you are in your middle age, whatever you do, do in moderation.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Gardenia perfume is having a run right now. It is delicate and subtle and will cause the passerby to take a long breath as he toddles on. Many popular scents are bouquets or blends. That's why they have such taking names that look intriguing on the label.

In some of the up-to-snuff beauty shops, you can "try on" your lipstick, like a paper pattern. They offer cardboard lips, tinted various shades and with these you mask your own. Simpler than smearing on different colors, getting confused and making a selection.

Perspiring hands indicate an unstable nervous system. The jumpy gal needs plenty of fresh air, plenty of sleep and a good working philosophy, one that will kill off the worry bugs, put her on her feet, give her courage. Rubbing the palms of the hands with alcohol will help dry up the moisture. Talcum should be powdered into gloves before and after they are worn.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Eating Fruits

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you please tell me the correct way to remove cherry seeds from the mouth when eating them as a sauce at the table? Also mention other seeds too, please.

HENRIETTA.

1. We should take special care, when eating anything that has a seed or pit, not to let the seed or pit enter our mouths. That is why the double silver-service . . . the dessert spoon in the right hand, and the fork of corresponding size in the left hand . . . is such a perfect type of service when we eat fruits. The fruit should be separated from the pit, if there is one, with the spoon and the fork.

In the service of stewed fruits, it is the best form not to serve the fruits with the seeds, and this makes it more agreeable and certainly more convenient for the person eating the fruits.

With such fruits as prunes or peaches or plums, served with the pits, it is easy for the diner to separate the fruit from the pit, with the spoon and fork, or even when only a dessert spoon is placed. With small seeds, such as cherry pits, it is not so easy. If one gets into the mouth, remove it to the spoon, and place it on the edge of the plate.

Buying a Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My young man friend and I have been invited to a housewarming party to be given by friends. This is the question—is it proper to allow my friend to purchase the gift for both of us (which he suggested) or should we each be equally responsible for just our own gifts? I thought it correct to purchase a gift myself for the couple, but at the suggestion of my friend that he buy the gift to be given by both of us, I was rather doubtful.

We are not engaged, as we have been going around together for only four months.

L. G.

Under the circumstances it would be the best form for you to buy a gift for the housewarming, and for him to buy one. Or, if you give one together, you should insist on paying your share of it.

Household Hints

Stuff the toes of fine shoes with tissue paper instead of shoetrees; it preserves the shape better.

No matter how strongly tempted, do not keep eatables in their cans once they are opened. It is dangerous business. Pour the contents into a china bowl until ready to use.

Use rock ammonia for softening washing-up water if soda makes your hands hard and rough.

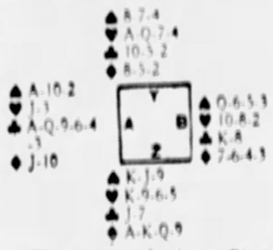
OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Carefully Plan Your Play

On the hand shown below, Z bid 1-Diamond; A overcalled with 2-Clubs; which Z doubled over passes by Y and B, to force Y either to support diamonds, collect a penalty at clubs, or bid one of the major suits. Y responded with 2-Hearts. Z bid 3-Hearts, and Y courageously carried the bid to game.



The opening lead was B's top club, followed by his last card of that suit, leaving A in the lead. Y had played his clubs 5—10, holding back the 2, so that A could not tell whether Y or B held the missing deuce, making A afraid again to lead the suit lest Y should discard a spade and Z should trump. A led his 10 diamonds, hoping that Y would credit B with having the missing J.

Y took account of stock before playing. He saw four probable trump tricks; four probable diamond tricks; dummy could trump tricks; four probable diamond tricks; dummy could trump Y's last club, giving him nine probable tricks; he must also win one spade trick to go game in case his other calculations were correct. Dummy's top trump was led, followed by a small trump; Y won the trick with his Q; the fall of A's might or might not be honest evidence that A held no more, but Y must assume it true. Dummy's ruff of the deuce of clubs obliged Y to venture a lead of diamonds before leading Z's last trump. The fall of A's J of diamonds was a relief as Y was now certain of one spade discard. He led dummy's last trump, winning the trick and returning a lead of spades; the finesse of Z's J brought out A's ace. The return lead of clubs was won with Y's last trump, and the two good diamonds and dummy's king of spades yielded game.

A player of Calgary, Alberta, states that in May, 1924, he saw the hand given below, but that nobody has yet solved the problem. Think it over until tomorrow, when the solution will be given here. Hearts are trump. Z is to lead. How can all eight tricks be won against perfect defense?

Will Sidney Lenz Best Culbertson?

SIDNEY LENZ

Followers of "Bridge Headquarters" think he will. Lenz is recognized as one of the finest bridge players in the world, and is an exponent of the "one-two-three" variation of the official system on which most of the bridge experts of the country, except Culbertson, have agreed.

Beginning Monday, December 7, Lenz will play Culbertson in a tournament of 150 rubbers lasting over a period of six weeks. He has posted $1,000 against Culbertson's $5,000 that he will win. If he loses, he must pay the forfeit to charity.

The Post-Gazette has arranged to have Lenz and Culbertson personally write their own versions of each evening's play. There could be no more interesting nor more authoritative coverage of this greatest event that the bridge world has ever seen. Order the Post-Gazette now from your dealer in order to be sure not to miss any installment of this most unusual and interesting series.

OBITUARY

The Rev. Aloysius Kausler

Bishop J. J. Hartley, Columbus, will officiate at funeral services for the Rev. Aloysius Kausler, O. M. Cap., pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Dover, O., since 1921, who died yesterday at St. Francis Hospital, Pittsburgh.

The services will be conducted at 9 a. m. Wednesday, in St. Joseph's Church, Dover. Father Kausler, who was 67, was stricken last Tuesday at the Capuchin Order house in Brookline, while attending the meeting of the councillors of St. Augustine Province of the order here. The Rev. Thomas Petrie, Pittsburgh, provincial of the Province, and the Rev. O. H. Vonlintel, Dennison, O., will assist in the funeral services.

Armstrong Funeral.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon for Alexander Armstrong, 77, who died Saturday in his home at Shafton, Pa. Services will be in his home and burial will be in Union Cemetery, Irwin. He was born in Scotland and came to Irwin 50 years ago. He was a member of the Foresters of America and the First Presbyterian Church of Irwin. He leaves seven daughters, Mrs. Mary Kanary, of Hollywood, Cal.; Mrs. Margaret Tomer, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Jessie McAlister, Mrs. Agnes Good, and Mrs. Blanche Perry, of Irwin, and Miss Helen and Miss Isabelle Armstrong at home; 23 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Mrs. Sarah A. Stilz.

Mrs. Sarah A. Bendle Stilz, widow of A. J. Stilz, died in her home at 12 Weible avenue, West Etna, yesterday. She was a member of Damascus Shrine No. 1, White Shrine of Jerusalem; Martha Chapter, No. 88, Order of Eastern Star and the First English Lutheran Church of Sharpsburg. She leaves a brother, George H. Bendle, of Pittsburgh, and three sisters, Mrs. A. C. Peightel, of Glenshaw; Mrs. L. C. McLaughlin, Aspinwall, and Mrs. J. L. Wagner, Johnstown. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the home of William Stilz, 363 Butler street, Etna.

Adam E. Freyvogel.

Funeral services for Adam E. Freyvogel, who died Saturday in his home, 347 Bailey avenue, Mt. Washington, were to be held from his home today. For 20 years he had been a pharmacist at Shaler and Sycamore streets. He was a member of the Monongahela Lodge, F. and A. M., Pennsylvania Consistory and Syria Temple. He leaves his widow, Margaret Schempp, four brothers, William T., Charles, George H. and P. A. Freyvogel, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Lehne, all of Pittsburgh.

Hohman Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Catherine S. Hohman, 70, who died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. L. Miller, of 202 Shaler street, Duquesne Heights, will be held in the Miller home tomorrow. Mrs. Hohman was born in Germany. She was a member of the German Evangelical Protestant Church of Duquesne Heights. Besides Mrs. Miller she leaves another daughter, Mrs. Mary Shipley, of Greentree; a son, Charles Hohman, of Pittsburgh; a sister and four brothers.

Dr. William A. Stewart.

Dr. William Alvah Stewart, 69, of Coraopolis Heights, died last night in Homeopathic Hospital. He was a graduate of New York Homeopathic College. He came to Pittsburgh shortly after his graduation. Soon after he became personal physician to the late George Westinghouse, accompanying him on business trips out of the city. He leaves his widow and two sons, George L. and Attorney William A. Stewart, Jr., both of Pittsburgh.

Young Funeral.

Funeral services for Charles B. Young, 66, of 429 South Braddock avenue, who died Saturday in his home were to be held this afternoon in South Side Cemetery. He leaves his widow, and two sisters, Mrs. Arthur A. Anderson and Miss Anna M. Young, both of Perrysville.

Taylor Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Amanda Taylor, 69, of the Saybrook Apartments, who died yesterday in Atlantic City, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Albert J. Freyvogel funeral home, 2638 Fifth avenue. She leaves a son, P. G. Taylor, of New York; a daughter, Mrs. John M. Sheaff, and a brother.

New York Transit Lines Show Losses

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Rapid transit lines have reported their first general decline in traffic in 16 years.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, last, subway, elevated, surface and bus lines reported to the Transit Commission a decrease of 111,300,000 passengers, or 3.4 per cent compared with the preceding year. In all, 3,131,800,000 passengers were carried.

Snow Storm Traps Tourists in Mexico

TOLUCA, Mexico, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Grave fears are held here for the safety of several automobile loads of excursionists who have been snowed in on top the volcanic mountain Xinantecatl, near here, by a severe blizzard which struck the mountain yesterday. A relief expedition has set out.

Hundreds Already Made Happy!

THE SUN-TELEGRAPH

DOLL LADY

'Honeybunches'

Read Her Message Today:—

Dear Little Girls:

As usual at this time of the year I didn't get much time to myself Sunday. The demand for "Honeybunch" dolls is so great that I again had to work all day with my assistants getting my big dolls ready for distribution. They are going out by the hundreds every day, and every "Honeybunch" that I give away makes another little girl happy beyond expression.

Meet My "Honeybunch"—The DOLL Of All Dolls—

I have found in many instances that girls who found it easy to secure their first dolly are now working for a second one. I have also found in several instances where little girls, well supplied with all the things that mean a happy Christmas for them, are getting their dolls for their less fortunate neighbors or playmates. In fact, this situation does not apply exclusively to little girls—grown ups are getting "Honeybunches" for children in other families.

Of course, there are a lot of girls too little to do what I ask, but in cases like this the mothers and the sisters, yes, and the daddies, too, are doing the work for them. And that's alright with me, so long as the little girls get their "Honeybunches."

I am getting stacks of letters from the girls who have already taken "Honeybunch" home with them. Here is what little Catherine Cipriani says: "I received my doll and like it very much, and I am sending this letter to thank the Sun-Telegraph Doll Lady for it. My girl friends are just as much tickled over 'Honeybunch' as I am."

You all know by this time that "Honeybunch" is a darling doll — 20 inches tall. Roguish, twinkling eyes that open and shut, a cheerful smile, a charming voice, dainty organdy clothes and unbreakable rubber arms and legs. She really does a lot of cute things.

If you have not had a letter from me, send the coupon in this announcement and I will tell you how easy it is to get a "Honeybunch" all for yourself.

Irene Buechell, 128 Valonia St.; Joann Mary Kramer, 304 Jackson St.; Gloria Mae Roth, 642 Harker St.; Dolores May Howell, 905 Moore St.; Carmella Gallo, 1049 Wheeler St.; Vivian Driscoll, 1327 Goebel Ave.; Estelle Firestone, 2625 Tilbury St.; Norma Jean Baehr, 4534 Carroll St.; Norine Roen Letwin, 5619 Harvard St., and Doris Wiegand, 6603 Frankstown Ave.

Among the little girls living outside of Pittsburgh who have already received their "Honeybunches" are the following: Shirley Kuntz, Beaver, Pa.; Josephine M. Bruno, Beyer, Pa.; Leona Mae Phillips, Cecil; Kathryn Doney, Mather; Betty June Cox, Midway; Maude Jane Donaldson, Midway; Dorothy McIntosh, Monessen; Betty Robertson, Smithton, and Virginia Taylor, Washington, Pa.

ESTIMATES SET FOR WORK ON RIVERS

Budget Sent Senate Asks $3,145,000 to Be Used In Pittsburgh District

Construction of a fixed dam at Montgomery Island, to replace the movable structures at Legionville, Freedom and Beaver, in the Ohio River, is provided for in the Rivers and Harbors budget sent to the Senate today. In all, $3,145 000 is set up for the improvement of the Ohio, Monongahela and Allegheny rivers. No recommendation is made for further improvement of the Youghiogheny. The total expenditure on improvements and maintenance in the Pittsburgh district as recommended in the annual report of Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, is $4,352,000.

Brown recommends spending $1,320,000 for the fixed dam in the Ohio, canalization of which has practically been completed.

All of the $700,000 recommended for improvement of the Monongahela would be spent for completion of new locks and dam No. 4 at Rostraver, near Charleroi. Open channel improvement to the Allegheny River would be restricted next year to $2,500 for repairs. Improvements at the Aspinwall dam is set at $25,000. In the Youghiogheny, $4,500 is set up for maintenance.

FASCIST CHURCH FOE QUITS

ROME, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Giovanni Giuriati resigned today as secretary of the Fascist Party and was succeeded by his assistant, Achille Starace.

Giuriati's resignation has been talked of since September, when the government reached an agreement with the Vatican on the Catholic action troubles. It was said then that his removal had been demanded by the Vatican because of a speech he made at Milan in connection with those troubles and because the Vatican held him responsible, by virtue of his office, for raids on Catholic clubs.

Iron Lung Champion Happy on 100th Day

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—Herbert Fuchs, 15, was cheerful and brave today when he started the one hundredth day of confinement in an "iron lung," a world's record for keeping alive under artificial respiration.

Fuchs, a high school student, was taken to a hospital, suffering from infantile paralysis, more than three months ago. He has been in the respirator ever since, except for half an hour twice a day.

Woman's Shot Halts Murder Suspect

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—Mrs. Gladys Blummer, 34-year-old wife of a Philadelphia continuation school teacher, early today aided police in the capture of Daniel Williams, 29-year-old Negro, alleged slayer of James Jefferson, 23, also colored, fleeing through their yard. When the fleeing man disregarded a shouted warning Mrs. Blummer fired a shot which disabled Williams.

Washington Held First to Make Ice Cream

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—George Washington was credited today with being the first person to make ice cream.

The first President's own words were quoted in support of the claim by the George Washington Bicentennial Commission. His cash memorandum book on May 17, 1784, contained an expenditure for a "cream machine for ice."

The commission said it was "willing to give Washington credit for it until better proof is forthcoming in favor of someone else."

'DRAFT BAKER' DRIVE OPENS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Movements for two Democratic presidential possibilities — Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, and Newton D. Baker, of Ohio—stepped out briskly just as Congress met.

The nomination of Roosevelt on the first ballot was predicted last night by James A. Farley, New York Democratic state chairman, after a round of talks with congressional leaders.

Out in Ohio a "Draft Baker" campaign was announced by Martin L. Davey, the Democratic nominee for governor of that state in 1928.

Baker, who declined to become an active candidate, waved the draft movement aside deftly by saying he expected Ohio's delegation to be pledged for Gov. White. He said nothing about refusing the nomination.

Farley stopped over here en route to Warm Springs, Ga., to confer with Gov. Roosevelt. Among other things, he will talk with the Governor over the possibility of entering the state presidential primaries in the spring.

Westinghouse Vets Name Hipple Head

J. M. Hipple, general works manager of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, has been elected president of the Westinghouse Veterans' Employe Association. He was made works manager at East Pittsburgh in 1927 and was appointed general works manager in June.

Mr. Hipple

Other officers elected are vice president, Frank R. Ketterling; secretary, C. Hayes Long, and treasurer, P. S. Bennett. George B. Duncan was elected a director.

Dolores Del Rio To Testify in Suit

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—(INS.)—Dolores Del Rio, "beautiful, impetuous and impractical" Mexican film actress, according to her former attorney, Gunther Lessing, was to take the witness stand today to combat Lessing's claim that she owed him $31,000 for "special and extraordinary services."

Miss Del Rio was expected to contend that she owed Lessing only $4,000, which she paid.

3 IN DISTRICT DIE OF BURNS

A man, a woman and a little girl died yesterday from burns, according to reports made to the Coroner.

Mrs. Mary Trione, 56, died in Presbyterian Hospital from burns suffered Saturday when an explosion and fire damaged the home of Clem McDonald, of Gill Hall, Jefferson Township. The explosion occurred when Mrs. Trione, alone in the house, attempted to light a fire in a room in which gas had accumulated. Fire followed the explosion. The loss was estimated at $4,000.

Nellie Eberly, 6, of West Newton, died in McKeesport Hospital yesterday from burns suffered when her clothing ignited from a gas fire in her home at West Newton Saturday.

Simon Hughes, 53, of Imperial, who sought to hasten a fire in his home Saturday with oil, died in Mercy Hospital. The report to the Coroner indicated he poured oil into a grate when he was building a fire and received fatal burns.

RAIL WORKERS STUDY WAGES

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Union labor began to deliberate today the proposal of the nation's railroads for a voluntary 10 per cent cut in wages.

Reduction of wages has been put up to the employes as something that must come if the carriers are to escape economic ruin. And there have been many statements from the employers' side that if the cut were not accepted voluntarily, the roads would make every effort to have reductions forced on the men.

Labor leaders, on the other hand, have suggested that the men might be willing to accept shorter hours so that work could be spread, but asserted that "labor can not be called upon to carry a dole to idle capital." It is more necessary to maintain the families of the working men, they contend, than it is to pay dividends to stockholders.

Madrid Telephones Targets for Bombs

MADRID, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Police arrested six men today in connection with what they described as an anarchist plot to bomb the city's telephone exchanges. A number of bombs were discovered and one exploded, causing some damage to the telephone office where it had been planted.

Uniontown Mayor's Salary Held Back

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 7.—Mayor Luther S. Crawford's salary for November and December is being held up pending a settlement of fines of $592 collected during May, June, July and August in accordance with action taken this afternoon by the City Council sitting in special session.

Boy Shoots Sister After Burglar Hunt

CHARLEROI, Pa., Dec. 7.—A father's search for burglars early today culminated in the shooting of Sue Moore, 12, of Calvary street, shot in the hip by her brother, William, 8. After the father ended his burglar hunt, he placed the shotgun on the porch, where his son found it.

Knox School Pupils To Get Hot Lunches

A daily hot lunch for 150 pupils of the Knox Public School, Brownsville road, was to be inaugurated today by members of the Pittsburgh chapter of the Mt. Vernon Seminary Alumni Association, who have turned over a portion of their treasury funds for the project. Utensils will be furnished by the Board of Education. Anonymous donors and downtown stores also will assist. Mrs. S. Davidson Herron is chairman of a committee of 20 women providing the lunches.

Railway Asks Permit For $100,000 Repairs

Permission to begin a bridge reconstruction program in Allegheny County amounting to $100,000, has been asked of the Public Service Commission by the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad. Four of the bridges are in Pittsburgh.

They are the Oak street crossing, Thirty-second Ward; Banksville avenue, Nineteenth Ward; Timberland and Edgebrook avenues, Eighteenth Ward, and Hargrove street, Nineteenth Ward.

'Herb Healer' Loses Plea for Rehearing

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Reargument of the case of Harvey M. Allison, convicted and sentenced in the Allegheny County Court of Quarter Sessions for practicing medicine without a permit was refused today in an order handed down by the Superior Court.

Allison obtained a certificate to treat the sick with "herbs and massage" and was convicted after the death of Geneva Foster, one of his patients. His conviction was affirmed last month by the Superior Court.

Hunters Warned Of Heart Strain

A warning of the danger of heart strain in hunting for deer has been issued in a bulletin of the Allegheny County Medical Society. It declares men over 40, unaccustomed to outdoor sports, should be examined by a physician before joining in the hunt.

It is pointed out the physical strain of hill-climbing, hurry and excitement was undoubtedly connected with four deaths from heart disease on the opening day of deer season.

Policeman Dodges Auto, Finds Liquor

Phillip Randazzo, 22, of 1018 Brown street, ran down Patrolman John Brown, Brown said, at Isabella and Sandusky streets. Brown reported finding 25 gallons of moonshine in Randazzo's car. Randazzo was held for court.

Safe Crackers Get $50 in East End

Robbers broke open the safe in the office of the Penn Realty Company, 4118 Penn avenue, by knocking off the combination and escaped with $50, police were notified today.

A BARGAIN for us
is a BARGAIN for you

We've learned a few things behind the grocery counter, and one of them is not to argue with a woman. So, as long as our customers want good food at low prices, that's what we're going to give them, and without any words about it.

We keep our prices down by keeping our expenses down, and by keeping our profit down; and by selling for less when we buy for less.

When we find a bargain in the food markets of the world, it is a bargain for you. The money we save by buying in large quantities does not mean higher profits for us, but lower prices for our customers.

ANOTHER WESTERN :-: Woolsey to Put Comedy In Wide Open Spaces

Richard Dix to Play Lead In 'Frontier,' Under Ruggles' Direction

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 7.

Whatever else happens, R-K-O will start "Frontier" early in 1932.

I learned several other interesting things today about this coming western. First, Wesley Ruggles will direct it, even if he doesn't remain at R-K-O for other pictures. Next, Robert Woolsey will have a featured comedy role.

Obviously, this throws a hitch in the plans of Woolsey and Bert Wheeler to return to Broadway in January to do a show. Since "Frontier" is a special, it probably will be several months in filming. Adverse weather on locations might extend the shooting schedule even further.

Richard Dix

In case you missed previous announcements, Richard Dix, Irene Dunne, Edna May Oliver and Roscoe Ates are named for the cast. And William Le Baron, producer of "Cimarron," will be in charge.

THEY ARE SAYING

Well, on to the gossip. Douglas MacLean has resigned as associate producer at R-K-O. That leaves only one, Louis Sereckey. . . . The Wampas (motion picture men) will give a Christmas party to this year's crop of baby stars on the 15. Wonder what Fox will do for their debutante stars? . . . Pathe is glad Ann Harding didn't fly to Florida. Yesterday, they received the following wire from Harry Bannister in Winslow, Ariz.: "Forced down by snow and blizzard. Out of gas and dropped through storm for perfect dead-stick landing beside grave-yard." . . . Paul Lukas says he has to deny himself the company of his Hungarian friends, because talking his native tongue spoils his English. He and his wife talk English at all times. . . . Sylvia Sidney is spending her between-pictures vacation by having some wisdom teeth extracted. . . . Kathryn Crawford has a part in Marion Davies' new picture, "Polly of the Circus." . . . The freaks in M. G. M.'s sideshow picture are the worst autograph hounds in Hollywood.

Sylvia Sidney

WHAT, AGAIN?

Paramount has taken Eleanor Boardman out of another film. Kay Francis will have the role she was supposed to have played in "The Black Robe." Kay was to have been in the Bancroft cast, but that story's off the list now. Another bit of news in Hollywood. Helene Costello will get the lead opposite Tom Mix after all. The picture, "Destry Rides Again" now is slated to start the latter part of January.

Class Gives Supper In Church 2 Nights

The Four Leaf Clover class of the Mt. Washington United Presbyterian Church will hold a supper Wednesday and Thursday nights in the social rooms of the church, Bailey and Haberman avenues. Proceeds will be added to the church building fund.

Things I Never Noodle Now

(Hit me again. I can't see straight.)

Los Angeles and Hollywood have furnished but two stars for motion pictures—Jackie Coogan and Jackie Cooper. Set down in the center of more than a million population, one would naturally expect the motion picture industry to have drawn heavily on its native sons and daughters, but Los Angeles and Hollywood combined have given to the screen fewer players than many of the smaller cities of the East. A search through the long list of motion picture players reveals that, aside from Coogan and Cooper, the actors and actresses of the screen who were actually born in either Los Angeles or Hollywood are William Bakewell, Charles Ruggles, Frances Dee, Betty Blythe and Mary McAllister.

This assertion is not easy to believe, yet it is backed up by the biographies of the players themselves.

New York has given more stars to the screen than any other city in the United States, with Philadelphia a close second.

Next in importance is Chicago with Gloria Swanson, Polly Moran, Ralph Bellamy, Agnes Ayres, Rex Bell and Sue Carol.

San Francisco has outstripped Los Angeles in furnishing native sons and daughters to the screen. Among the prominent players born in the Bay City are George O'Brien, Ruth Roland, George Marion, Aileen Pringle, Carmel Myers, Walter Catlett, Roy D'Arcy and Lawrence Gray.

Brooklyn has more than furnished its quota in Clara Bow, Marion Davies, Helen Twelvetrees and Edward Crandall.

Kansas City can boast of sending Wallace and Noah Beery, Marguerite Churchill, William Pawley, Marjorie Beebe and David Rollins to cinema careers.

Among the cities that have furnished two prominent players for the screen are Buffalo, with Irene Rich and Robert McWade; Milwaukee, Spencer Tracy and Ben Bard; St. Paul, Minn., Richard Dix and Allan Dinehart; Pittsburgh, Lois Moran and Thomas Meighan.

Linda Watkins comes from Boston; Conrad Nagel is a native of Keokuk, Ia.; Sally O'Neil was born in Bayonne, N. J.; Warner Baxter was born in Columbus, O.; Joan Bennett first saw the light of day at Palisades, N. J.; Douglas Fairbanks is a native of Denver; Ann Harding was born in San Antonio, Tex.; Norma Talmadge is from Niagara Falls; Harold Lloyd was born in Burchard, Neb.; John Gilbert is from Logan, Utah; Charles Farrell was born in Walpole, Mass.; Bebe Daniels is from Dallas, Tex., and Joan Crawford comes from Galveston, Tex.

Stars and featured players come from all parts of the United States and most of them from small towns. Here are a few more: Louise Dresser, Evansville, Ind.; Gary Cooper, Helena, Mont.; Betty Compson, Beaver, Utah; Lew Cody, Waterville, Me.; Earl Foxe, Oxford, O.; John Boles, Greenville, Tex.; Will Rogers, Oologah, Indian Territory; Mary Brian, Corsicana, Tex.; Louise Fazenda, Lafayette, Ind.; Hedda Hopper, Altoona, Pa.; Bessie Love, Midland, Tex.; Carole Lombard, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Joel McCrea, South Pasadena, Cal.; Anita Page, Flushing, N. Y.; James Hall, Dallas, Tex.; Oliver Hardy, Atlanta, Ga.; Charles Rogers, Olathe, Kan.; Charles Bickford, Cambridge, Mass.; Lilyan Tashman, New York City; Oscar Apfel, Cleveland, O.; Una Merkel, Covington, Ky.; Fatty Arbuckle, Dallas, Tex.; Richard Arlen, Charlottesville, Va.; Mary Astor, Quincy, Ill., and William Haines, Staunton, Va.

Many stars and featured players have come from abroad. These include Elissa Landi, born in Venice, Italy; Charles Chaplin, London, England; Greta Garbo, Stockholm, Sweden; Conchita Montenegro, San Sebastian, Spain; Marlene Dietrich, Germany; George Arliss, London, England; J. M. Kerrigan, Dublin, Ireland; Victor McLaglen, London, England; Lumsden Hare, Cashiel, Ireland; Clive Brook, London, England; Paul Cavanaugh, Chiselhurst, England; George Stone, Lodz, Poland; Greta Nissen, Oslo, Norway; Nils Asther, Malmo, Sweden; Maureen O'Sullivan, Boyle, Ireland, and Pola Negri, from "Poland to Polo" in ½ a generation!

The backgrounds of the various successful motion picture directors of Hollywood make interesting reading. The question where do they come from and what did they do before they became directors is frequently asked. Here are the answers: Frank Borzage, famous for his "7th Heaven" and "Bad Girl," worked in the silver mines in Utah to earn money with which to pay his tuition in a theatrical school.

Clarence Brown was an automotive engineer and, at one time, manufactured automobiles under the firm name of The Brown Automobile Company. Henry King, who directed "Over the Hill," drove a chariot in the hippodrome races of a circus. King Vidor was a short story writer. Allan Dwan was a civil engineer.

Victor Fleming was an automobile racing driver and competed in several of the Vanderbilt Cup races. William K. Howard, of "Trans-Atlantic" fame, graduated from college with a degree of engineering, but began his business career by managing a motion picture theater in Cincinnati. Paul Fajos was a bacteriologist for the Rockefeller Institute. Alfred L. Werker was a ballyhoo man for a traveling medicine show. Author Gregor was Austrian ambassador to the Argentine. Alfred Santell was an architect. Kenneth MacKenna was secretary to J. Pierpont Morgan. Sidney Lanfield was a piano player for Anna Chandler. Roland Brown was a laborer and also a police sergeant in Detroit. Herbert Brenon was a call boy at Daly's Theater in New York. James Cruze was a professional boxer. Mervyn Leroy was a vaudeville performer. George Fitzmaurice was an artist. D. W. Griffith and Monta Bell were expert newspapermen.

In less wordage, the smaller towns have contributed America's Better-Knowns. Of course, the touchy Big-Towner can snap back with: "But, you dope! There are more smaller towns!" And the smaller towns can prolong the argument with: "I know—and the Bigger Towns have the Bigger Heads, the Bigger Mouths and, need I add—the Bigger Breadlines? What have the Bigger Towns contributed? The Capones (Brooklyn)—the Harry Thaws (Pittsburgh)—the Stimsons and Winchells (New York City)???"

"Yeh!" the Big Towns could sass back: "Poddin my high hattitude—but not the Heflins—my friend, and NOT the Volsteads!""

DOG TEAM AIDS MISSIONARIES

SEWARD, Alaska, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Accompanied by a dog team, Brothers George Feltes and Martial Lapeyre, missionary-aviators, were en route from Tacotna today back to the site of their forced landing two weeks ago, near Crater Peak.

The brothers, with Charles Gobel, the dog team driver, started yesterday on the 30-mile trek to the plane.

The missionaries were flying from McGrath to Holy Cross, on the Yukon River, when their plane developed motor trouble. They landed in a level area, expecting to check over the motor and take off but found the snow too deep. They were marooned 11 days and suffered intensely from hunger and cold.

Their plane, contrary to first reports, was not damaged in landing. The brothers exhausted their fuel supply, however, in keeping up a fire.

Vachel Lindsay to Be Buried Near Lincoln

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Messages of condolence and regret poured in today to the family of Nicholas Vachel Lindsay, one of America's leading modern poets, who died at his home here Saturday.

Funeral services for Lindsay will be held this afternoon in the First Christian Church of Springfield. Burial will be in Oak Ridge Cemetery, where Abraham Lincoln is buried.

CITES HISTORY OF SEAL SALE

As the annual Christmas seal sale of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh entered its second week today, John F. Casey, Christmas seal chairman, revealed the activity's progress since 1907 from a modest beginning, condemned to failure, to its present nation-wide scope.

The first seal in America was designed by Miss Emily Bissell, of Wilmington, Del., and the first sale was launched by her friends, Casey said. Miss Bissell designed the seal after reading an article by the late Jacob Riis, leader in social reform, on the sale of seals for fighting tuberculosis in Denmark. Denmark's seals were originated by a postal clerk in Copenhagen, Einar Holboell, in 1903, four years before its inauguration in America.

The Pittsburgh League is one of the oldest in the country, Casey said, and was one of the first to sell health seals. This is Pittsburgh's twenty-fifth annual sale.

St. Louis Steel Man, Philanthropist, Dies

BOSTON, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Clarence H. Howard, 68, of St. Louis, steel magnate, philanthropist and prominent Boy Scout sponsor, died yesterday in the Christian Science Sanitarium.

He was for more than 23 years head of the Commonwealth Steel Company, of Granite City, Ill., retiring last April, two years after the company was merged with General Steel Castings.

Cagney Tries Racket in Warner

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

James Cagney, the lad who got "bumped off" so dramatically in "The Public Enemy," is still trying to beat the cops. This time in "Blonde Crazy," new feature in the Warner, he's seen as a bellhop who branches out as a confidence man. And Joan Blondell is present as a chambermaid who branches out with him.

It is a pleasant, breezy picture.

Cagney has it all figured out that with his brains and with Joan's looks, the two of them ought to go big in the easy money racket. They make a lonely businessman come across with $5,000 and then they launch out after the big "dough."

But Cagney isn't as smart as he thought. Another confidence man, aided and abetted by a blonde who is as blonde as Joan, takes him over in a big way, leaving him "broke."

Now, in an effort to make a quick financial comeback, Cagney goes in for a little burglary. And it is this "job" that lands him in jail near the finale, after a wild motor chase through big town traffic.

However, numerous things happen before that. For one thing, Cagney gets even with the confidence man who tricked him out of the $5,000. For another, he attends a wedding, but as an outsider only—Joan marrying another man.

In the end, though, Joan comes back to him. There's a closeup in jail. She promises to wait for him.

Poet's Girl

Harris Screen Offers Two Pictures

"Chinatown After Dark," a melodrama of intrigue in an atmosphere of opium and chop suey, and "Smart Woman," a comedy romance, are current features in the Harris. Barbara Kent, Rex Lease, Carmel Myers and Edmund Breese appear in "Chinatown After Dark." The cast of "Smart Woman" includes Mary Astor, Edward Everett Horton and the late Robert Ames.

'Ghandi' Is Film Star's Motor Car Horn

"Ghandi," Marion Davies' pet daschund, has appointed himself to save wear and tear on her automobile horn. The German "frankfurter" hound rides on the front seat with the driver and scares traffic out of the way with his raucous bark.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Blossom Time" in the Alvin will be tonight and thereafter for a week, with the customary Wed and Sat Mats.

Next week the attraction in this theater will be "The House Beautiful," by Channing Pollock, third in the Professional Players' series. Mary Philips and James Bell head the cast. Scenes of the play are changed without lowering of the curtain, the effect being said to be quite movie-like. One may box-office it by Thursday.

* * *

* * *

Nixon audiences, beginning tonight, will watch "As Husbands Go," a Rachel Crothers comedy that will have Catharine Doucet and Jay Fassett in the leading roles. There'll be midweek and week-end matinees as usual. Next week this theater will be dark.

* * *

Small Timer says the bass drum may be hollow and noisy but you can't beat it for being on time.

* * *

Yule week in the Alvin will be blank until Christmas Day, itself, arrives, when Mary Roland will be seen in a variation of the tree business—"The Vinegar Tree." It will play two days of that week and all of the succeeding one.

Ethel Barrymore, who was scheduled to arrive earlier, will be the fifth—or February—offering of the Professional Players in the Alvin, her vehicle to be "The School for Scandal."

* * *

Marie Dressler Admits She's 60 Years Young

Myrna Loy, Kathryn Crawford, Barbara Kent, Richard Cromwell and other members of the cast crowded around her to wish her many more happy returns of the day.

Someone jokingly asked her how old she was, and Miss Dressler replied, "I'm 60 years young—and if I keep on feeling younger, I'm going to start in all over again and play ingenues!"

Buster Keaton Making 'Cardboard Lover'

Production has started at Culver City on "Her Cardboard Lover," Buster Keaton's next starring vehicle for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, under direction of Edward Sedgwick. The cast for the new picture includes Irene Purcell, Jimmy Durante, Gilbert Roland, Polly Moran and Mona Maris. "Her Cardboard Lover" was made once as a silent film and is adapted from the successful stage play of the same name.

Jean Hersholt Meets Real Gangster

Problems of Parents In Film Drama

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

SOME 12 YEARS AGO a kid of 16 made his appearance in a broker's office. He presented the concern with a certified check for $10,000 and told his broker that he was going to play the market with the 10 grand as his capital. When the boy had left, the broker visited the boy's father and asked him how come.

The father was not an exceedingly wealthy man. He was comfortably situated, but he was far from the millionaire class. Offering the broker a cigar, he sat back in his chair and spoke his mind.

"You may think that I'm a very foolish man," he said, "but that remains to be seen. The situation is very simple.

"I love my boy. Aside from my wife, he's the only thing in the world that I give a darn about. I want him to be a real man. And even though he's only 16 right now, I know he's going to be the man I want him to be.

"He came to me some months ago and told me he had a desire to play the market. I laughed at him and told him to go back to his studies and forget a racket that very few grown men could beat. He said nothing more at the time.

"The next day, however, he spoke about it again. The following day, too. Day after day, week after week, that kid talked nothing but stock, stock, stock. Then I began to consider the matter seriously.

"After all, why not? Although I may have a strange way of thinking, I began to wonder if this wouldn't be a good way of teaching my son the value of money. If I gave him some and he promptly lost it, he would have gained a lesson in life that he would never forget. More than that, he would gain much experience in the ways of the world among men of affairs.

"I finally decided to give the boy his lesson. I gave him that check for $10,000 and told him to bring it to your concern. He is a minor, but you are to let him play any way he wishes.

"Only one thing, however. I do not want him to go over the $10,000 mark. When that is gone, he is finished. Beyond that $10,000, he has no money—and I do not intend to give him any more. I will not be responsible if he goes over the line. Understand?"

The broker nodded. As they walked to the door, the father placed his arm around the broker's shoulder.

"Don't think me insane," he asserted, "You know that I'm not rolling in money, and that I can't afford to throw $10,000 in the gutter.

"I'm merely investing that money. I'm not investing it in an attempt to teach my son that he should not gamble in life. If he learns that lesson, my money has been well spent.

"That's all my friend. Take care of my boy."

As somebody once pointed out, the correct Wall street motto is that fools rush in where angels fear to trade. This boy was no exception. He didn't know one stock from the other—but he picked one out of the list and played. Then he picked another. Within three weeks, he had doubled his original capital of $10,000.

When the father heard about it, he was amazed. He called his son to him.

"Don't you think you'd better quit right now?" he asked. "After all, you were only lucky. You made a $10,000 profit and that, in itself, is almost unbelievable. Better quit while the quitting is good.

The boy smiled confidently.

"When you gave me that money, you told me it was mine to play with. You're not going to back out now. You simply can't. Just wait and see. I'll wind up as a millionaire before a year has passed."

When the boy left him, the father's face was a study. He hadn't figured on a situation such as this. The money he had invested to save his boy from gambling had turned the youth into a gambler. . . .

* * *

Within six months, the boy was the talk of the street. His bankroll had leaped to some $90,000. There was no stopping the kid. Every stock he touched seemed to react immediately.

The brokers couldn't figure it out at all. They knew the boy knew nothing. Yet he won. And on Wall street—as on any other street in the world—that's all that counts.

It became the customary thing to ask the boy for tips. Men who were three and four times his age wandered over to his chair before the board and asked for tips. He smiled at them in a condescending manner and named something that sounded good. As they scurried away to follow his advice, he smiled happily to himself. He didn't know whether his tip was a breakfast food or a copper mine. What difference?

The boy bought himself a luxurious car and hired a liveried chauffeur. He considered the purchase of a yacht—but decided to wait a few months before buying one. On Saturdays, there were always preparations for a torrid week-end. And on Mondays there were always terrific headaches.

At this point in the boy's career, there was no holding the father. He talked of nothing but his boy. He talked about him so much that friends began to run when they saw him coming. His boy. His boy! HIS BOY!

"Yes sir," he would cry, "I guess you've heard about my boy. Yes, indeed. I'm his father. The boy wonder of Wall Street, they call him. Yes, sir, that's my boy.

"He's a marvel all right. He's an absolute sensation. I gave him his first start, you know. Certainly. I had a hunch the boy would be a genius in that line so I advanced him his original capital.

"They can't stop him now. No, sir. The boy wonder of Wall Street, they call him. That's my boy. . . ."

* * *

The break always comes. It came to the boy, too. It happened on a Monday when the boy's father was traveling somewhere in the middle west.

The boy decided to make a killing. The money rolled in so easily that the boy began to feel his lack of capital. If he made a $5,000 profit—pencil and paper proved he could have made $50,000 just as easily. He needed more money. He had around $100,000. He wanted at least $500,000 to play with.

He picked out his stock. He instructed his broker to buy it on margin when the market opened on Monday morning. On Saturday he left with a party for the inevitable week-end.

That week-end was a little longer than the others. He didn't get back to town until late Monday afternoon. Then he heard the news.

The stock he picked had dropped 12 points. There was no money to cover. The boy was wiped out. He had even lost the $10,000 that his father had originally advanced.

The following morning he was hurriedly summoned to his home. He found his mother in bed, sobbing bitterly. As he dropped to her side, she pointed to a telegram on the table. He read it—and almost collapsed.

His father had been in a railroad wreck just outside of Pittsburgh, and had been killed.

"The body has been identified," the telegram read. "It will be sent home at once."

Several days after the father had been placed at rest, the mother called her son to her.

"Dear," she said quietly, "I don't want you to feel badly about this. But I must tell you. We are penniless. Your father left nothing."

The boy looked at his mother with frightened eyes.

"But how?" he stammered. "I don't understand. I thought father was well off. I mean—"

"He was, dear," responded his mother wearily, "but that was before you began to make that money on the market. He believed so implicitly in you that he ordered his broker to follow you in everything you did.

"He played with you, my son. When you lost, he lost, too."

They sold their furnishings. His mother gave him a portion of the proceeds, and then left town to keep house for a wealthy family in the Catskill Mountains. He never saw her again. She died six months later.

The boy today is but 28 years of age. He looks 15 years older. At the present moment he is working in a store not far from New York. He has only one ambition in life.

"I'm saving all my money," he says. "When I get enough I'm going back to New York and tackle Wall street again. They can't beat me twice."

Walton, 14 Others Face Fraud Trial

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Fifteen persons, including J. C. "Jack" Walton, ousted Oklahoma Governor, faced trial on mail fraud charges in Federal Court here today in connection with operations of the Universal Oil and Gas Company.

Rothenberg Critic Gets New Trip To Workhouse

Bill Murray, letter writer and familiar figure in Magistrate Leo Rothenberg's court, was back in the workhouse today, sentenced to 10 days on a drunkenness charge. Murray, a regular visitor to the magistrate's domain, was shown clemency and discharged three days ago when he turned up there after he had written a letter to the Judge criticizing him for a former sentence of 30 days on the same charge. Murray, in his letter, declared it was unfair to give him that long when another offender who had a worse record was sentenced to only five days.

Yesterday, Rothenberg sentenced Murray to 30 days, but relented and changed it to 10 days so he wouldn't have to spend Christmas in the workhouse.

MILK COST CUT 2 CENTS QUART

A new schedule of retail prices for milk delivered in the Pittsburgh district went into effect today. Customers were notified of the changes, through leaflets left with their deliveries yesterday and this morning. The new price is 9 cents a quart, a reduction of 2 cents a quart.

The price drop is the outcome of a conference Saturday between farmer producers of the Dairymen's Co-operative Sales Company and the milk distributors of Pittsburgh.

It was said the farmers' production has been increasing as consumption declined due to economic conditions, resulting in a large volume of surplus milk. Distributors and officials of the sales company feel that at the new price, consumers can afford to use increased quantities and thereby absorb some of the surplus being shipped to the Pittsburgh market.

5 Killed, 8 Hurt by Autos in District Over Weekend

CROSSING CRASH TAKES 2 LIVES IN WEST ETNA

Freight Train Wrecks Car of Mt. Oliver Man; Woman Dies After Accident

Five persons were killed and a number of others were injured, several seriously, in automobile crashes reported in the Pittsburgh district over the week-end.

Wasil Pellich, 45, of Grant street, Heidelberg, was killed yesterday when struck by an automobile while crossing the new Heidelberg Bridge. It was the first accident on the new span which crosses Chartiers Creek. George Kovac, of 775 Mill street, Bridgeville, alleged driver, was arrested by Heidelberg police.

Mrs. Mary A. Llewellyn, 75, of 1416 McFarland road, Dormont, mother of Dr. G. S. Llewellyn, of the City Home at Mayview, died late yesterday in her home of shock induced earlier in the day when the automobile in which she was returning home from Atlantic City was struck by a hit-run driver near Jennerstown. Mrs. Llewellyn was being returned to the city from the coast resort by her son.

Harry A. Fleisner, 35, of 305 Hays street, Mt. Oliver, and Mrs. Clara Pawalla, 21, of 322 Robinson street, were killed when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Baltimore and Ohio freight train at the Butler crossing in West Etna early yesterday.

John Brown, of Coraopolis, died in Valley Hospital, Sewickley, yesterday from injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile on the Carnot road George Olmer, alleged driver of the car, was to be turned over to the Coroner today.

TROLLEY, AUTO CRASH

Two men, a woman and a child were injured when an automobile collided with a street car at Bidwell street and Pennsylvania avenue early today.

The injured are Francis Gunda, 30, of 804 James street; John Patten, 35, of 1330 Federal street; Mrs. Anna Gunda, and Jane Orr, 6, of 1230 Franklin street. All were passengers in the automobile driven, police said, by Ignatius Summers, 25, of Glenshaw.

Dr. E. J. Provost and his wife were injured slightly yesterday near Charleroi when their automobile skidded on the highway and swerved into an abutment.

MAN RUN DOWN

John Piar, 38, of West New Kensington, was in a serious condition in Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington, suffering concussion of the brain, lacerations of the head and body and a possible fracture of the skull, received when he stepped in front of an automobile driven by Fred Lang, of 110 East Tenth street, West Homestead, near the West New Kensington Bridge, late Saturday, according to a hospital report.

Max Berstein, 48, of 1036 Fourth avenue, New Kensington, received a broken left leg when he was struck by an automobile driven by John Meloskie, of 1615 Kenneth avenue, New Kensington, while crossing the street at Tenth street and Third avenue, New Kensington, late Saturday, according to a police report.

MISS RUTH MARZOLF AND HER'S AND HER DAD'S PRIZES

Miss Marzolf, high school senior, Anderson road, near Millvale, and the two deer she and her father brought down in Medix Run, Elk County, Pa. Ruth's 17, is hunting in her first season. When the small game season (also her first) opened, she got 17 rabbits.

HUNTING TOLL GROWS TO 31

Associated Press.

The deaths of six hunters over the week-end brought to 31 the number of fatalities that occurred during the first five days of Pennsylvania's deer season.

Although there are still seven days of hunting left for Pennsylvania sportsmen, the death toll already has nearly tripled the number of fatalities in 1930, when 11 deer hunters were killed.

Those who died over the week-end included: Darrell Salada, 22, Troutville, a deputy game warden, fatally wounded by a stray bullet while hunting near Dubois on Saturday.

Hunting Trip Fatal to Banker

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Alfred Singleton Paull, 47, Wheeling businessman, banker and clubman, was shot to death late Saturday when the shotgun he was carrying on a rabbit hunt, discharged while he was climbing a fence near his home. The charge struck him in the heart.

30TH EXHIBIT SET NEW MARK

A new record for attendance was established by the thirtieth Carnegie Institute International, which closed last night after 161,747 persons had viewed the paintings during the six weeks' display. This was 20,406 greater than the attendance last year. Officials at the institute state the attendance has increased more than five times in the last 10 years.

Tomorrow the shipment of the American paintings back to their owners will begin. Next week all the European paintings will be sent to the Baltimore Museum of Art, where they are to be exhibited in January. From there they will be sent to St. Louis for a show and then be returned to the institute here for shipment back to Europe.

Congress Has Plenty of Bills Ready for Veto

—By Arthur (Bugs) Baer—

The boys have a lot of work ahead of them. It's a good thing for the nation that they never catch up to it.

The big fight is for the speakership of the House and the Democrats claim that by a hopeless majority.

The graybeards who call themselves Young Republicans are after the scalp now being worn by Senator Moses.

On that scalp are a few hairs, many scars and a couple of lumps. Altogether, a very fine example of diversified farming.

The architect who designed the golden dome on the Capitol had a sense of humor. He built it in the shape of an inverted waste basket.

Pastor Lauds Painting As Lesson on Suicide

"Suicide in Costume," Franklin C. Watkins' prize winner in the Carnegie International exhibition of paintings, is, despite its ugliness, a great picture, magnificently conceived, the Rev. Dr. Frank Edwin Smith, of the First Unitarian Church, declared in a sermon yesterday. He said:

"The picture is great because of its portent, because of what it means, and because of the lesson it brings. It is not necessary that art should always please to be great art, and art to be realistic and helpful must often express things not as we should wish them but as they actually are.

"This is what Mr. Watkins has evidently tried to do in his painting. In a practical and symbolical way he has attempted to picture suicide in all its ugliness.

"It is always in costume. One may be the life of the party one week and a victim of suicide the next. They show one nature to the public, concealing the other within themselves—they costume the personality within. It is only in the hour of suicide that we realize the tremendous strength of the trouble that surged through their minds.

"The ugliness of suicide has been well pictured by Mr. Watkins in his prize picture. One sees in it the distorted form of the victim as he lies upon the table. His repulsive face one cannot forget. The costume now falls back and the gun appears in all its deadliness. There is the horn in stern mockery, that was used by the victim of suicide which he loudly used in the moment of ecstasy to conceal the real conflict within. And all of that is Mr. Watkins' picture. It is a great painting and magnificently conceived."

By PENELOPE REDD

Down at the Junior League galleries in the Clarke Building, open daily to the adventuring public from 10 until 4, is an exhibition of lithographs by Yasuo Kuniyoshi, through December 12.

On entering the gallery, Kuniyoshi's "Girl Milking a Cow" engendered ribald mirth. Obviously "The House That Jack Built" came to mind. "This is the maiden all forlorn, that milked the cow with the crumpled horn" jingled away merrily.

"The Four Nudes" in roccoco setting and "Girl With Cigarette" identified the owner of "The House That Jack Built" as a lady named Hill.

Passing on to Kuniyoshi's aerial gymnasists, involuntarily one commenced to hum mentally "The Man on the Flying Trapeze." The heroines' aerial gaits had an inspired air of careless triumph that only that ditty could articulate.

Perversely enough, on arriving home and quite by chance picking up a volume of Emily Dickinson's poems, all thoughts of Kuniyoshi as one of the more subtle comic strip artists disappeared.

He reveals "the suburbs of a secret" by accent on the pertinent.

Kuniyoshi is intangible as the wind in his control of this graphic medium. Notwithstanding his recent honor at the late departed Carnegie International, he has never quite projected a comparable charm in painting.

In lithography, he beckons to an intimate understanding of his skill in eluding stability. The exotic creatures of the circus world are clothed in the "garment of surprise."

"God be with this tremendous clown" who conspires in these grim days, to combine a cozy cocozelle squash, an anguished tree spent by the storm, and an acrobat, all "passengers to infinity," with a chuckle.

DRIVE FOR FUND ENTERS FINAL WEEK HERE

Campaign Reorganized for Second Canvass Seeking $800,000 to Reach Goal

The volunteer workers for the joint campaign of the Welfare Fund and Allegheny County Emergency Association received their orders at a meeting today and then started work on the final week of the intensive drive.

It is necessary for the workers to raise approximately $800,000 to obtain $750,000 which a score of individuals and corporations have pledged so that the goal of $5,981,000 might be reached.

Today's report of workers brought in $123,878, making the total to date $4,396,161. The total number of subscribers to date was placed at 104,927.

Frank R. Phillips, chairman of the Emergency Association, who was in charge of the benefit football game arrangements, today said approximately 45,000 persons saw Duquesne University play Carnegie Tech at the Stadium Saturday. Proceeds will run close to $30,000, he said.

Joseph Dilworth, general chairman of the joint campaign, announced the workers would be given important orders today. He said:

"We are trying virtually to organize a whole new campaign covering everything from $25 up in the space of one week. If every contributor responds, an average increase of about 25 per cent will be needed to raise the full amount."

A verified tabulation of pledges turned in to date includes: City employes, $67,681.09; county employes, $37,311.91; federal employes, $11,803.31; state employes, $1,740.71; city school teachers, $55,181.63. Students at Pitt made 2,224 contributions for a total of $15,653.36, and Tech reported 624 contributions totaling $4,634.34. Duquesne University had 164 subscriptions for $1,154.17.

Employes of welfare agencies, in addition to a 10 per cent voluntary reduction in wages for the coming year, have contributed $14,810.79, representing 1,098 pledges.

Labor Pays Tribute To 'Mother' Jones

It was this little union miners cemetery, some time before her death at the age of 100 years a year ago last November 30, near Silver Springs, Md., that "Mother" Jones selected as her final resting place. In a document filed in the courthouse at Carlinville, Ill., she requested that she be buried in the same soil as the miners killed in the riots of 1898.

MARGUERITE LENNON

Miss Lennon, 18, one of nine children in the family of a city fireman, who's so tired of lacking the fine things in life that she'll marry for $10,000. While "Love for Sale" came over the radio, she set forth her reasons.

Boy, 15 Months, Dies After Fall on Steps

When his mother, Mrs. Mary Kazmarck, of Grand avenue, Neville Island, tripped while carrying him down a stairway, Richard Kazmarck, aged 15 months, fell, and died a few hours later in the Sewickley Valley Hospital, from a fractured skull, according to morgue report.

POULTRY SHOW OPENS HERE

The crowing of roosters and the cluck of hens today heralded the opening of the seventh annual poultry show, being held in lower Pirate Hall, William Penn Hotel.

More than 1,800 birds have been entered in competition for the various prizes. The first annual meeting of the Pittsburgh Rabbit and Cavy Breeders' Association is also being held, and more than 300 rabbits and guinea pigs will be in competition.

Special arrangements are being made to accommodate the various schools interested in the poultry and animal industries, according to Harry J. Singer, secretary of the exhibit.

More than 800 pigeons are on display, with fantails in nine colors and saddles leading the parade. Hundreds were expected to visit the exhibit, and prizes will be awarded tomorrow morning, officials said.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, sir, Saturday, on the boat before we steamed into Yokohama, I got first indication that depression had really turned the corner: A professional Scotch golf player deliberately and with malice aforethought drove six golf balls from the deck away out into the ocean. Talk about a "rube" in town—got off the boat standing rubbering at everything, with mouth wide open, and got run over by a rickasha (that's a taxicab propelled by a man.)

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

AUCTION BRIDE IGNORES PLEAS AGAINST 'SALE'

Insists She Will Wed Man Who Has $10,000 to Save Home for Her Parents

Dozens of telephone calls and letters poured in on Marguerite Lennon today, urging her to abandon her plan to "sell herself" as the wife of any acceptable man who will pay her father $10,000.

They left her intent unshaken. She said:

"These people don't understand. I'm not doing this for myself. I've started it, so I'm going through with it and pray that it works out all right."

While an ironic and appropriate radio softly poured out the strains of "Love for Sale," Marguerite, a shy and pretty youngster, explained her predicament: That she must either go through with the sale or see her father and mother lose the home they had worked for years to obtain.

Pretty is a mild word for this 18-year-old girl who has won two beauty contests, worked as a model for half a dozen of Pittsburgh's commercial artists and, quite obviously, has made the most of her high school education.

She's a typical "Irish blonde." Her hair is brown, tinged with red until it is almost auburn. Her eyes are blue, and set wide apart in a finely featured face. She stands five feet, six inches and weighs 125 pounds, typical beauty contest proportions.

TIRED BEING POOR

But beauty, Marguerite has found, is not an asset when it comes to finding a job in these times—and neither is her commercial training, although she graduated with high marks from Business High School last January.

Let her tell the story:

"For three months I've been hunting a job every morning. There just aren't any. One place I almost had one. But the man who was going to hire me said 'You aren't dressed like a girl who needs work.' Imagine that! There's certainly nothing elaborate about any of the clothes I have now. Just because I didn't have holes in my stockings, I guess he thought I didn't need to work.

"I'm tired of being poor. I can't just sit around and see my father and mother lose the home they've worked so hard to keep.

NINE IN FAMILY

"Three years ago we were all working—my brother, my sister, my father and myself. Now only my father is. My sister has married, but her husband lost his job over a year ago. The city's laying men off without pay (her father is a city fireman) and I've either got to do this or see us lose our home.

"Oh, I'll make my husband a good wife, don't worry about that. I don't expect him to be perfect. Men aren't like that. All he has to do is treat me right. I'll meet him more than half-way."

There are nine in the Lennon family in the tidy little home at 1400 Hampshire avenue, which Marguerite is seeking to save.

Not all of them approve her action. Neither her mother nor her father knew that she intended to make the offer until they read of it in the newspapers. In fact, Marguerite said, her father objected strongly when he learned of it. Her mother didn't like it, either, but both finally agreed she could go through with the plan if they approve of the man she selects.

PRAISED BY SISTER

An aunt told her she had "disgraced" the family, but her sister, Mrs. May Haas, two years her senior and the mother of a 6-month-old son, Gilbert, Jr., said:

"I didn't think Margie would have the nerve. She's always been such a quiet, shy kid. I admire her for it. She is liable to meet a man this way who'll make her a perfect husband. I hope she does."

In addition to the brothers and sisters and her brother-in-law and his baby, there is a 7-year-old girl in Marguerite's home, adopted three years ago when times were more prosperous and who now is as much a part of the family as any of the "regular" children.

Efficient Shopping Rules Set Forth by Pitt Expert

If you want to do your Christmas shopping efficiently, here is the way Dr. David R. Craig, director of the Research Bureau of Retail Training at Pitt, suggests should be done:

"Make a shopping list. Know what you want before you start. A written reminder prevents forgetting important articles, and allows the trip to be arranged so you will not have to double back from store to store or from department to department.

"Shop early—not only in the month, but in the day. Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays are the best shopping days.

"Keep fine material, sturdy workmanship, durability, suitability and exclusiveness in mind."

CHANGES LOOM IN VOTE AND TAX BOARDS

Workmaster, Ralph Barr Believed in Line; Rumors Fill Other County Posts

Regardless of the uncertainty concerning the attitude of the new Board of County Commissioners when it is organized next January 4 toward the replacement of present county employes, the unofficial slate-makers are making predictions that have the air of conviction regarding certain jobs.

The gossips first turned their attention to the Election Bureau and the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes, evidently prompted by campaign speeches of C. C. McGovern and C. M. Barr that those two offices needed purging.

WORKMASTER FAVORED

It now is said H. C. Workmaster will be appointed chairman of the tax board with Ralph Barr as secretary. The positions pay $6,500 and $5,500 yearly. Incumbents are George J. Schad and C. J. McBride.

Workmaster was chairman of meetings and speakers in the Independent party's primary. Later he was campaign chairman in the general election for McGovern and C. M. Barr.

Ralph Barr, a brother of the Commissioner-elect, also was active in both campaigns of the Independent party.

The gossips are not unanimous, however, as some insist County Treasurer John Francies or Delinquent Tax Collector Walter J. Christy, both of whom finish their terms next January, will head the tax board.

CLOONAN SUCCESSOR

Gilbert C. Cloonan, chief of the Election Bureau, expects to leave that office January 4 and rumor has it that the job will go to John Hernon, who for many years has had charge of the Tri-State News Bureau's election activities. The news bureau furnished newspapers with the results of each polling place in the county.

Maj. W. T. Rees, a confidential friend of McGovern's, is credited by the gossipers as being in line for chief clerk in the County Commissioners' office with Harry S. Bunting as assistant. Bunting now is chief clerk in Christy's office. Incumbents are William H. Ziefel and James Routley.

Attorney Oliver K. Eaton is said to be slated for the County Solicitor's job at $10,000 a year. He is said to be the choice of McGovern, while followers of Barr are insisting that the place be given to Attorney Alex J. Lindsay. W. D. Manafield, who was elected with McGovern on the Republican ticket, is reported as favoring his campaign manager, James McClure, for the solicitorship. The incumbent is Mortimer B. Lesher.

BEST APPROVES HOOVER PLAN

Attorney William E. Best, of Pittsburgh, president of the United Building and Loan Associations, declared today that he is entirely in accord with President Hoover's objectives in attempting to set up some permanent plan to make it easier to borrow on real estate.

The clash in which he figured at the Washington conference did not involve any opposition to the President's ideas, Mr. Best declared. A paragraph had been inserted in the report of the finance committee which would have approved putting the building and loan associations in the second mortgage business and to that he objected, he said.

Building and Loan Associations do not handle second mortgages in Pittsburgh, Mr. Best pointed out. The plan has been tried in Philadelphia with unsatisfactory results, he stated.

Playground Activities to Be Curbed By Proposed City Budget Slash

Plan to Abandon Hour for Small Children

Playground work among children under school age will be abandoned during early afternoon hours under the present set-up of the 1932 budget in which nine jobs in the Bureau of Recreation are eliminated and six created in their places.

The chief reduction in the Bureau of Recreation thus far was made before the budget was sent to Council from the Mayor's office. In the women's and children's activities, it would remove a general supervisor at $2,700 per year and six recreation assistants at $1,560 per year and replace with two recreation leaders at $1,740 per year and two accompanists at $1,560 per year.

The assistants who are out have been working between 1:30 and 5:30 p. m., largely among children under school age. Those who will replace them will work from 3:30 to 9:30 p. m. and will look after children of all ages.

The work among the little children, abandoned for several hours in the afternoon, virtually amounts to that of a day nursery. It has not been as heavily attended as the other children's activities, according to persons in close touch.

W. T. Batchelor, superintendent of the Bureau of Recreation, declined to comment on the reduction before his appearance before City Council this week in the budget session.

Council last week chopped approximately $6,000 out of the bureau's fund listed as toys, games and athletic equipment. In the budget, a general supervisor of grounds and buildings at $3,000 per year was replaced with an assistant superintendent at $3,000. A clerk at $2,280 was lopped off and a playground supervisor at $2,700 added. Three caretakers were put on half-time.

Armstrong Family's Thanks Expressed

Mrs. Joseph G. Armstrong, widow of the County Commissioner, today expressed the appreciation of the Armstrong family for the kind sentiments expressed on the death of the veteran Republican leader. She said:

"The family of the late Joseph G. Armstrong wishes to extend appreciation to the many friends for the kind sentiments expressed upon the breaking of the family circle through the loss of their beloved father and husband."

COUNCIL SEEKS WAGE CUTS

During a brief budget session today City Council indicated a desire to bring salary and wage expenses in the Department of Public Works in 1932 down to the 1918-19 level. Public Works Director Edward G. Lang was asked to submit a report showing how much money was spent out of the general tax fund in those years.

The session adjourned at noon after voting to ask the State Legislature to amend the Coyne street law to give the city rather than the state exclusive supervision of the expenditure of about $300,000 tax money annually refunded to the city.

On motion of Councilman W. Y. English, Council, sitting as the budget committee, authorized City Solicitor C. A. Waldschmidt, Chief Engineer C. M. Reppert, of the Public Works Department, and Councilman M. J. Muldowney, to go to Harrisburg late today for conferences with the Allegheny County legislators and Gov. Pinchot on the subject.

At present the state specifies what streets shall be improved with the refund money. Councilman English today held that many of the improvements ordered by state engineers had proved costly to the city. If the city engineers had supervision, he said, substantial saving would result.

Fireman Loses Life In Kentucky Blaze

PARIS, Ky., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—A man killed, two others injured and $50,000 worth of property destroyed was the toll of a fire in a cleaning establishment here. Charles Edwards Barlow, volunteer fireman, was killed when caught beneath a falling wall.

Will of Doctor Asks Burial In Jerusalem

A provision that, if practicable, his body be buried in Jerusalem, was contained in the will of Dr. Samuel Isaac Eber, of 5502 Stanton avenue, filed for probate today.

The suggestion was found impracticable, according to Attorney Maurice A. Nernberg, and burial was made in West View Cemetery. Dr. Eber died November 19 in Philadelphia.

His will disposes of an estate estimated at $8,000. His wife is to receive the income, but if she remarries $5,000 goes to the Hebrew Institute of Pittsburgh and the remainder to the Hebrew University in Boston. Charles J. Rosenbloom is named trustee and executor.

Benefit Receipts To Be Known Soon

It will be another day or two before an official check will be available on the receipts for the Carnegie Tech-Duquesne University benefit football game at the Stadium last Saturday. Many tickets were sent out in blocks to high schools throughout the county and a natural delay has developed in gathering in all of the outstanding cash and unsold pasteboards. The work is being speeded up, however, and a report will be given out as soon as all of the loose ends are gathered together.

A banquet will be tendered the Carnegie Tech and Duquesne players next Saturday night by Frank R. Phillips, chairman of the committee that arranged the game. The scene has not yet been determined.

BOOKS OCCUPY ENGELSBERG

Joseph Engelsberg's stay in the County Jail may prove educational as well as restful, if his daily routine is continued, as at present. The former Hill district Republican leader, who on November 16 began a six-months' jail sentence, has spent most of his time in his cell, passing the time by reading books.

Most of the jobs at the jail have been filled, although Engelsberg asked for work, he was told to stay in his cell when not exercising with the others. The books he reads are all in Hebrew, taken from the new jail library. The collection of Jewish volumes was given to the jail in the will of the late Judge Josiah Cohen.

The books are history of the Jewish race and religion in this country and several Hebrew classics.

Sisterhood, Men To Hold Meeting

The Sisterhood and the Men's Society of Rodef Shalom Congregation, Morewood and Fifth avenues, will hold a joint meeting tomorrow evening at which Dr. Abram Sachar, of the University of Illinois, will speak. Dr. Sachar is also director of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation of the university. He will speak on "The Romance of the Rothschild's."

"DOPE? NOT FOR MY CHILD!"

MOTHERS—here are the vital facts about cough syrups:—many rely on DOPE for their results! DOPE means morphine, ether, chloroform, opiates and narcotics.

Don't risk these dope-drugged syrups! Don't do it! You can now stop your child's cough safely. Smith Brothers' Triple Action Cough Syrup contains absolutely NO DOPE (not even a trace!)—no drugs—nothing that could harm a delicate child. Instead of dope the far more efficient but SAFE principle of "Triple Action" gets rid of the cough quickly, surely and pleasantly. (Pleasantly, because Smith Brothers' tastes good.) Only 35c.

"I have 5 children, from 1 year to 15 years of age. I've been using every kind of cough syrup. Last winter when they had bad coughs, I bought a bottle of Smith Brothers' . . . Their colds and coughs disappeared like magic. They liked the taste of it too." Mrs. Margaret Robilliard, New York City.

GAS STATIONS, DRESS SHOP LOOTED

Armed Trio Gets $325 in Mt. Lebanon; $10,000 Haul in East End Store

The holdup of two Mt. Lebanon gasoline stations that netted three bandits $325, the theft of women's apparel valued at $10,000, and the arrest of two men, caught robbing a downtown automobile supply house, were reported in the Pittsburgh district yesterday.

Police and detectives today were searching for two thieves who made a getaway from the DeLuca Shop, 6028 Center avenue, with women's wearing apparel valued at $10,000 under the gunfire of a night watchman, early yesterday.

William Hatchett, a watchman for several establishments in the district, emptied his gun as the men sped away in an automobile. Radio cars were summoned, but the robbers could not be found.

Racing from one end of Mt. Lebanon Township to the other, three armed men staged holdups of two gasoline stations which netted them more than $300 in money and tools and escaped last night, according to police. The robberies were committed a few minutes apart.

Charles Rowland, 25, attendant at the Shell Service Station, in Castle Shannon road, was alone in the station when the trio appeared shortly before midnight and asked the price of a battery. The men followed him into the station, he told police, where two of them drew revolvers and forced him to sit in a chair while they stole $35 from the cash register.

Within a few minutes the trio appeared at the Hollywood Service Station, in Cochran road, at the other end of the township, and asked L. C. Weiland, 35, owner, the price of a battery for their machine. Two of them, he told police, followed him into the station, where one produced a sawed-off shotgun and the other a revolver, and, after robbing him of $150, took $139 from C. C. Brown, 45, of 610 Cochran road, a visitor. Both victims were then forced to walk along Cochran road until the bandits escaped.

2 HELD IN DEATH OF EX-JOCKEY

Two men, one a city traffic officer, were being held today in connecton with the death of Arch Hewitt, 78, a former jockey.

Hewitt died in Allegheny General Hospital last week from injuries incurred November 13 during, police said, an argument with Edward Sullivan, 52, of 1413 Laurel street, an employe of the Lindsay Transfer Company, 1417 Beaver avenue.

At a hearing before Magistrate Ray Schneider in North Side Police Court today, Sullivan admitted he and Hewitt had argued about horses. He said the veteran jockey was injured in a fall, but denied he was responsible for it. Sullivan was held for further investigation.

After the hearing, Mt. Washington police arrested Benjamin L. Knitter, 640 Boggs avenue, a city traffic policeman, who was with Sullivan, his father-in-law, at the time of Hewitt's injury.

Woman Shot in Car, Two Youths Sought

Munhall police today were looking for two boys in connection with the firing of a bullet into the automobile of Carl Anderson, of 1033 Flemington avenue, Pittsburgh, on the Duquesne road, near Munhall, yesterday. The bullet almost struck Mrs. Anderson, who was riding with her husband. Anderson told police he saw two boys running over a hillside following the shooting.

BULLET VICTIM NEAR DEATH

Search for Philip Scarpino and Joseph Morone continued today as James M. O'Connor, their companion, whom they are said to have shot, lapsed into a coma in Pittsburgh Hospital.

Homicide Detectives Frank Dodson and Thomas Mulvihill missed the arrest of the pair by a few minutes last night when they sped to a North Side restaurant Scarpino and Morone had been reported frequenting.

Dodson said police were preparing to release Rose Roucci, wife of John Roucci, a suspect, and Rose Williams, sister of Scarpino, who were taken into custody following the shooting. Police said O'Connor and the men wanted for shooting him are members of a gang of holdup men.

Sleuth Near Death After Operation

Physicians today were battling to save the life of County Detective Frank Ritz, in St. Joseph's Hospital, where an abdominal operation was performed last night.

Ritz was attacked with gastric trouble shortly after arriving at his home, near Library, from the county detective bureau on Saturday. He was rushed to the hospital, where an operation was performed.

HUNT MIDWIFE IN DEATH

County detectives today began a search for a Pittsburgh midwife, following the death yesterday in the Valley Hospital, Sewickley, of Mrs. Helen Moag, 27, of 1508 Railroad street, Osborne.

According to attaches of the Coroner's office Mrs. Moag, before she died, named the midwife, who she said performed an illegal operation.

Robert Moag, husband of the woman, after her death gave a statement to the Coroner, in which he said he had been separated from his wife since November 25, when he started on a hunting trip. In the statement he said he returned to Pittsburgh on December 3 and visited his wife. According to the hospital report, Mrs. Moag entered the hospital on Saturday.

Elliott Robber Takes Shirts And Cash

Adam Becker lost his pants last night—to say nothing of $8, some shirts and a few curtains.

Police reported today that a robber entered the Becker home, 205 Lorenz avenue, during the night, took Becker's trousers from his bedroom and $6 from Mrs. Becker's purse nearby.

They dropped the trousers in the basement but took several shirts and curtains, part of the week's laundry.

FINAL SERMON BY DR. M'EWAN

The Rev. Dr. William L. McEwan, one of the oldest ministers in the Pittsburgh Presbytery, retired from the pastorate of the Third Presbyterian Church, Fifth and South Negley avenues, yesterday morning, after 38 years' service. His farewell sermon was on the communion, which he took with the congregation. The pulpit was filled last night by the Rev. Dr. Thomas Watters.

A congregational reception for Dr. and Mrs. McEwan will be given by the congregation Wednesday night.

Dr. McEwan came to the Pittsburgh church eight years after his ordination. He had previous charges in Wilmington, Del., and Webster Grove, Mo.

DOWNEY RETURNS :-: Ted Weems With Jan Garber Thursday

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

THE FOUR MILLS Brothers who go commercial on CBS-WJAS at 9 o'clock tonight, once played Western Pennsylvania theaters on a percentage basis . . . Morton Downey is freshed after his trip West . . . turns to CBS-WJAS at 7:45 . . . Thirty-five Russian nomads are to provide colorful local for the Gypsies on WCAE at 9 . . . along with Adele Stan, former . . . of WTAM . . . has packed her trunks in New York to become a regular part of this feature . . . Two of Oley Speaks' compositions are scheduled . . . the delicately beautiful "Sylvia," by James Melton, tenor, on WCAE at 8:30, and the blusterous "Road to Mandalay," by Phil Dewey, baritone, on WCAE at 9:30.

Bedtime Story

Riggs and Moke Jimmy Long says they should be on the nut-work—are forever receiving problems from their listeners. The latest is from J. J. M., Trafford, Pa.

"Why do you boys go on so late at night?" he asks. "How am I going to get my sleep and also get my little girl up in time to go to school after we stay up until 11:15 to hear you on the air?"

"Now, if I don't work, we don't eat, and if the little girl doesn't get to school, I get arrested for not sending her.

"After hearing your act, every one at our house behaves like he had just got up instead of getting ready for bed and they all beat it for the kitchen, including myself for coffee and lunch. And that's another important reason for me writing you this letter."

Three commercial sponsors are endeavoring to secure the services of Riggs and Moke, and if they do, we presume "The Crazy Pair" will be heard at an earlier hour, perhaps three mornings a week and once at night.

Question a Day:

How much does it cost the United States to maintain its government radio service?—David R., Brentwood.

Answer—We assume that you mean the Federal Radio Commission. Salaries, traveling expenses, office rental and incidentals for the fiscal year run close to $450,000. There are five commissioners and 127 employes.

* * *

The Three Doctors cut up on WJZ, WGAR, WJR and WENR at 11:30 tonight . . . George Olsen, whose dance music on WABC at 11:45 each night but Sunday breaks up the monotony of one orchestra after another, has a mania for choo choos and each Christmas erects a miniature railroad system under the pine tree for his two boys . . . Ben Bernie at midnight and Noble Sissle at 12:30 a. m., both WABC tonight.

* * *

Studio Lights

Jimmy Joy is to be heard next over WHAS, Louisville, where he opens at Hotel Lowry on Saturday, December 19 . . .

Eddie Cantor last night, "I can't understand him, he must be a radio announcer" . . .

If you didn't get one of those tickets for a free overcoat Saturday, don't blame us, we did our best to see you from an altitude of 2300 feet . . . It was a great day for flying and Hal Bayley, we declare, is the pilot extraordinary!

The exodus continues at KDKA . . . Lucy Spenser leaves this week . . . her job of supplying correct musical scores for artists is to be carried on by Gertrude Mohr, formerly musical director of WCAE . . . Marquis Chisholm, former KDKA production man, is reported signed with NBC.

John R. Comerford, KQV tenor, has gone in for higher notes, the kind that come from the bank . . . John Harris, the local movie magnate, has signed him for an 11-week vaudeville tour, starting this week . . .

NBC's international debate Saturday was a grand success . . . we may be a bit prejudiced, but it appeared to us that Harvard won . . .

COMING: Morton Downey interview on WJAS tomorrow afternoon at 5:15; Irene Bordoni at 10 p. m. Wednesday, WJAS; the Lawson Sisters tomorrow night with Jean Wald's Orchestra . . .

John McCloy's bull pup, "Patsy," identified from a photograph printed in last Thursday's Sun-Telegraph, was found Saturday by an East End youth and returned to his master . . . "Patsy" had wandered astray and was very hungry when found . . .

CBS has purchased WKRC in Cincinnati.

Today's Tid Bit:

Grace Mitchell, WCAE pianist, was being fitted to a pair of those reptile-skin shoes. From the next aisle came this:

"I'm afraid these Louis XV heels are too low. Perhaps you have some higher, say, Louis XVII or Louis XVIII."

The Loudspeaker — By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The rajahs of radio are again honoring Guglielmo Marconi. Well, why not? Of all the fabulous figures of wireless he is still the greatest. Like the majority of world-famous men he does not make the mistake of marching too frequently to the microphone. As a result there is always an audience for him.

Most attention audience that ever strained its ears to Marconi was that which heard him divulging family secrets to David Sarnoff . . . Right now it would seem Herbert Hoover is lifting his voice too often on the radio. People are not cupping their ears to him as regularly as once they did . . . Broadcasters have ceased calling their crooners the Valentinos of the air. After all, it is a large order for a crooner to fill with so much competition going on.

When noted singers come to radio they invariably select for their programs those tunes which have what Tin Pan Alley calls "heart interest" . . . Rarely do they air a current hit, preferring to wait to see how history treats it . . . Personal nomination for the most poignant ballard written in the last generation: Nevin's "Little Boy Blue" . . . Isn't time for a moratorium on "Good Night, Sweetheart?"

There's a chuckle or two in "Dr." Rockwell's microphone patter, yet his radio appearances are few and far between . . . Maybe, like most of the other comics, Rockwell is reluctant to submit his remarks to a censoring board . . . Latest tiller of Hollywood gold fields to seek national radio fame is Sam Coslow, balladeer and theme-song writer. Coslow is bringing an instrumental quartet with him, is planning to air his own hits—"Just One More Chance," "You Didn't Know the Music"—as well as those of other tunesmiths . . .

Wonder what becomes eventually of the radio queens? Their perch on the publicity peaks is so brief. One hears no longer of Olive Shea, of Bernardine Hayes. And now Harriet Lee, crowned queen last September, and Columbia have parted company . . . Most tuneful of radio's regular theme songs is that which ushers in the RKO program . . . Harvard and Oxford will sound their broadest a's today over the ether. From the gridiron to the gavel is radio's latest collegiate leap . . . Broadcasters, as we hinted some time past, are actually getting ready to flash to the parlors the Olympic bob sled races at Lake Placid in February. The meet will be with the announcers a case of "here he comes, there he goes." Clem McCarthy, 'tis said, may get the assignment of voicing the words.

* * *

A canny crowd, these opera singers. They still have reputations at stake even when they are long through with their stage coughs and swoons.

Radio continues to find a place for them, though when television arrives there may be another story to tell. Yet, that is a bridge to be crossed when it is met. For our part, it seems more and more certain that the most important figure at this end of the bridge will be the make-up man.

EUGENE KULIS

REM stops young business man's cough

Eugene Kulis of 1926 S. Albany Ave., Chicago, never lets stormy winter weather keep him from school or from covering his newspaper route. His mother, Mrs. Josephine Kulis, says: "Eugene has to be out-of-doors a lot--going to school and delivering papers after school-- and that often means wading through slush and snow in the winter time. I saw REM advertised some years ago and got a bottle at Paprocki's Phcy., 22nd & Sacramento. All five in my family have depended on REM for about seven years now to relieve their coughs when they catch cold." REM is the perfected result of 46 years' pharmaceutical experience. You too will discover, just as the Kulis family did, that REM is different and better than ordinary cough syrups.

To get REM's results you've got to make sure it's REM! Insist on it!

Success of Relief Game. * Whitney Winnings.
Dukes Prove Advance. Terry and Hogan Stay.

CHARITY CONTEST CREDIT TO CITY

WITH THE SINGLE exception that the action of the team heads in shortening the periods to 10 minutes each without public notice was a disappointment to the spectators—the fault was not in cutting the time but in keeping the arrangement a secret—there has been no more completely successful or satisfying charity football game in the whole country than the hard-fought number in which Carnegie Tech and Duquesne University battled to a scoreless tie at the Stadium Saturday.

Elmer Layden

The thrilling tussle on the field made it a success artistically, and the splendid turnout of 42,539 made it a financial triumph of which the community may justly feel proud. Too much cannot be said in praise of Carnegie, Duquesne, Pitt and all those who aided in any other way in putting it over. It was a great credit to Pittsburgh.

As far as the result of the game itself was concerned, it was a case of honors even, with glory won by both sides in a laudable cause, and everybody satisfied, but the Dukes in particular are warranted in feeling jubilant over the outcome.

FOR IT WAS quite a feather in Duquesne's cap to tie an opponent so much more experienced in major competition. The Tartans did the expected in outplaying the Bluff lads between the 20-yard stripes, but the fact that they were unable to take the ball over the goal line speaks volumes for the defensive strength and fighting spirit of the Red and Blue.

The showing of the Dukes in their major opportunities attests the progress Elmer Layden has made on the Bluff. His charges are able to boast of victories in recent years over W. & J., Haskell Indians, and North Dakota, and ties with West Virginia, Georgetown, Western Maryland and Carnegie Tech. That's stepping along, and no mistake. As Saturday's achievement demonstrated, the Dukes are not being admitted to local big time any sooner than is their due.

RIGHT NOW THE dope would appear to make Southern California look to have the better chance for victory in the Tournament of Roses game with Tulane, but if the Trojans do win it will be the first time a Southern team has ever been beaten in the classic.

Dixie teams have been chosen for the Pasadena game five times in seven straight years, and of their four games already decided the Southerners won three and tied one. The coast's two victories in the last six years were scored over Pitt.

THE COMPLETE RECORD of Tournament of Roses games follows:

1916—Washington State, 14; Brown, 0.
1920—Harvard, 7; Oregon, 6.
1921—California, 28; Ohio State, 0.
1922—W. & J., 0; California, 0.
1923—Southern California, 14; Penn State, 3.
1924—Navy, 14; Washington, 14.
1925—Notre Dame, 27; Stanford, 10.
1926—Alabama, 20; Washington, 19.
1927—Alabama, 7; Stanford, 7.
1928—Stanford, 7; Pitt, 6.
1929—Georgia Tech, 8; California, 7.
1930—Southern California, 47; Pitt, 14.
1931—Alabama, 24; Washington State, 0.

FOOTBALL FAME RUNS largely to offensive work, but Harry Stuhldreher, present Villanova coach and quarterback of Notre Dame's Four Horsemen in 1924, says it was a defensive play that gave him the greatest thrill of his gridiron life.

Harry Stuhldreher

"In the Army game of 1923, Notre Dame managed to get off in the lead and in the middle of the second quarter was in front, 7 to 0," relates Stuhldreher. "Suddenly, George Smythe, a wonder at change of pace, got away from Notre Dame and started out in the open field for what looked like a certain touchdown and a tied score.

TWO MEN WERE with Smythe to act as interferers, and it appeared that only a miracle could stop him. The miracle happened. It was in the person of Dutch Bergman, Notre Dame halfback.

"Ditch was on the opposite side of the field from the hard-running Smythe, but, putting on all the speed of which he was capable, he crossed the gridiron and dived over the two men running interference for Smythe to make the most wonderful tackle I ever saw.

"SMYTHE MADE 40 yards on the run and but for Bergman would have scored. The play unquestionably saved the game for Notre Dame, for it gave us added confidence and shook the Army. We then went on and scored another touchdown, winning 13 to 0. But for Bergman's great tackle, however, the game might have had a different ending."

ACCORDING TO A turf research made by W. C. Vreeland, the Whitney stables in 27 years of horse-racing, first under W. C. Whitney, then under his son, Harry Payne, and now under his grandson, Cornelius V., have won $4,313,972.

And yet, out of this huge sum, there was little profit. It costs a fortune to operate the stable, what with stallions, broodmares, yearlings and horses in training to be fed, and an army of grooms, stable hands, trainers, exercise boys, jockeys, agents and other employes to be paid. Vreeland estimates that in order to break even the Whitney horses must win from $250,000 to $300,000 each season.

THE RUMOR THAT the Giants this week would trade such a valuable player as Bill Terry was absurd on its face, and now Manager McGraw spikes it officially. John J. makes it known that his infield will be made up of Terry, Lindstrom, Jackson and Vergez. In the outfield he will have Ott in right, Fullis in center, and Koenecke, if he makes good, in left, with Leach and Allen as extras.

McGraw also denies that he will trade Frank Hogan at this time. He says the big catcher's future depends entirely on his behavior, but is confident that Hogan will see the light and turn over a new leaf.

Ted McKune

ONE OF THE most remarkable records for goal-keeping in intercollegiate soccer competition comes to light with the closing of the 1931 season. The campaign recently ended completed the college playing career of Capt. Ted McKune, goalie of the Penn State team, which was undefeated for the season, and he goes out with a most unusual playing record to his credit for a three-year varsity stretch. This fall McKune held the seven opposing teams to four goals, and in three years he allowed a total of only 13 kicks to get by him for goals, an average of less than one to a game. McKune, born in New Jersey, has resided in Johannesburg, South Africa, during the greater part of his life and learned the game in that country. He is also captain of the Penn State tennis team for next spring.

By HEARTLY W. ANDERSON

Notre Dame Coach and Member All-America Board of Football.

The players selected in this lineup are not named as are most all-star teams. These players actually opposed our own team and in some instances may have reached their peak performance in game nevertheless, it is the feeling of our coaching staff that the accompanying lineup represents the best 11 players encountered by Notre Dame in the nine-game schedule just completed.

There is another list of players not mentioned whose work on other days may have surpassed their performance against Notre Dame or whose performance for the entire season may have outclassed the work of players I have named in this composite lineup, but, man for man and game for game this group gave us the most trouble and made the best impression the day we played against them.

CENTER

We ran into some great players at the center position. Daugherty, of Pitt, and Williamson, of U. S. C., were standouts, but Evans, of Army, was the surprise of the season to our boys. Until Evans put on his great exhibition last Saturday in New York, Daugherty, of Pitt, was the choice for this position. But it was Evans, along with Stecker, more than any other player that defeated Notre Dame. Evans is a fine blocker, and, although not a bright star on the offensive, he is steady and dependable, and, handling a wet ball on a muddy field, he passed without a flaw. His defensive game was short of phenomenal—and he was up against Tom Yarr, generally rated the best center in the game today. Evans made more tackles than any center opposing Notre Dame this year.

GUARDS

Navy did not look very strong against Notre Dame, but Underwood was a line by himself. He was all over our line and into interference on every play. I would not rate Underwood too high as an offensive guard, but, defensively, he worried us plenty. He was one of few guards that we couldn't gain over this season and one of very few players who repeatedly stopped Marchy Schwartz.

When you come to Baker, of Southern California, you not only are looking at a great guard, but at one who well might be voted the most valuable player on his team. His speed and size make him a star running guard. He pulls out of the line and leads interference in any direction with telling effect. His unusual knack of booting the kickoff ball, far beyond the end zone, invariably places his opponents in a hole. In addition, he is a dependable place-kicker. But, aside from all of Baker's physical and mechanical virtues, he possesses amazing football intuition. He scents the direction of the next play with unfailing accuracy.

TACKLES

If I were picking an All-America team—which is no job for one man to attempt—Quatse and Riley would land the tackle positions without an argument. Riley weighs 235 and Quatse 205. For the past two years, Riley has given Notre Dame a furious battle. He gets every ounce of value out of all that brawn. And he is plenty smart. A fast charger, a fine blocker and great going down under punts. Few tackles on our schedule have shown a knack of sensing plays equal to Riley. He is much like Baker in that respect. He smashes in on the inside plays and seldom fails to stop them. When the play is wide, he drifts with the runner—and generally gets his man.

Quatse, of Pitt, is vicious when

Glangesia to Run In British 'Chase Classic Again

GRASSLAND DOWNS, Tenn., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Richard K. Mellon, owner of Glangesia, which won the Grassland International Steeplechase Saturday, plans to return the big gray gelding to Pittsburgh this week for an intensive training program preparatory to sending him to England for the Grand National at Liverpool in March.

Glangesia, veteran English racer, 11-year-old son of Le Souvenir, out of Mailline, has competed in the British classic twice. He was fourth in 1930 and seventh last March.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF LAST SATURDAY: THE STRIPED CHURCH OF RUMANIA—Hermannstadt, in Transylvania, formerly was part of the Kingdom of Hungary, which was compelled to cede the town to Rumania after the conclusion of the World War. The Hungarian name of the town was Nagy Szeben, while the Rumanians renamed it Sibiu. Hermannstadt shelters many different faiths within its precincts. The striped Greek Cathedral was erected in 1906 and has been so decorated because of the still-unsettled claim of two different religious denominations to worship within its portals. CHARLEY ROMANO—When Charley Romano was a child he formed a habit of putting his arms back of his head and kept at it until he was able to wrap his arms around the back of his neck and clasp his hands under his chin. This habit has been so persistently indulged in that he now sleeps in this position. Romano's home is 7603 One Hundred and First street, Ozone Park, L. I.

M.-A. LEAGUE TO CUT ROSTER

EBENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 7.—(AP)—The Middle Atlantic League will continue to operate next year, but in all likelihood in somewhat altered form.

Following his return from the minor league sessions at West Baden, Ind., Elmer M. Daily, president of the league, said he favored either an eight-club lineup or two sixes. He thinks an even dozen too many.

The matter will be threshed out at the annual meeting of the league in January, the exact date and site to be announced later. The gathering place will be a central point—Wheeling, Uniontown or Pittsburgh.

Charleston, Cumberland, Johnstown, Huntington, Beckley, Fairmont, Clarksburg, Wheeling, Hagerstown, Charleroi, Scottdale and Jeannette started the last season.

Jeannette was accorded poor support and the franchise was shifted to Altoona. Later it was transferred to Beaver Falls.

Hagerstown, which entered after the Blue Ridge suspended, couldn't make ends meet, and the team played at Parkersburg for a time, later being taken to Youngstown, O.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Post-mortems on the Carnegie Tech-Duquesne benefit football game of last Saturday. . . . Which team would have won if they had played 15-minute quarters instead of limiting them to 10 minutes? . . . And whose brilliant idea was it to order the shortened periods without announcing the fact in advance? . . . That was the only marring feature of an otherwise perfect afternoon. . . . The first intimation even the scribes had that there weren't to be regulation quarters came when the referee picked up the ball to change goals at the end of the first period. . . . Left to the players themselves, it's a cinch 15-minute quarters would have prevailed. . . . It was a fine game to watch and the fans were satisfied, but you can't blame them for feeling unnecessarily cheated by the authorities who ordered such a curtailing of the program when it was announced day after day in the newspapers and over the radio that this was to be a genuine football game and not one of those phony "exhibitions" such as made up the charity football tournaments. . . . In fact the local newspapers flatly refused to sponsor a tournament and held out for a regulation football game from the start and were assured that such a game would be staged. . . . It is a pity that, with such a fine crowd in hand, the authorities saw fit to bungle the affair in the petty manner in which they did. . . . If they didn't want to go wholeheartedly and whole hog into the game they should have said so in the first place. . . . They have left a bad taste behind when there was no excuse for so doing.

Johnny Cain, of Alabama, selected at fullback on the All-America Board of Football all-America team, is aptly nicknamed Hurry Cain. . . . He is only a junior. . . . Pitt's reserves defeated Penn State, 41 to 6, yet no member of the Panthers is named on the Lions' all-opponents team. . . . Jim Marks, of Kiski, has a fine idea to prevent use of the wedge in returning kickoffs. . . . He would permit the man who kicks off to punt the ball, sending it sufficiently high to allow his mates to get down under it in time to prevent the receiving team from forming dangerous interference for the runback.

Pete Zivic, former local featherweight boxer of note, kicks in to correct the records anent short boxing bouts dug up for comparison when George Panka went out in a punch in his fight with Tony Galento at Motor Square recently. . . . He says it was Ruby Levine and not Hilly Levine that Al Foreman stopped in one and one-half seconds in Montreal, on April 25, 1928. . . . This was a semi-final to Pete's battle with Leo (Kid) Roy, which Pete never will forget because of the fact that it was in this melee that he got the badge of his profession, a tin ear. . . . He dug up the clippings and they tell that the only punch of the short fight was a right to the heart delivered by Foreman before the echo of the gong had died away. . . . Levine went down face first, whereas Panka was sent across the ring to land flat on his back, with his head under the lower rope.

WESTINGHOUSE REACHES FINAL

By TOM BIRKS

The Westinghouse Alumni team, coached by Hooks Carroll, qualified to meet the Rox Rangers in the final of the Lightweight Gridiron Conference, by beating the Bloomfield Tigers, 6 to 0, at Ranger Field yesterday with 8,000 fans watching the struggle.

The Rangers had defeated the Sonny Boys on Saturday to enter the final round, which will be played Saturday. A meeting will be held today to arrange for the playing field.

The game itself was a terrific struggle, and the only touchdown of the game came in the second period. With the ball in possession of the Alumni, Showboat Ware hurled a pass into the arms of Bobby Noonan, who was brought down on the Civics eight-yard line. Dye then carried the ball over for the touchdown, but the extra point was missed. The lineup:

Alumni—6.		Civics—0.
Dowdy	L. E.	Bauer
Patterson	L. T.	Morgan
Goodsell	L. G.	McHugh
Tarenner	C.	Koch
McIlveen	R. G.	Fehl
Duffley	R. T.	Bartolica
Wendell	R. E.	Thompson
Dalzell	Q.	Powell
Ware	L. H.	Fiet
Freeman	R. H.	Schell
Dye	F.	Hawk

Score by quarters:
Westinghouse Alumni . . . 0 6 0 0—6
Substitutes—Westinghouse—Dorsey, Noonan, Touchdown, Dye. Referee—W. H. Friswell. Umpire—Bill Evans. Linesman, Red Gannon. Time of quarters—12 minutes.

Pleasant Valley nosed out the Glendale Tigers, 6 to 0, in another contest between Lightweight Conference teams. The Papales beat the Carrick Odds, 12-0; Lawrenceville Mohawks and North Side Comets played a scoreless tie, and St. Rosalia Prep won from Oakland Community, 19-0, in important independent games.

HOYLES BACK IN LOOP

A reorganized W. U. Hoyle basketball team is to continue in the West Penn Basketball League. It was decided at a meeting held yesterday at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. W. W. Hoyle, sponsor of the team, withdrew his support at yesterday's meeting.

42,539 SEE TECH, DUKES TIE IN FINAL

By JESS CARVER

If I hadn't been at the ball game myself, Saturday, and had heard the score of the Tech-Duquesne game and the size of the crowd, you could have knocked me over with Kate Smith.

I wasn't so surprised at the deadlock, for the Duquesne football team this fall has been a mighty tough one to get past, especially when the getting past was supposed to be the softest. But when 42,539 turned out for the game, paying good dough to put Pittsburgh over the top as an A-1 charity town, I was surprised. I'd figured we'd have about 35,000 on hand, and the Allegheny County Relief Committee figured about the same.

It was a shame that there was a mixup on the quarters. The general committee, which, according to Buddy Overend, out at Tech, knew about the shortening of the periods, should have notified the newspapers. It would not have made much difference in the size of the crowd, for Pittsburgh sport fans are big-hearted enough to have turned out if they'd been playing five-minute quarters.

As it was, the two elevens gave all they had. Don't let anyone try to tell you Tech didn't want to win that ball game! And don't think for a split second that the Dukes didn't want it, either. The boys were in there for all they were worth, and they gave plenty. If you don't think so, you should have seen the physiognomy of the players after the ball game. There wasn't anything dirty, you understand, but boy, oh! boy, how they battled.

TULANE WINS BID

Saturday just about wrote the old "finis" to the 1931 intercollegiate season. Tulane double-teamed Washington State and won the bid to the Rose Bowl tournament. Southern California snowed the game but ineffectual Washington Huskies under a 41-7 score and clinched the Pacific Coast Conference title. The cheers on both games were loud and long, louder at New Orleans, where Tulane took over the Staters, than at Los Angeles, for the Trojans were figured to beat the Huskies about as bad as they wanted. Which they did.

Aside from the Army-Navy game in New York this week, the season was completed here in the East, and not without an upset, either. Who would have figured the muchly-kicked around Navy eleven capable of beating Penn? Not me. The Middies rose to the old occasion, however, just as Army, Pitt, Carnegie Tech and numerous other teams have done this fall, and gave Harvey Harman something more to worry over.

ARMY-NAVY CLASH

The Army ought to beat Navy this week by a touchdown or two, but the same crack would have been good a year ago, and the best the Cadets could do was win by 6-0, when Ray Stecker slipped away for a touchdown dash in the second half. Mister Stecker has a habit of slipping away against the most formidable of opponents, and he has done so against all foes this fall save Pitt. The Panthers bottled him up, which was more than Notre Dame could do, and that is to the credit of Dr. Sutherland's heroes.

Beaten out of the invitation to the Tournament of Roses game, the Panthers must sit back and be satisfied with being acknowledged eastern champions and at this particular time, rated as one of the three most powerful elevens of the country. Tulane must have something on the ball to beat Washington State as badly as it did and Southern California undoubtedly is as good an eleven as there is in the nation today. We will now stand and sing that Trojan battle song.

TECH DISAPPOINTED

It was a rather touching experience to attend the Carnegie Tech football dinner at the P. A. A. after the game Saturday. The Tartans naturally were disappointed in not having carried off the honors. Besides, they all were afraid that Wally Steffen was going to come out and state definitely that he had decided to leave. This corrugated throat does not often get choked up, but while Wally was talking, more than once, I was afraid I was going to cough a bit. The Judge gave a fine talk, explained that he wanted more time to think things over, but indicated strongly that he is planning to leave. It will be a blow to Pittsburgh football if Steffen decides to retire, to say nothing of the void it will leave at Carnegie Tech.

Some crackerjack footballers completed their careers in Saturday's Tech-Duke game. It was hard to see fellows as fine as Murray Armentrout, Don Fletcher and Duke Ducanis, of Tech, walk off the old field for the last time, to say nothing of the men who completed their careers at Duquesne. Judge Steffen's tribute to Armentrout was as fine a thing as I've heard ever, and the Judge was strictly onside when he delivered it.

DREYFUSS, ILL, TO MISS MAJORS' PARLEY

PIRATES SEND DELEGATION TO CHICAGO

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Owing to the illness of Owner Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pirates, the home office announced today that Secretary Sam Watters would leave tonight for Chicago in order to attend the annual major and joint meetings of baseball, which will get under way tomorrow in the mid-western metropolis.

Trade negotiations and other important matters are of such significance to the Pittsburgh Club that it was thought best to have the local team well represented in the various sessions incident to the annual meetings.

Owner Dreyfuss was very eager to attend on account of big things at stake for his team, but his cold was severe enough to cause his physician to order him to stay in his home. Mrs. Dreyfuss also is suffering from a cold.

GIBSON TO DO TRADING

When Watters reaches the scene he will be joined by Manager Gibson, Treasurer William Benswanger and Otis Crandall and Art Griggs, other attaches of the Pittsburgh club, who went to Chicago after attending the minor league sessions at West Baden.

Dreyfuss apparently will keep in close touch with his large squad of aides, especially in matters pertaining to trades, although the owner of the club stated today that Manager Gibson was in full authority to act.

It was Gibson who figured largely in the big deal of 10 years ago with the Braves when Walter Maranville came to the Buccos in exchange for Billy Southworth, Fred Nicholson and Walter Barber, and $25,000 in cash. The trade proved such a boon to the Pittsburgh cause that Dreyfuss evidently has unlimited confidence in Gibson as a trader.

BIG LEAGUERS GATHER

CHICAGO, Dec. 7. — Major league moguls are gathering here today for their sessions, beginning tomorrow, in the Congress Hotel. Following meetings of the National and American League, the magnates will get together in joint confab.

Among those expected to arrive today were President John A. Heydler, of the National League; Judge Emil Fuchs, of Boston; Charles Stoneham, of the Giants; Sidney Weil, of the Reds; Sam Breadon, of the Cardinals; President Frank York, Manager Max Carey and Scout Nap Rucker, of Brooklyn.

LIVELY BALL BATTLE

The American League president, William Harridge, expects a heated debate on the proposal to rid the junior circuit of lively balls. The National League appears satisfied with the sphere it used last season.

Among the major matters to be settled are the restoration of the sacrifice fly, cutting of the umpire staff and the mapping of an economical campaign for the season to come.

Dan Howley is interested in securing Hack Wilson for the Redland outfield, and held a conference on the subject last night with Manager Rogers Hornsby. The Rajah said Howley was too sparing in his trading offers to do business.

Tri-County Floor League Organized

With five teams on its roster, and three applications on file, the Tri-County Basketball League organized for its second season yesterday. When President Lebowitz, of Monessen, called the roll, Swissvale Greenes, Duquesne Republicans, Monongahela, Monessen Merchants and McDonald answered, with Wellsburg, Braddock Merchants and Wilkinsburg on record for the remaining three berths.

W. H. Mitchell, of 1371 Marlboro avenue, Wilkinsburg, was elected president, Doctor Lebowitz resigning as prexy under pressure of business.

The only new club is McDonald. Sunday will find the closing of the roster and the drafting of the schedule. Teams requesting a berth should call President Mitchell, at Penhurst 5258.

Anderson to Go To Mayo Clinic

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 7.—(AP.)—As soon as he has tied up all the loose ends of Notre Dame's 1931 football season, Coach Heartly (Hunk) Anderson will go to the Mayo Brothers' clinic at Rochester, Minn., for a checkup.

Anderson spent many weeks at the clinic early this year, suffering first with spinal meningitis and later with appendicitis. He plans to get a thorough overhauling before any other illness has a chance to attack him.

BEST OF IRISH FOES NAMED

he turns on the "power." Our lads felt his charging more than that of any other lineman. He is a better man on inside plays than on the outside. When he crashes the opposition he comes in from an angle with demoralizing effect. Deep into the backfield his charge continues and there he spills the interference or gets the ball-carrier—and frequently he does both. Many tackles are taught to drift with the play and under such a system Quatse would be more spectacular, of course.

ENDS

Drake did not have a strong team against us, but it showed us one of the finest ends in any football league. This boy Briley was the outstanding man on the entire field against Notre Dame. Despite the large score we piled up that afternoon, Briley stopped our running attack every time it came in his direction. We failed to gain a yard at his end and had a lot of trouble taking him out on other plays. It doesn't happen very often that we are obliged to put two men against a single end, but that is what Mr. Briley brought us to in the Drake game. He is a streak down the field under punts and a fine receiver. Put Briley on a football team that is in the spotlight and he would be up there in the All-America ratings.

Arbelbide, of Southern California, was at his best in South Bend. This 6-footer, weighing 190 pounds, was one of the season's best blockers, superb at pulling down passes and a crashing end on the defense. He has the knack of charging into the backfield, spilling the interference and still protecting the outside so that the opposition seldom runs around him.

QUARTERBACK

Shaver, a teammate of Arbelbide, showed us the greatest piece of quarterbacking since Howard Harpster ran wild for Carnegie Tech. Shaver is more than a quarterback—he is one of the greatest line plungers we ever encountered. Almost a backfield by himself. His choice of plays against Notre Dame was admired by our players and coaching staff. A very good forward passer and a fine punter, he is what I would call "triple threat—plus." Circle the ends, crash the line, pass like a sharpshooter and punt to any spot on the field. To my mind, that makes Shaver the best player on a team of genuine champions—Southern California.

HALFBACKS

Rentner, of Northwestern, and Stecker, of the Army. The former, in my estimation, is one of the great backs of the past 10 years. Stecker, while not enjoying all of the advantages of Rentner, was the most troublesome and effective halfback encountered by Notre Dame during 1931. Until this year, Rentner was best known for his passing, but now his ball-carrying and open field running make him much feared from every angle. He is the spark plug of his own team and in many respects the best man in the safety position playing football at the moment. I never have seen a player scoop in punts, under a full head of steam, like Rentner.

Stecker is an all-round wonderful performer. Not the best forward passer in the East, but nevertheless a good one. As a ball carrier, there are few in the open field to approach him. He has a way of running—short, choppy stride—which baffles the opposing tacklers. His change of pace and bewildering sidesteps make him as hard to catch as a runaway horse. He is a fine tackler and a great defender against the pass.

FULLBACK

Notre Dame did not meet many outstanding fullbacks. Luch, of Pitt, drove through our line more effectively than any other. He weighs 210 pounds, is a hard worker, regardless of the score, and backs up the line with savage charges. Luch seldom guesses wrong on the next move by his opponent, and, as an interferer, he always is in front of the ball-carrier.

Seven other players played great ball against our boys. Armentrout, of Carnegie Tech, is a mighty fine halfback. Zeller, of Indiana, is a nifty guard. Olsen, Northwestern fullback, is one of the best kickers in the game today and by next year should have few equals as an allaround back. Marvil, his teammate, is a powerful tackler and not far behind Riley and Quatse.

Pittsburgh has a pair of halfbacks that belong on any all-star team, Heller and Reider. Against Army, these two were unbeatable. Against Notre Dame, they were not quite so effective. But until we ran into Stecker, of the Army, it was my intention to name Heller and Reider as the best pair of backs we have encountered. This Pittsburgh team has five extraordinary players — Heller, Reider, Luch, Quatse, and Daugherty.

Cliff Battles Rated Best Foe by Dukes

Cliff Battles, brilliant back for West Virginia Wesleyan, was named the best football star to oppose the Duquesne Dukes on the gridiron during the past season. The Dukes did not include any member of the Tech team because the battle with the Skibos was a post-season affair. The all-opponents' team chosen by the Dukes follows:

First team—Feiber, North Dakota, and Aultman, Geneva, ends; Gross, Catholic U. and Fincura, Western Maryland, tackles; Dubofsky, Georgetown and Malo, North Dakota, guards; Schwartzwalder, West Virginia, center; Swiggs, Howard, quarterback; Dunn, Western Maryland and Rovinsky, Holy Cross, halfbacks; Battles, West Virginia Wesleyan, fullback.

Frankie Battaglia vs. Bud Saltis, 10 rounds, Chicago.

Young Corbett vs. Johnny Indriasno, 10 rounds, San Francisco.

Reported to be in the best shape of his career, as a result of a training siege in the mountains near Johnstown, Battling Gizzy, Donora's club fighter lightweight, makes a bid for real recognition when he opposes Sammy Dorfman, of New York, in the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden tonight.

Battling Gizzy

The local fans long have been wanting to see Gizzy pitted against an opponent of major ranking, to determine whether or not his club fighting methods will prevail in fast company as they do against the smaller fry and this is their opportunity. Dorfman is not an especially hard hitter and Gizzy may go far against him with his rushing, crowding whirlwind tactics.

Tony Canzoni

Jimmy Thomas, Negro bantamweight stablemate of Gizzy, boxes Tony Canzoni, of Ohio, in the eight-round semi-final. Steve Senich meets Jackie Wilson in the second bout and Carl Montebano faces Tod Murphy in the opener, at 8:30.

Lou Saunders, of Beaver Falls, boxes Midget Mike O'Dowd in the main bout of a show at Wheeling tonight, and a team of four local amateur boxers competes in an international tournament in Boston.

Between Rounds

The deal whereby Motor Square Garden was to take over the Moose Temple as a farm for the development of young boxers is off. Joe Mazer, manager of the Garden, today issued a statement in which he said he did not know Apples Meyers still planned to promote at the Moose when that arena was tendered to the Garden and that, with Meyers still in the field, he was adopting a hands off policy. The boxing commission had granted the Garden permission to operate both clubs, but Mazer says he does not wish to be placed in the position of enjoying a monopoly on the local boxing situation.

Ted Yarosz, of Monessen, who meets Jimmy Belmont at the Garden on Christmas afternoon, will take on a tune-up bout at East Liverpool, O., Thursday night to prepare himself following his layoff because of a broken hand. His opponent has not yet been named.

TONY MARINO GREAT RING PROSPECT

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

The best looking young flatic prospect in the Pittsburgh district right now is young Tony Marino, of Duquesne, 21 years old, a brother of Tommy Ryan, the former bantamweight star. He made his first professional appearance in a Pittsburgh ring last Monday night at Motor Square Garden, winning by a technical knockout in four rounds over Tony Shea, kid brother of Eddie Shea, the featherweight ace, of Chicago.

This fellow Marino is no bigger than the proverbial minute, but he has a lot of stuff and he amazed the ringsiders with his class. It was only his sixth professional bout, and you wondered where he had learned all of the tricks he placed on tap. He feints like nobody's business, and, when he has his opponent off balance, leads sharply with his right. He moves about and jabs and hooks with precision. He fights off the ropes, weaves, bobs and ducks, and is a showman from the tips of his toes to the top of his head. Barring accident, he should be an ace main-bouter before this winter has fled.

SELF-TAUGHT BOXER

I asked Tony how he came by all of his stuff and he said he worked it out himself. He received his early training from Duke O'Hara, coach of many amateur and professional boxers in the McKeesport district, and engaged in 80 amateur bouts before turning professional, a year and a half ago. During his stay in the amateur ranks, he boxed Mose Butch three times, winning their final meeting; met Jackie Wilson three times and won two of the bouts; battled Sammy Paris three times and won twice, and took down the decision twice in five starts against Johnny Warner. All of these boxers since have won their share of engagements as professionals, and Marino right now, for a mixer of his limited professional experience, looks like the pick of the lot.

Tony has been boxing three and one-half years all told. He has two other brothers besides Tommy, now retired from the ring. They are Ralph, 19, and Patrick, 17. He also has six sisters. He says Tommy's ring career had nothing to do with his own entry into the sport. He got into it against Tommy's advice, to help out his folks, and wanted to start in as a professional at once, but got into the amateur end and remained there to serve a long apprenticeship while learning his trade as a painter at the Homestead Steel Works, where he still is employed.

READY TO QUIT RING

A bad hand caused Tony to lay off after his first three professional bouts, and, when he failed to get going again, he became discouraged and was just about ready to quit boxing when Reed Brown, himself a former flyweight and bantamweight boxer, who had boxed Tony's brother, Tommy Ryan (whose real name before he had it legally changed to Tommy Ryan was Charles Marino), came along and picked him up. He has had three bouts in the last six weeks and boxes Johnny Edwards in a windup of 10 rounds at Wheeling on December 21, after which he will be seen here again.

Marino's professional record so far includes two six-round victories over Young Ketchel, of Steubenville, the first at the Meyers Bowl and the second at McKeesport; six-round wins over Georgie Sotak and Georgie Tomosky in McKeesport, a one-round knockout over Cleo McNeil in McKeesport and that slashing victory over Tony Shea. Just keep an eye on this 115-118-pounder. He has the stuff with which to go places and do things in a big way.

Six Grid Players Invited by Hanley

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Coach Dick Hanley, of Northwestern, who, with Andy Kerr, of Colgate, will coach the East team in the annual East-West Shrine charity football game at San Francisco New Year's Day, has issued invitations to join the squad to six Midwest stars.

Marchmont Schwartz, halfback, and Frank Hoffman, guard, of Notre Dame, received bids, as did Bill Hewitt, Michigan fullback and end; Jim Purvis, halfback, and Charles Miller, center, Purdue, and Dallas Marvil, Northwestern tackle.

The Coach's Viewpoint

By Howard Harpster

(Geneva College Coach and former All-America star at Carnegie Tech.)

The benefit football game for the needy at the Stadium on Saturday was a spectacle that will be long remembered . . . It made history in that it brought Duquesne University favorably into the local big-time football picture, setting the stage for future meetings with Carnegie and Pitt and at the same time showed the world that when it comes to doing its bit in times of stress the good old game of football is not behind its brother sports . . . The crowd of close to 43,000 was a tribute to the sportsmanship of the Pittsburgh public.

Howard Harpster

The statistics of the game show that Carnegie had the edge, although the score still stood 0-0 at the finish . . . It is a pity that the teams were not permitted to play regulation 15-minute quarters, for I feel certain that under those conditions a decision might have been arrived at . . . Either team might have won . . . The Dukes were just getting going, with Halfback DeLuca in the game, when time was up, after having fought with their backs to the wall throughout up to this point.

It was as cleanly-played a game as I have seen this year, yet it did not lack for hard fighting on the part of both teams . . . At times the tackling was vicious . . . For instance, this fellow Krankota, the Dukes' end, was a revelation in the manner in which he got down under kicks and tackled the receiver hard and sure in his tracks . . . At times the linemen sifted through and smothered the attack and piled up the man with the ball . . . I think the Dukes came out of the fracas in fine style . . . The result should do much to make them a formidable opponent for Pitt next season . . . They will go into that battle with a lot of confidence, after this fine showing against Tech, a team that has held all of its major opponents to low scores under handicaps this year.

It is seldom that a team has so many scoring opportunities as came Tech's way and yet does not score . . . Much as I hate to criticize any players giving their all for charity, I think Carnegie's generalship might have been improved upon . . . Every time they were within scoring distance, they hit the line for a couple of plays and then tried to pass on third and fourth downs, when this was the obvious play . . . It is no wonder that the Dukes were able to set themselves to break down or intercept their passes at these critical moments . . . A fumble on the four-yard line, which sent the ball bouncing back beyond the end zone for a touchback, ruined the last and best opportunity for the Plaid.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

LAST NIGHT'S RESULT

N. Y. Americans 5—Chicago 2

By CARL W. SHATTO

The Yellow Jackets, home yesterday for a quick stop-over following their Saturday night 1-1 overtime deadlock with the Bisons in Buffalo, were en route today to Windsor, Ont., where they will lock horns with the International Hockey League club of that lake port tomorrow night.

The Jackets handed the Bulldogs, league champions, a 5-0 setback here last week.

Only two points behind Buffalo, the league leader, the local ice chasers hope to keep up their good work by turning in another triumph.

Cleveland moved into second place, with only a point to the good over the Jackets, by tripping the Syracuse Stars last night, and first place honors after tonight's jousting will be dependent greatly upon the outcome of the battle in Buffalo between the Indians and Bisons.

In any event, the Jackets are still in the running for top honors, and Buffalo and Cleveland will have to step to keep the locals from grabbing the top position.

DETROIT 1-0 VICTOR

DETROIT, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Great stick handling and beautiful goal tending enabled Detroit to defeat London, 1 to 0, in an International League hockey game here last night.

INDIANS BEAT STARS

AMERICANS AT TOP

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Two brilliantly executed plays in a generally dull hockey game gave the New York Americans a 2-to-0 victory over the Chicago Blackhawks last night. The victory put the Americans back at the top of the Canadian division of the National Hockey League.

With one of the largest crowds of the season lining the field, Curry defeated Bridgeville, 1 goal to 0, in the feature game of the Keystone Soccer League at South Park yesterday.

Curry—1.		Bridgeville—0.

Morgan nosed out Gallatin, 1 goal to 0, at Monessen. Fans broke in on the Cecil-Morrys game and refused to let the visiting team take a penalty kick with the score tied at 1-1. The game finished without the penalty being taken, but the Morrys won by forfeit, and Cecil probably will be suspended by the league.

In the Monongahela League, Hill Crest upset the dope by defeating Manown, 2 to 1. Alla Hollow failed to appear at Dunlevy.

In the West Penn Junior Cup, Heidelberg defeated Cuddy, 4 to 2; Shannon Juniors and Shannon Owls battled to a 1-1 tie; Primrose ousted the Gallatin Braves, 3 to 0, while Moon Run kept its great form to beat Cedar Grove, 1 to 0.

In the Panhandle League, Home Circle tied Coverdale, 0-0; Reading beat the Veronas, 4 to 2, and Curry Juniors beat the Scotts, 5 to 0.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

STOCK MARKET SEE-SAWS AS BONDS GAIN

Checking of Stock List Rise Ascribed to Tax Selling; Advances Cut

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—The stock market oscillated irresolutely today, while a distinctly better tone developed in bonds.

Markets generally were disposed to await developments at Washington, Chicago, Basel and elsewhere. The convening of Congress, the meeting of the railway labor chiefs in Chicago, of the reparations advisory committee at Basel, and important dividend meetings gave promise of a full week.

A fair rally developed in the share market during the morning, but was checked around noontime by liquidation which was widely regarded in brokerage circles as tax selling. Early advances of 1 to 3 points were largely lost. New York Central sagged 2 points below Saturday's close and Standard of New Jersey more than 1, in fairly active selling. United States Steel sold off a point, then recovered partly.

The better tone in the bond market particularly in the rails and foreigns gave fresh evidence of the stilling of much of last week's uneasiness. While Wall street seems but mildly hopeful of the results of the meeting of railway labor delegates to consider the carriers' request for a reduction in wages, Wall street does not anticipate a serious controversy. An early and favorable decision from the Interstate Commerce Commission on the carrier's qualified acceptance of the increased freight rate plan was again rumored.

Selling to establish income tax losses is usually a factor in the stock market at this time.

Some of the recent rumors about Central Europe were stilled by Adolf Hitler's statement to the Associated Press that his party would seek power through established political means.

WHEAT RALLIES AFTER DROP

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Downturns in grain prices early today resulted from weakness of sterling exchange and from Liverpool reports of lack of demand for wheat. Curtailment of wheat supplies afloat for importing countries failed to act as a counter-balance. Opening 3/8@3/4 cent lower, wheat subsequently rallied somewhat. Corn started at a shade to 1/8 decline and later steadied.

Fairly active speculative buying which sprang up during early setbacks in wheat prices turned the market upward later to above Saturday's finish. More favorable action of the New York stock market tended at this stage to induce buying. A further stimulus to bullish sentiment came from Russian reports that allowing for army requirements and the smallest possible reserves the government collected grain now totaled less than one-half of the original estimates, and that all over Russia both state farms and collective farms have been withholding grain.

Forbes

Latest Trend Is Sideways; Lies By Bears.

—By B. C. FORBES—

Mr. Forbes

BUSINESS by and large is moving sideways rather than up or down. Meanwhile, steady progress is made in preparing the way for recovery.

Stocks held their own last week notwithstanding that short sellers became more audacious and unscrupulous than ever in circulating false alarmist rumors.

The general price level has not declined further this month. Wheat has advanced and cotton has held its own.

Retail reports are a shade more cheerful.

Apprehension over possible political developments at Washington has subsided and President Hoover's announced plans for aiding hard pressed railroads and for stimulating house building made a good impression at the weekend.

Monetary developments continue encouraging.

THIS COLUMN is swamped with letters protesting against the New York Stock Exchange's attitude towards depressers of quotations, the short sellers. There is overwhelming demand that, since security quotations have already been hammered to the lowest levels in years, the exchange governors should no longer countenance further attacks by bears. Indignation is expressed that the brokers constituting the board of governors should daily collect short selling data and retain it exclusively for their own guidance, keeping those who maintain the institution entirely in the dark, the customers.

Investors continue to tell this writer that, while they regard many stocks as extraordinarily cheap, they are afraid to buy so long as short sellers are permitted to play havoc with the market. Presumably the most vicious rumors will continue to be energetically circulated while bears are permitted to exercise their depredations.

INDIVIDUAL after individual who has returned from visiting various parts of the country declares that sentiment is distinctly less nervous. They unanimously agree that "Wall street" is regarded as the most disturbing influence and that unprecedented hostility has been generated. The more thoughtful, those familiar with the workings of finance are apprehensive over what Washington may attempt in the way of "corrective" legislation.

THE DISASTROUS shrinkage in railway earnings and railway bond and stock quotations causes acute anxiety. The Interstate Commerce Commission's miserable failure to act constructively is exciting a growing demand that Congress recognize the woeful incompetency of that body and pass remedial legislation. America's life insurance companies, banks, savings banks, universities, hospitals to say nothing of innumerable private estates, are loaded up with railway investments. Unless something effective be done promptly to stop the descent of our railroads towards bankruptcy, the consequences would be appalling.

President Hoover demonstrates by his proposed huge railway financing corporation that he is alive to the menacing gravity of the situation. But the I. C. C. persist in its do-nothing policy. Its members have long given fatal proof that they are incapable of grasping the far-reaching consequences of their purely punitive line of action—and inaction.

Meanwhile, even our strongest railway systems issue worse and worse earnings statements. Not only have shares fallen to lower levels than any this generation has known, but bonds are tumbling lamentably. Billions of railway securities threaten to become ineligible as "legal" investments.

The financial world hopes that employes of our railroads will exhibit more statesmanship than the regulators, the overlords of our railroads have exhibited.

DEVELOPMENTS in industry and finance are still mixed.

Hoarding has ceased. Bank failures now that the National Credit Corporation is functioning are rare. Our stock of gold is rising. Brokers' loans are dwindling to almost the vanishing point—only 10 per cent of what they were at the 1929 peak. Most foreign exchanges favor this country.

On the other hand, few industries report improved activity. Bank clearings are abnormally light. Railway traffic has not yet begun to expand. Prices are irregular. Regarding unemployment the best that can be said is that figures don't become worse.

Foreign affairs still occasion concern. In its present childishly pessimistic mood "Wall street" pictures Germany as on the brink of chaos. This view is not shared by international bankers.

A CHANGE in sentiment could change the whole prospect. How soon this change will come, no mortal can foretell. But come it most certainly will.

COTTON SHOWS SLIGHT GAIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Cotton opened steady today, unchanged to 1 point lower on some southern and continental selling. January sold off to 6.03.

The selling was taken by trade and local buying and orders appeared to be quite evenly divided at the start. Later January advanced from 6.03 to 6.06 and May from 6.40 to 6.43, making the market about net unchanged to 2 points higher, but general business was quiet and traders appeared to be waiting for some fresh development or tomorrow's government crop report.

The market continued quiet later in the morning, but there was very little selling while there was enough covering or trade buying to maintain a generally steady undertone. January contracts sold at 6.06c and May, 6.44c, or 1 to 3 points net higher, and the market was within a point or two either way of Saturday's closing quotations around 12 o'clock.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 7.—Cotton—Spot, good business done; prices nine points higher; quotations in pence. American strict good middling 5.98; good middling 5.58; strict middling 5.38; middling 5.28; strict low middling 5.18; low middling 5.08; good ordinary 4.58. Receipts 13,100 bales, all American. Futures closed quiet. December 5.00; January 4.98; March 4.96; May 4.96; July 4.97; October 4.99; December 5.01.

TRADE REVIEW BARES ERRORS OF EXPERTS

Economic Trend Surprises Mark History of Year; Prosperity Loan Favored

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—When the economic history of 1931 comes to be written, it will go down not only as a year of acute depression, but also as one of numerous surprises.

It has been a singularly poor year for forecasting. Average of economic [illegible] in the year business southsayers [illegible] to the [illegible] that recovery would be accelerated as the year advanced. Early tangible domestic indications seemed a [illegible] the beginning of the end, to warrant such a forecast, and for the first third of the year the net trend was moderately upward in home business.

Mr. Rukeyser

The winter and spring recovery paralleled a similar movement in 1930, but as in the previous year the incipient recuperation failed to follow through and yielded to still further declines. In 1930 the recovery was retarded by revolutions and collapses overseas, and this year manifestations of acute weakness in Central Europe and elsewhere dampened enthusiasm after there had been clear manifestations of a [illegible] regularly upward trend in general business at home.

Financial weakness abroad developed through the summer and reached a peak in September when Great Britain temporarily abandoned the gold standard. Up to that point destructive forces had succeeded in taking one fortress after another. Then came the onslaught against the American dollar which was happily repulsed. That evidence of strength led to the hope that the world had seen the worst of financial disturbances. The victory of the dollar, after a withdrawal of $700,000,000 in gold, resulted in a return flow of gold from abroad and a reduction of hoarding at home. The creation of the National Credit Corporation helped to allay financial fears.

Numerous scientific economists lean to the view that the situation needs stimulus in the form of controlled credit expansion through the flotation of a huge federal prosperity loan to finance the construction of public works on a larger scale. President Hoover indicated lack of enthusiasm for the proposal in his Indianapolis speech and is unlikely to reverse himself in his forthcoming message to Congress. Nevertheless, the national legislature is expected to look into the merits of the proposal on its own initiative. Published data on public work activities of the federal government in the last two years are not sufficiently complete for independent students of the problem, and Congress could render a real service by undertaking to amass such information.

Current Position Grows in Investment Importance

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

CURRENT ASSETS ARE BECOMING of increased importance to the study of the investment merits of corporations. During the years of good business they were a secondary consideration since a profitable organization had little difficulty in arranging new financing. But the present situation has made working capital one of the primary points in appraising the desirability of a stock or a bond.

The difficulties being faced by many companies, due to their inability to do new financing, are calling attention to the important distinction between a large surplus and a strong cash position. Surplus accounts usually represent the reinvestment of earnings over long periods of years. They are rarely in the form of liquid assets. They are a measure of growth but have no relation to current financial position.

An understanding of the meaning of the various current items on a balance sheet is necessary in order to determine a corporation's ability to weather the conditions of a severe business depression.

Meaning of Current Assets

THE CURRENT ASSETS shown on a balance sheet include all the resources of a corporation in the form of cash or in forms which can be converted into cash within a short time. In addition to cash, the usual current assets shown on a balance sheet are accounts receivable, notes receivable, inventories and marketable securities.

Accounts receivable represent money owed to the company and payable within a short time. Notes receivable represent money owed by customers which is to be paid at specified dates over a longer period. Inventories represent materials on hand, products in process of manufacture and finished goods ready for sale. Marketable securities represent surplus funds invested in stocks or bonds.

Current Liabilities

AGAINST THESE RESOURCES the balance sheet will show current liabilities. These include all the obligations of a company which must be paid in the near future. They are usually accounts payable, notes or bills payable and reserves for taxes. Accounts payable represent money owed for materials purchased, salaries owed to employes and similar items. Notes and bills payable represent money owed to banks or other short term obligations. The reserve for taxes represents the estimated amounts payable to the United States government in the coming year. Bonds are not considered to be a current liability unless they will mature within a year.

The figure obtained by subtracting current liabilities from current assets is known as working capital. A common measure of a corporation's strength is the current ratio, or the number of times current liabilities can be divided into current assets. The size of this ratio will vary widely in different industries. Usually a corporation is considered to be in a strong position if its current assets are three times its current liabilities.

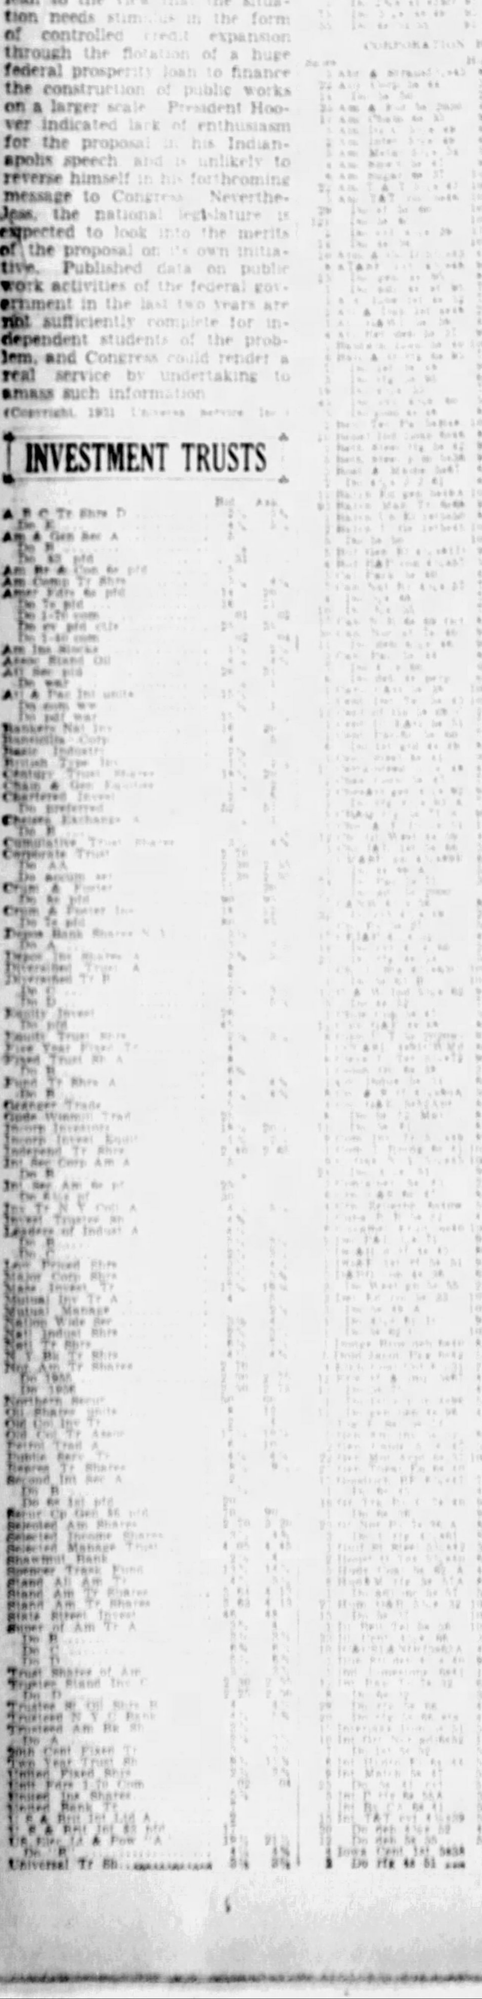
Close Study Needed

WHILE A COMPARISON of current assets to current liabilities serves as a convenient rule of thumb for measuring a company's strength, a closer study of the individual items is necessary in order to determine the real ability of an organization to steer through the difficulties of a business depression. All the items under current assets can not always be taken at their face value. The elements entering into a detailed study of current assets will be discussed in this column tomorrow.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Hope for constructive measures being enacted by the new congress which opened today, together with somewhat lessened apprehension regarding the German economic situation made for higher prices in the recently shaken bond market.

Foreign obligations, especially the Germans, were firm and United States Government loans, particularly the liberties, sold at increasing figures. The treasury's announcement of its new financing plans removed doubts which have existed as to the terms of its short-term offerings.



A. T. T. TO EARN $9.50 SHARE

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP.)—Dow, Jones & Co. says that despite a probable drop of slightly above 1 per cent in total telephones for the Bell System for 1931, American Telegraph and Telephone Company net earnings for the year should be equal to around $9.50 a common share, based on usual contributions from subsidiary companies and without dipping into undivided equities of its subsidiaries.

Though new financing has not been discussed and the 1932 improvement and expansion program has not been made public, Dow, Jones declares it is reasonable to assume that the strength of A. T. & T. bonds in an otherwise weak market will lead the company to obtain new funds through the sale of obligations, rather than by the issue of new stock.

Syracuse to Get Gas From Lycoming

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Syracuse Lighting Company, a subsidiary of Niagara and Hudson Power Corporation, has entered into a contract with the New York State Natural Gas Corporation, a subsidiary of the Lycoming Natural Gas Company, to bring natural gas to Syracuse, N. Y., from the recently discovered Pennsylvania and New York State gas fields.

Lycoming Natural Gas Company is controlled by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, but a substantial interest in the company is owned also by the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation.

Wholesale Index At New Low Mark

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The wholesale price index of the National Fertilizer Association established a new low in the week ended December 5, when it stood at 66.0. This figure reflects a decline of 8 fractional points from the preceding week. The previous low was 66.3 in the week ended October 3.

Atchison Loadings Higher for Week

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—During the week ended December 5, the Atchison handled 25,130 revenue cars, compared with 24,491 handled in the week preceding and 32,732 in the like week of 1930.

This completed "Christmas Jingle" must be in the mail before midnight, Tuesday, December 8, addressed to CHRISTMAS JINGLES, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Write No. 26 on the lower left-hand corner of your envelope. Names of winners will be published in the Sun-Telegraph one week from day this incomplete "jingle" appears.

JINGLES PROVE PROBLEM TO JUDGES

Coraopolis Woman Wins $5 for Praise of 'Giver'; Much Variety in Entries

"Christmas Jingle" No. 19 had a wide variety of last lines submitted. They ran from the sublime to the ridiculous. "Cheerful giver" was the most common ending, and one rhymester thought "bacon and liver" might jingle enough to get a prize.

The judges, however, thought that Mrs. W. B. Fleming, 1530 State avenue, Coraopolis, had the best line and she was awarded the Sun-Telegraph check for $5, which will probably come in handy for her Christmas needs.

WINNING LINE

Just think of some soul
Without food, clothes or coal,
And remember that "Blest is the giver!"

The five $1 prize winners were: Daniel Docchio, 1210 Boundary street, Aliquippa; Mrs. Fred Green, 732 Garfield avenue, Alliance, O.; Florence Armstrong, Logan Ferry, New Kensington; Effie F. Gearing, 127 Meridan street, Samuel English, Coraopolis.

Try your hand on No. 26, appearing on this page today. If you submit what the judges think is the best of all "last lines" sent in you get a check for $5. The five next best "last lines" will each be awarded $1.

READERS MAY COMPETE

All readers of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, with the exception of employes, are invited to enter the "Christmas Jingle" contest. You can send in as many last lines as you like. Equal awards will be paid to readers whose answers are tied in the judging. You do not have to buy a Sun-Telegraph to enter this contest. You may examine the files of this newspaper at the public library or at any one of the offices of the Sun-Telegraph, where you may make a tracing of the "Christmas Jingles" blank if you wish.

Each Sun-Telegraph "Christmas Jingle" will be consecutively numbered.

In Memoriam 1-B

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Albert Bradle, who passed away one year ago today, December 7, 1930.

We loved him, oh, no tongue can tell
How much we loved him and how well.
God loved him, too, and thought it best
To take him home with Him to rest.

NO. 580.

AN ORDINANCE—Granting unto P. McGraw Wood Company, its successors and assigns the right to construct, maintain and use one 8-inch pipe under and across Allows River avenue for the purpose of transporting water from the Allegheny River to the property of the P. McGraw Wood Company, Upper Plant, Twenty-fourth Ward, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That P. McGraw Wood Company, its successors and assigns, be and they are hereby granted the right and authority, at its own cost and expense to construct, maintain and use one 8-inch pipe line under and across River avenue, beginning at a point located five hundred and (500) feet northeast from the northeasterly corner of River avenue and Lumberman's way and thence crossing River avenue at right angles for a distance of forty (40) feet, and at an approximate depth of twenty (20) feet, for the purpose of transporting water from the Allegheny River to the property of the P. McGraw Wood Company, Upper Plant, Twenty-fourth Ward, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The said 8-inch pipe line shall be constructed and maintained in accordance with a plan hereto attached and on file in the office of the Department of Public Works, Bureau of Highways and Sewers, and in the office of the Department of Public Works, Bureau of Engineering and Construction, and marked Folder B 385.

SECTION 2. The said P. McGraw Wood Company, prior to beginning the construction of the said pipe line, shall submit to the Director of the Department of Public Works, for approval, a complete set of plans showing the location and all details for the construction of the said pipe line, and said plans and the construction of the said pipe line shall be subject to the approval and supervision of the said Director.

SECTION 3. The rights and privileges herein granted shall be subject and subordinate to the rights of the City of Pittsburgh and its powers over City streets, and to the Ordinances of the City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and to the provisions of any general ordinance which may hereafter be passed relating to the regulation and control of pipe lines in City streets and compensation for same.

SECTION 4. The said grantee shall bear the full cost and expense of the repairing and repair of the street pavement, gutters, curbs, repair of sewers, water mains and other surface and subsurface structures which may be in any way damaged or disturbed by reason of the construction, maintenance and use of said pipe line, and in the event said work is not done by the grantee, and work of repairing of the street damaged shall be done in the manner and at such times as the Director may order and shall be subject to the approval and supervision.

SECTION 5. The rights and privileges granted by this Ordinance are granted upon the express condition that the City of Pittsburgh, without liability on its part, reserves the right, without assigning any specific reasons therefor, to cause the grantee to remove and relay the said pipe line upon giving six (6) months written notice thereof to the Director of the Department of Public Works to P. McGraw Wood Company, its successors and assigns, provided that if the said grantee when so notified shall, at the expiration of the said six (6) months written notice, forthwith change the location of or remove the said pipe line and replace the street in the original condition as it was before the said pipe line was laid, then and in such case none of the provisions of this Ordinance shall be construed to operate to the benefit of the grantee in such manner as to confer any other right to maintenance and use of said pipe line, save as herein provided.

SECTION 6. That said grantee shall assume any liability of the City of Pittsburgh for damages to persons or property, including the street and subsurface structures thereof, on account of the construction, maintenance and use of said pipe line and it is a condition of this grant that the City of Pittsburgh assumes no liability to either persons or property on account of the construction, maintenance and use of said pipe line, and said grantee hereby covenants and agrees to defend, at its own proper costs any suit or suits for damages arising out of the construction, maintenance or use of said pipe line.

SECTION 7. That the rights, powers and privileges are granted subject to the following condition, to-wit: This Ordinance shall become null and void unless within thirty (30) days after its passage and approval by the Mayor, the said grantee shall file with the City Controller its certificate of acceptance of the provisions thereof, and certificate to be executed by the president and secretary of the company, and under its corporate seal.

SECTION 8. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

Passed in Council, November 23, 1931.
Approved, December 7, 1931.
CHARLES H. KLINE, Mayor.
Recorded in O. B. Vol. 44, Page 306.

NO. 581.

AN ORDINANCE—Amending section 2 of an Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance designating depositories for the moneys of the City of Pittsburgh, and the payment of interest thereon, and to provide for the payment of interest thereon," approved October 7, 1930, as amended by Ordinance approved January 13, 1931; authorizing in addition to other forms of security the acceptance of gold notes issued by the National Credit Corporation at their face value and to be delivered to the Treasurer of the City of Pittsburgh; and providing that the proceeds of bonds which shall at the market price be considered as satisfactory security.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, that Section 2 of an Ordinance, entitled "An Ordinance designating depositories for the moneys of the City of Pittsburgh, to require deposits therein and providing for the payment of interest thereon," approved December 7, 1930, as amended by Ordinance approved January 13, 1931, be further amended to read as follows, to-wit:

SECTION 2. The banks and trust companies, or trust companies shall furnish to the City of Pittsburgh bonds of the United States, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Allegheny County, City of Pittsburgh, and of a political sub-division of the State of Pennsylvania, and of a surety company approved by the Courts of the County of Allegheny, the City Treasurer and the City Controller, and of corporate bonds at 125% of their face value, and gold notes issued by the National Credit Corporation at ninety-ten (90%) of their face value to an amount equal to the sum of deposits to insure the safety of the same, and the bonds and notes aforesaid, which bonds and notes are to be delivered to the Treasurer of the City of Pittsburgh and his receipt given therefor.

THE CITY TREASURER shall deposit all bonds and notes, except surety bonds, so given for the purpose of securing the funds of the City of Pittsburgh, in safe deposit box or boxes to be provided for the said depositories at their own cost and expense, and satisfactory to the City Treasurer, and shall deposit all bonds and notes, except surety bonds, so given for the purpose of securing the funds of the City of Pittsburgh, in safe deposit box or boxes to be provided for the said depositories at their own cost and expense, and satisfactory to the City Treasurer, and shall deposit all bonds and notes, except surety bonds, so given for the purpose of securing the funds of the City of Pittsburgh, in safe deposit box or boxes to be provided for the said depositories at their own cost and expense, and satisfactory to the City Treasurer, and shall deposit all bonds and notes, except surety bonds, so given for the purpose of securing the funds of the

Young Dancing Teacher Says He Is in Love With Laurel's Mother

CHAPTER XV.

He was immaculately dressed. His teeth and hands were very white and carefully tended. His hair shone like burnished lacquer.

He looked distingue . . . so she told herself. There was fine Spanish blood in his veins. One could tell it by the regularity of his features, by the sensitive cut nostrils.

Although he shaved twice a day, he had that blue-chinned look which made him seem a little theatrical.

A fascinating youth was he she thought. Was it the lotion on his hair or perfume on his handkerchief that was so delicately intoxicating?

"I have waited for this moment . . . hoped for it . . . from the first moment I have seen you, querida mia," he was saying now, gently, sweetly, moving a shade nearer her.

"Ah! those Spanish words—what do they mean?" She was a-flutter.

"Do not ask me, because if I began, I say too much—I say all that is in my heart to you—"

"You—you mustn't do that—" But she wished he would. It was tremendously flattering to have this handsome youth aflame for her . . .

"My heart has been singing little songs all day because I know that after tiresome lessons I come to you." He spoke with native artless naivete. His eyes were inky pools one mustn't look into, for fear of drowning . . .

Oh! she oughtn't to be here! If Laurel knew what would she think? AND MICHAEL, her husband?

"You are beautiful, diosa mia. All last night I have dreamt about you . . ."

"Mi queridissima, tell me—you are not hurt?"

"No. No." She drew away from his embrace. (Could the chauffeur see them in that little mirror fixed on his windscreen?)

SPEAKS OF LOVE

"The moments are so short. Why then does he drive—what is the expression—hell for leather?"

She concurred in that. It was so wonderful with handsome Diaz . . . here in this seclusion.

If only he were older! (That 20 years' difference in their ages!) If only he weren't quite so attractive-looking!

"You are so beautiful today. Tell me, you, too, have been looking forward to these moments?"

She blushed like a girl. She swallowed and nodded.

"Today, then, will be the first—?"

"Of what?"

"You—you enjoy seeing me, you mean?"

His slim white hand closed over hers. "You ask such a thing, and all the time you know—you know so well that my heart is a little garden for you to walk in!"

"But yes! I have come here to be alone with you . . . to pour out everything into your ears. In my country we worship beauty . . . and to be in love is everything."

IN LOVE? The handsome Diaz was in love? With HER?

Diaz loved her. Diaz would rejuvenate her . . .

SPANIARD KISSES HER

Constance didn't feel like eating anything, she was so excited.

Glowed for HER who had been married 20 years! She still had appeal, even tho' she was all of 46!

What was the phrase her daughter had used?

Biological Urge!

But things mustn't be allowed to go too far. It was up to her to control, to calm this ardent Latin!

He was telling her he was 'in love' . . . that a charming woman had no age . . . that she was beautiful as the sunshine . . .

After the years of Michael's neglect—he HAD neglected her . . . she saw that now—this devotion was intoxicating.

"You do not love that husband of yours. He does not understand you. He does not know the meaning of the word love.—Like all the American husbands he is only a dollar chaser!"

That was going rather far . . . Or—

He came round to her side of the tea table, drew her to her feet and put his arms about her.

"Now—I kiss you—"

She oughtn't to let him. She was married . . . a mother for 19 years.

The kiss seemed to have no end.

"You are beautiful and I love you, and you are mine," Diaz was saying, over and over.

"No. No. Please — let me think—"

"Love has nothing to do with the brain!"

"But if anyone should know that I am here?"

"So you only think of what people say? You have no heart, then?"

"Yes. No. No Diaz—" —as he lifted her in his arms—"you mustn't do that. Oh, put me down . . ."

"I will put you down—" —he set her on a sofa—"and I will kneel at your feet and you can kick them into my heart, because you are a cruel woman."

"No, Diaz, not cruel," she gasped out, with a sudden flash of wisdom, "not cruel—only love-starved—and FOOLISH."

* * *

"God! Help me! I can't SEE . . ."

"That drink! My EYES! God! Where AM I?"

She stumbled wildly towards that voice that seemed so far away . . . that had come to her out of the blackness.

She wailed: "Imogen—Oh, Imogen! I can't see anything! Where are you?"

Then suddenly she found the switch. Light flooded the room.

"Now what's the row? What's this about your eyes? What're you making the ungodly noise for, Laurel?"

"I thought my eyes had gone, Im. It was too awful!"

"Well, helling around in the dark, what did you expect? You have torn a window shade and busted a lamp and a table!"

"I woke up, Im, and wanted the light, and it wouldn't come, and I thought I was blind, I tell you!"

"Shut up! You're nothing of the sort. You've still got the same come-hitherish optics!"

"Such an awful fright! Did you hear me praying God to help me?"

"Yes—and if Timmy doesn't burst in here and throw us out, it isn't that we don't deserve it!"

"Imogen, what happened after the night club? Did—did I pass right out of the picture?"

"Did you! And how!"

But not even that distressing news could abate Laurel's relief.

Her eyes were still intact. The terrible fate that had fallen others in strange speakeasies with bad drinks wasn't to be hers, after all. She still had her sight. God had been merciful!

* * *

Constance was nervously keyed-up, though Laurel—her mind immersed in the hectic doings of the last few days—didn't sense her mother's excitement.

"What are you planning to do Saturday night, Laurel?"

"Nothing in particular. I feel all in. This week has sure been a wowie!"

"What have you been up to?" But Constance only had a faint interest in the answer.

"You're a strange, cynical, child. I wasn't too pleased when Imogen phoned the other evening."

"About us staying overnight in town?"

"We were okay. Mixed up in no specific brawls, if that's what you are worrying over."

Her mother smiled faintly. "Well, I suppose in this age, THAT'S something to be thankful for."

Thought Laurel, guiltily: "If she knew about the swimming orgy up at Timmy's, and the queer speakeasy, and the 'Hot Feet' cabaret, and the way I went out like a light, she'd throw a fit or two . . ."

But WOULD she?

What did anybody care about WHAT she did?

Hadn't she come home, repentant, and hoping there would be a phone call from that young doctor?

Would Constance speak about him now? Constance seemed to have something on her mind. She'd been awfully coy that day he came to tea with her . . . but at Connie's age she couldn't possibly consider herself in the running with that young fellow . . .?

Yet Mrs. Delahunt . . . they said . . . went in for men that were even younger than Bruce Harvey . . .

Oh, confound those evil-mouthed talkers!

"So? Anybody new?"

"I asked a Dr. Harvey."

"You did? Isn't he handsome?"

"You know him?"

"Slightly."

"Laurel, where did you meet him?"

"On the banks of the Wabash far away. He's just another big brother."

"I wish you'd stop that slang and speak sensible, Laurel."

"Scuse!" Her heart was beating a tattoo of excitement, but she mustn't slip one hint of it to her mother.

She said now, pertly, because Connie mustn't see her interest in this man: "I take it you don't want this chee-ild to butt in on your party?"

"You're too young, Laurel."

"Time alone'll remedy that, dear heart. But I daresay I'll breeze in later on if nothing better turns up."

She WOULD be there. She'd wear her loveliest dress. Maybe—who knows?—on Saturday night she might crash the wall of "his" indifference to her . . .?

Dr. Harvey would be there—and so would she, thought Laurel.

Synopsis

Laurel Oakes, "modern" to the minute, is invited by her friend, Imogen Gay, who is even more sophisticated, to attend a party in an old deserted farmhouse. When the party gets too wild for Laurel she leaves and meets Bruce Harvey, a young physician, who takes her home. Laurel tells her mother that pleasure means more to her than love or romance. Laurel, attracted to him, fails to make a favorable impression on Dr. Harvey. Harvey tells Laurel that she ought to stop seeking pleasure and get married. Laurel goes to a party at Timmy Tewson's. Imogen wins a bet by plunging in Tewson's pool and then he asks her to leave the place. Laurel's mother arranges to meet Diaz, a Spanish dancer 20 years her junior.

Now Go On

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Winter Rain

The winter rain comes down on field and wood
While leafless branches shudder through the night—
Cold winter rain, that mocks my lonely mood
With slanting barriers that shut out the light

Of moon and stars that would have brought some share
Of comfort with their silver loveliness;
But searching now I do not find them there,

From cold and starless night, from falling rain;
I hug one solace warmly to my breast,
Forgetting now the angry wind's refrain.

Will help earth quicken violets in March.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Saturday was another great day for the Warner Theaters-Sun-Telegraph Junior Komic Club. Big meetings were held in the 15 theaters where chapters have been organized. Hundreds of new members were enrolled and received membership cards and buttons.

At the Harris (downtown) chapter, Tampa, the magician, kept the children in roars of laughter, pulling the most surprising things out of little boys' coats, making articles disappear right before your eyes. Next Saturday he will give a show at the Rowland Theater, Wilkinsburg.

SOUTH HILLS CROWDED

Every seat in the South Hills Dormont Theater was filled and many children were standing. Parents of the members in this chapter take a great interest in the club and hundreds of adults were in the audience Saturday morning.

Uncle Kay Dee appeared at the South Hills, and Rosemary, the little singer and accordion player sang and played. She led the audience in popular songs. Next week Uncle Kay Dee and Rosemary will visit the Harris Theater, Etna.

DISPLAY OF TOYS

Guarding the big display of toys for the poor children, in the lobby of the theater were Members Guy Bulifant, Charles Walter, Louis Williams, Edward Shaw and George Brobst. These toys will be repaired by members of the fire department of Dormont, assisted by club women of the community, and will be distributed among the less fortunate children in Dormont borough on Christmas Eve.

The attendance at Etna chapter took another big jump Saturday. Children in the neighborhood are always sure of having a good time and tell all their friends about it. Dervin, the ventriloquist, was the chief stage attraction and prizes were awarded for the contests held.

The Navy League's Reply

The Navy League's preliminary reply to the President's committee does not attempt to answer its charges in detail. Mr. Howe has preferred to single out a few high spots in that extraordinary document by which to test its reliability, accuracy and good faith.

The warmest supporters of the administration must admit that the result is a shocking revelation of haste, carelessness and misquotation, to say nothing of avoidance of the main issue.

As was recognized at the time of its selection, the personnel of the committee—constituted of personal friends and official appointees—foreclosed the possibility of a judicial finding.

The haste with which the indictment was drawn up and voted, without the slightest opportunity for the Navy League to be heard in its defense, raised grave suspicions of its reliability even as a basis for Congressional investigation.

Yet we doubt if anyone suspected that Mr. Hoover's committee would be subjected to such garbled evidence as is now revealed. We do not believe for an instant that any of the gentlemen who composed the committee intended such a deception. But the exhibition of haste and carelessness involved is all the greater, assuming, as we are glad to do, the good faith of the members.

With the Navy League's table in front of its eyes, to misstate its contents and transpose its figures so that the 13.1 of Great Britain was ascribed to Japan is one of those incomprehensible blunders which in the most charitable interpretation writes down the committee's expert adviser, whoever he was, as an ass.

We have no wish to take up the reply in further detail. The findings of the President's committee never had any probative force. Now that its gross inaccuracy has been revealed, it can be treated as an indictment only with every reserve.

Yet we think the country will welcome the endeavor of the Navy League to return the discussion to the one really vital issue. The country is far more concerned in the question of national safety than in any question of detailed figures, garbled or ungarbled.

Has the administration adequately supported the Navy toward this end? Does Mr. Hoover understand the full responsibility of a fleet? Here are issues much too grave to be left either to a group of the President's friends or to any private organization to decide. The Navy League's reply makes a thorough investigation by Congress a more urgent necessity than ever.

The country has little time to devote to the findings of a packed committee acting upon distorted facts. It has ample time to discover whether its first line of defense at home and for its overseas territory, and its only line of defense for its far-flung sea-borne commerce, is being properly maintained in respect to equipment, men and morale.

Excessive Punishment

A justice of the peace in Center County recently sentenced a poor man to serve 504 days in jail, in lieu of a $500 fine and costs, for shooting a deer at night with the use of an artificial light, in violation of the law.

This has brought a letter from Ross L. Leffler, president of the State Board of Game Commissioners, in which he points out the evil of shooting deer at night with the use of a light and upholds a $500 fine as a just penalty. There is not a word about the justice of a year and four months in prison as an alternative punishment for one unable to pay the fine.

It is to be feared that Mr. Leffler is either disingenuous or has missed the point of the Sun-Telegraph's comment.

We did not condemn the $500 fine. For a millionaire it might be fair enough.

The point that we made was that a simple violation of the game law, not involving moral turpitude and not directly injuring anyone, should not be punished with a prison sentence as severe as if ordinarily imposed for a robbery or felonious assault and battery.

The lawmakers who authorized a sentence of 504 days in prison for shooting a deer at night with the aid of an artificial light lacked a sense of proportion.

Each to His Taste

The Salvation Army has a new plan this year for giving Christmas dinners to the poor people of the Pittsburgh district.

Instead of presenting baskets of provisions, as in other years, the Army will issue orders on merchants in the neighborhoods in which the poor people live.

The new system is an improvement. After all, tastes differ, and it is better that families should be allowed some freedom of choice in the selection of the materials for the holiday feast. They can have it under this year's plan; formerly they couldn't.

There is danger in the heavy machine parts that must be moved and operated.

The more than 700 men employed in the four stations—Collax, Brunot's Island, James H. Reed and Stanwix—of the Duquesne Light Company's power department last week completed one year of service without a single lost-time injury, setting a new record for safety.

Bravo!

The Cost of Unpreparedness

(Copyright, 1931.)

There is a lesson for this nation in the sorry plight of China today—a lesson for all the maudlin sentimentalists, the pacifists and the internationalists who would undermine the security of this nation through fatuous disarmament agreements that deprive the country of its means of defense and thereby endanger the national safety.

China, a giant, but helpless because UNPREPARED, must accept the terms Japan, PREPARED, proffers. China can not do otherwise.

All the so-called peace machinery, the League of Nations, the Kellogg Pact, the Nine-Power Treaty, which China relied upon, FAILED in the crisis, and Japan is in Manchuria and probably THERE TO STAY.

Marry-Go-Round

Love Is Never 'Free'

Lots of modern young men and women believe theoretically that love should be "free" and that the good old marriage ties are moth-eaten.

* * *

They may go through the wedding ceremony as a concession to the social customs of "the unenlightened," but they do so apologetically, always assuring you that it is just a little matter of form. And that they will be just as "free" as though they never walked up the middle aisle and signed on the dotted line.

* * *

All of which is poppycock and self-delusion. No woman really WANTS to be free! She may momentarily want to be free from the particular man to whom she is tied—but only in order to tie herself up to some other man.

Nine women out of 10, who go to Reno, carry their hopechests with them, and step from the divorce court right to the altar to beg for a new pair of "handcuffs."

* * *

It is woman's nature to want to "belong." She MUST belong to SOMEBODY. And, if she had her way, all the knots in the marriage-tie would be Gordian knots—not slip-knots.

* * *

When a girl goes in for what is known as a "free-love experience," she soon finds that the man gets all the freedom—while the woman gets nothing but the experience.

* * *

That he is free to trot around and amuse himself with other women—while she is free to sit at home and wonder where he IS.

* * *

That he is free to break the bond, whenever it pleases him—while she is free to lie awake nights inventing ways to hold him.

* * *

That he is free to have a change of heart or a change of mind, at any moment—while she is free to step out of the way for a newer or younger face.

And that's the way it usually turns out. Because, when a woman sets her heart on one man, it "stays put." But a man's heart is like a ferry-boat—always going back and forth, and never docking anywhere, for long.

* * *

To a man, love is an intangible, uncertain thing—but marriage is a FACT. And "facts" are something that a man respects and finds it hard to escape from.

* * *

The marriage tie was not invented for the benefit of woman; but, it is the greatest boon that was ever handed to her by Old Lady Luck.

* * *

"Free love" may be free to a man—but, to a woman, it's about the most expensive experiment she can try.

* * *

No matter how free a woman may THINK she wants to feel, it's always a shock to her to wake up some morning and face the fact that she will have to change the monogram on all the guest-towels, separate the books, divide the bridge prizes—and start life all over again!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Diary of a modern Pepys. To my typing, finding epistles from Marie Dressler, Gene Tunney and Don Clarke. Then to the Keats Speeds to see their niece, Florence Simrall whom I love very much.

Dropping in on Ray Long, Jr., on the way home, we played a new game called yoho, mighty fun, too. And later to a tea, chatting to Maybell Olwell, Karl Kitchen, Charlie Driscoll and Emma Hunt. And Leon Gordon articled to paint my portrait in a gaudy house robe shortly.

To an Armenian dinner with the Earl Benhams, Zaz Hitchcock, the Frank Tours, Frank and Mary Craven, the Frank Cases and Clara Walsh, then to Miss Barrymore's "School for Scandal," incredibly dull. Later to Mayfair, dancing a twirl or two, but mostly talking with Irene Castle about our dogs.

Undoubtedly Broadway draws many pathological hybrids into its swirl. They are usually recognizable by their mignon walk and kerchief-in-the-cuff swishes. Yet I cannot believe all the insinuating whispers about this person and that. To attain celebrity on Broadway is to be besmirched. Such accusations are often the refuge of envious—implications that are never told to those slandered and thus cannot be denied. Even on Broadway there are clean living men, who have a pronounced love of art, music and other ennobling things in contrast to speakeasy smart-cracking and night club gossip. They often bear this unjust stigma.

* * *

Another type peculiar to the baroque Broadway environs is very frequently classed a gigolo, but is not. His plentiful income is an enigma. He lollops in luxury, dresses like a Bond street blood, spends money freely in gay haunts and squires an orchidaceous beauty of the moment. He can speak casually and authoritatively of Paris, London and Shanghai and has manners and niceties of speech that proclaim the gentleman. But when the question of his livelihood is brought up, Broadway indulges a characteristic shrug. If Broadway cannot find out how a man makes a living, he is a gigolo.

* * *

And there is the silly yarn that Joe Frisco popped into the Hotel Seville the other morning and asked to meet their "famous barber."

* * *

Not all orchestra leaders tire of the eight times a week monotony of their job. When G. P. Huntley was starring in "Three Little Maids" in London, Frank Tours was wielding the baton. There was a tea scene without music, lasting 20 minutes, that would have permitted Tours to escape from the pit, perhaps to a neighboring pub. Yet for 600 nights he preferred to remain and watch.

Central Park's mammoth apartment house building reached a peak as economic disorder swept its fiercest destruction in real estate values. From the Circle to 90th street there was a forlorn array of dizzy spires. Some of the most stupendous for a time had less than a half dozen tenants. But slowly they filled and several are almost to capacity. But there is still ghastly emptiness that gives bondholders a nice set of jitters.

The celebrity curtains at Chauve Souris is again a clutter of caricatures of supposedly and in instances doubtfully important figures of the day. The brush once wielded by gifted Ralph Barton was handled by the young Russian — Gard, who did the "celebrities" at Sardi's.

* * *

I once accompanied my father to a theater featuring such a curtain in hope he would spot my caricature among many adorning it. He did and observed with customary gruffness: "You'll probably wind up running a minstrel show with your name on both sides of the bass drum."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

What are you going to give Mother for Christmas?

A shiny new kitchen range? So she can make some of that swell angel-cake you're so keen about?

Or maybe a new ice box? Great to have plenty of ice cubes for you-know-what when the crowd drops in—

Or perhaps a sewing machine? That's the ticket! Mother certainly does need a new sewing machine. Why, you can have twice as many dresses if Ma makes them at home. She might even learn to make dad's shirts—Oh, yes?

And what has Ma to say about it? Probably nothing. But you might be surprised if you could know the thoughts that pass through Dear Old Mother's head when she discovers a fascinating mop or a thrilling set of muffin tins in her Christmas stocking. She'll never tell you that what she REALLY wanted was a pink lace step-in and some chiffons—even though she is size 48 and 53 and that's the way it usually turns out. Because, when a woman sets her heart on one man, it "stays put." But a man's heart is like a ferry-boat—always going back and forth, and never docking anywhere, for long.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

When you read of the death of a man who has accomplished much through long hours of study, self-denial and hard work, what is your reaction?

Does that man's life work inspire you to greater effort?

Is there anything about it that suggests to you that you are not making of yourself all that you might?

Haven't you some ideas that might be important if worked out—some suggestions for the general benefit of mankind?

What are you doing with your constructive ideas?

Just letting them simmer while you day dream as to what you might do when your ship comes in?

It is that idea of yours—minimum of effort—that halts your progress.

It is right to be efficient and save labor if you use the time saved to do something bigger and better than you did last year.

But when minimum of effort means more time given to pleasure and self indulgence you ought to be made to do hard labor incessantly to make you realize that rest time is precious and should count for more than a good time.

Rainey, Prohibition, And Programs

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

With the withdrawal of Representative O'Connor, of New York, from the Democratic contest for the leadership in the House the way was made clear for the choice of Henry T. Rainey of Illinois. The spirit which has animated the new majority in the matter of organization promises that unification of effort which has never been so essential as now.

The proper selection of a Southern man for the speakership made logical the choice of a Northern man for the leadership; since the Democratic party is the one really national party. The splendid spirit with which Southern members have co-operated to this end through the withdrawal from the leadership contest of such outstanding men as Byrnes, McDuffie, Rankin and Crisp is now matched by the action of Mr. O'Connor in the interest of harmony.

* * *

Rainey Will Not Be Reactionary

He is one of the veterans of the House, is absolutely sound on all the fundamentals, and he is not among those precious souls who assume that a battle means a kissing contest. We have never been able to grow enthusiastic over a parliamentary leader who is not a fighter—and Rainey bears the scars of many a battle. He also has that picturesque quality which has always gone so well with leadership in the House. Not one, since Claude Kitchen, has been better equipped for the give and take, for the slash and lunge of a running mate.

It is interesting to know that he and that lusty, gusty fighter from North Carolina were intimate friends and were wont in the old days to explore together the highways and the byways of the countryside in Maryland and Virginia. Both had a genius for friendship; both had a profound sympathy for the under-dog, and both an inexpressible contempt for hypocrisy. Both, too, were robust partisans, and Heaven spare us from the leadership of a party that is not partisan; for a non-partisan or unpartisan leader makes for the demoralization of the party he leads.

But no one need fear that Rainey will run amuck. He will be as conservative as common sense—but he will not be reactionary. The idea carefully cultivated in some quarters that to be conservative one must be reactionary, that to stand aggressively, as Rainey always has, for human rights, means a destructive attitude toward property rights—this idea is absurd.

* * *

A Leader Who Will Sacrifice

Years ago we heard this story about Henry Rainey: He was a soldier in the war with Spain. Some of his comrades were stricken with smallpox and removed to a detention hut some distance from the camp. He announced his intention to go along and nurse them; and when others protested that he would thus endanger his own life, he answered: "I'll take a chance. These are my buddies." And so he went; and when food was passed up from the outside of the hut, Rainey took it in from the window.

It is this spirit of comradery which brought to the new leader the affection so many have for him and accounts for his personal popularity among his colleagues. There is something of character denoted in this incident which goes well with leadership. It means a leader who will sacrifice his personal comfort and his opinions on the non-essentials for the common good.

* * *

Congress to Vote On Prohibition

It now seems certain that by common consent we are to have a vote in Congress on prohibition. That is just as well. The sooner we have this vote the better; for otherwise it would be a disturbing element throughout the session.

And this is to be a session that will deal with human misery. The economic problems cannot be subordinated at this juncture to anything under the sun. When six to seven million breadwinners are out of work, when 20 million dependents are in distress, when the hammer of the auctioneer falls with tragic monotony on the farm lands of the West, when hundreds of thousands of families are being set upon the street for nonpayment of rent, the representatives of the people dare not ignore that situation.

Let there be the earliest possible vote on prohibition, and then let Congress pass on to the consideration of ways and means to restore prosperity, to put men back to work, to prevent suffering and starvation.

* * *

Mr. Hoover Must Submit His Report

No definite, positive program can be framed by Congress until Mr. Hoover submits his report on "the state of the Union" and his plan. He will report a deficit—an enormous deficit—the deficit of his administration. He will recommend an increase in taxation to meet that deficit. Not until then will it be incumbent on the Democrats to formulate their plan. Mr. Hoover is still President of the United States. He will report conditions under his administration and make his own recommendations which Congress afterwards will pass upon. If we face a probable deficit of two billion dollars it is not due to those who have been out of power, but to the administration that has been in power; and if increases in taxes are now imperative it is not due to those whose policies have been rejected, but to those whose policies have been in operation.

* * *

'Build a Home' Movement Seems Out of Place

Perhaps it is characteristic of the President to turn away from the hundreds of thousands of evictions for non-payment of rent, from the hundreds of thousands who are shelterless, from the hundreds of thousands who are losing their homes through foreclosures, to encourage the people to build and own their homes.

It is true, of course, that the more home owners there are, the more conservative and safe a country is; and anything that can be done to make it easier for people to build and own homes is good. But, unhappily, there are millions of people at this time to whom the platitudinous speech on homes will sound like a mockery of their wretchedness.

* * *

The immediate and pressing problem in this country now is how those who live in rented houses and quarters are going to pay the rent; and what they are to do if they are evicted and put out on the street.

However good the intention, and however effective under normal conditions, the "build a home" movement of the Administration now seems out of place. Nothing could better illustrate the Presidential mood during the last three years of human misery. The evidence all indicates that Mr. Hoover refuses to face realities—as far as the masses of people are concerned.

"Business as usual" is a foolish slogan when there is scarcely any business at all; and "build a home" seems mockery when Al Smith goes afoot through Greenwich Village begging small amounts from small merchants to prevent women and children from starving or being set out on the street.

* * *

Just 'Another Depression'

It would have been more in keeping with conditions had the President called a conference on unemployment; to find ways and means to put men back to work; and to discuss the method through which workers may be guaranteed against dispossession of their jobs, which means their bread, their life, in the future.

We are not going to get back to what we had before, for thoughtful men now realize that it is a system that is at fault. Charles E. Mitchell of the City National Bank in New York tells us that the trouble is that there is disorganization everywhere. There must be readjustments to meet the increasingly complicated problems of our mechanical age—some drastic readjustments.

But the Administration at Washington is impatient with the thought. It prefers to think that this is just "another depression," that tomorrow we shall have "business as usual," and that unemployment and human misery can be eliminated as a governmental problem by urging men who face eviction to—build a home!

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

By S. H. Connolly

Do you know:

1. What is a dance macabre?
2. What is a patten?
3. What part of a performance is the prologue?
4. What is supposed to be Walter Scott's best poem?
5. Where is Chaucer buried?
6. When did Aesop live?
7. What is a diamond composed of?
8. How is temperature measured?
9. When was the first coal produced in the United States?
10. Why was a stove called a range?

Match correctly:

11. Fort Sumter	United States paid $20,000,000 for them.
12. Hawaiian Islands	gold was discovered here in 1896.
13. Astoria	a military post in the Civil War.
14. Philippines	the crossroads of the Pacific.
15. Klondike	a trading post in 1812.

1. A dance of death. 2. A kind of overshoe with a wooden sole. 3. The introduction. 4. "The Lady of the Lake." 5. Westminster Abbey. 6. About 580 years before Christ. 7. Chrystallized carbon. 8. By the thermometer. 9. 1820. 10. Because it was so "arranged" as to fit easily into a fireplace. 11. A military post in the Civil War. 12. The crossroads of the Pacific. 13. A trading post in 1812. 14. United States paid $20,000,000 for them. 15. Gold was discovered there in 1896.
